DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Pasteurized Milk Lessens Prevalence of Communicable Disease

Most health authorities believe and teach that any milk supply, regardless of how carefully it has been produced, would be made still safer by heating it hot enough and long enough to destroy any disease-producing bacteria which might have accidentally found their way into it despite the care taken in producing it.

During the past several years, however, raw milk advocates have rigorously contended that heating milk adversely affects its health-fulness and growth-promoting capacity. There seems indeed to be real danger that milk consumers may be more impressed by the arguments of raw milk advocates that heated milk is not as wholesome as raw milk, than by the advice of health authorities that raw milk is not as safe as heated milk.

If this is true it becomes imperative for health officers to be able to answer the question, "Do children who drink raw milk actually thrive better than children who drink heated milk" not by reasoning only, but on the basis of direct field observation.

Several years ago the Public Health Service conducted an intensive study of about 3,700 children of ten months to six years of age to determine whether those who drank heated milk actually throve less well than those who drank raw milk. The results of these studies showed that the average weight of the children receiving raw milk was 33.2 pounds, whereas the average weight of the children receiving heated milk was 33.6 pounds; also the average height of children receiving raw milk was 37.4 inches, whereas the average height of the children receiving heated milk was 37.5 inches. Furthermore, from the parent's reports it was found that the children who drank raw milk suffered with communicable diseases more frequently than did the children who drank heated milk only. The final conclusion of the study was that in the average supplementary American child diet, children who are fed pasteurized or other heated milk thrive as well as children who are fed raw milk, and contract certain communicable disease less frequently.

Record Number of Passengers and Vehicles Transported

Reflecting the greatest tourist season in Michigan's history, a total of 372,848 vehicles were transported across the Straits of Mackinac by the state-operated ferry fleet during 1941, it was announced this week by State Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy.

"These figures," Kennedy stated, "represent an increase of 76,059 vehicles, or 25.6 per cent, over those for 1940 and establish an all-time high record for the ferry fleet.

Total passengers transported, exclusive of drivers, during the year totaled 636,268 as compared with 491,755 for the preceding year, or an increase of 29.4 per cent.

The peak day of the year was reached July 4 when the state-operated fleet transported a total of 5,946 vehicles. This also established a new all-time one day record.

full-fledged military offensive. Unless we strip for action quickly, we may be "too late."

It's the same old, old story of American unpreparedness which you find again and again in American history. Only this time, we have few Allies, less time in which to overcome the appalling handicaps.

Start of Sacrifices

And so when the news breaks that the United States, fighting a two-ocean war, must make greater sacrifices than ever dreamed of during the World War I, somehow or other it fits into the usual pattern which democracies can expect. Our sacrifices in Michigan are just beginning.

Michigan automobile factories are to be converted nearly 100 per cent into war arsenals. What had been expected to be a gradual transition may become an arbitrary overnight halt to production of cars. Net result will be temporary unemployment of several hundred thousand workers, plus the readjustments imposed upon thousands of automobile dealers.

Automobile advertising will cease to emphasize new models, but will center on servicing present cars.

Because of metal priorities, the manufacture of refrigerators, radios, washing machines, stokers, stoves, and many other household appliances may be temporarily suspended.

How world-wide the war has become was illustrated recently when the government revealed the extent of restrictions on sale of automobile tires. Only persons who have urgent and vital need for the rubber product will be permitted to buy in 1942. Thousands of automobiles may be forced off the highways. In England tire blowouts have caused thousands of deaths.

Tourist Business

The 1942 tourist business in Michigan should not be drastically affected by the tire restriction, but some curtailment may be anticipated. The 1943 season will be uncertain.

Retreaded tires will replace new tires, to a certain degree, just as automobile repair work is expected to replace sale of new models.

A 35 per cent reduction in demand of gasoline is also forecast. In turn, curtailment of gasoline will reduce the state's income from gasoline taxes for highway use. Fewer car licenses will be needed. The 1941 income of nearly $60,000,000 may shrink to $45,000,000 or $40,000,000. In turn this would force retrenchment in highway building, and so on. The cycle is long.

Experience of the Michigan tourist business during the last war was favorable. When pressure mounts, need for relaxation rises. Paradoxically, night clubs in England and Canada have been doing a thriving business.

Defense Needs

Last week the state deficit was wiped out, just one year earlier than Budget Director Leo Nowicki thought was possible.

A year-end check of $4,355,000 from the state liquor control commission, representing payment to the general fund from Michigan's liquor sale monopoly, was responsible. On top of this the commission paid $1,269,000 to the federal government in liquor taxes.

Thus the state ended 1941 with a balance of around $60,000 in the bank.

Augmented state income from sale and liquor taxes will be needed to meet new demands due to the war. If the legislature is called into special session—and such may be the case—around $5,000,000 may be asked for use of the state troops, state police, and other war-time functions.

Belts will be tightened in 1942 when Congress enacts higher income taxes and other war-time levies. When the Michigan wage-earner turns over in payroll deductions a fifth to a third of his annual wages to Uncle Sam, then we'll know he is in the war.

Yes, life will be different. The price of victory is just starting.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. What is the best safeguard for my child's future?

A. Buying Defense Savings Bonds, which will help the Government to preserve your child's American heritage for freedom.

Q. Will there be an intensive drive to sell Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps?

A. The Treasury Department sees in the response to the program so far indication that Americans will support National Defense on a voluntary basis, without high-pressure methods.

Note.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps are now on sale at retail stores.

LETTERS FROM THE ARMY CAMPS

Somewhere In the Pacific
December 16th, 1941

Dear Dad:

When I wrote you, very shortly after the bombing of Hickam Field, I was in such a hurry that I scarcely remember what I said. I didn't have a stamp for the letter, but was told the Red Cross would send the letter through, so took a chance and dropped it in the post office. Perhaps you never received it.

I still don't know if Bob (Pearl) is OK or not. If you hear, let me know for I have no other way of finding out.

I'm still OK—except for a few memories of Sunday, December 7th. I don't suppose I'll ever forget that!

Can't tell you very much, for all correspondence is, of course, censored, and we are not supposed to talk about what happened, for obvious reasons. When writing we are restricted to one page for each letter. This makes censoring much easier and quicker with the result that mail will not be slowed up.

Try not to worry about me for I'll be OK. Hope you can enjoy Christmas and New Years. Tell me if Floyd has to join. Suppose he will, but hope not. I sure hope you won't have to.

Say Hello! to all the Kids and Gram, for me. Don't worry now!

With Love from Your Son Bill.

November 19, 1941
Manila, P. I.

Dear Mother and Dad:

I finally got a letter from over on that side of the world and did it ever seem good . . . One also came from J. and she can't see why I came way out here when all of the trouble is on the east coast. Well the whole thing in a nut shell is this: They need men out here as well as on the coast.

. . . Last Sunday I and a first class machinist went over to see a movie and ended up seeing part of Manila. We went through the great walled city which has only three entrances, and all around the city itself is a wall about twenty feet high and about six feet thick at the bottom. There are very few cars in there and nearly everyone rides in rickshaws. Then we went the length of the waterfront, and the highway is about the same as the well known Biscayne boulevard in Miami. The only difference is the palms on the side of the highway rather than in the center of it as it is in Miami.

A week ago Monday I fell down the hatch leading to the after battery and sprained both of my ankles. I spent five days in the sick bay over on the (ship) Otus and the rest of the time I have been doing light duty on this boat and they still feel like someone was twisting on them and then taking a hammer and pounding on my heels. I have to quit now but will write more later.

November 20, 1941

Here it is another day and I haven't accomplished anything. My feet are still sore and I have to go and lay down every once in a while to rest them.

I went up for fireman second class and was rated. I expect to go up for electrician soon.

I got another new pair of glasses this last week . . . I went over to the Naval hospital in Cavite and had the Naval doctor make the prescription for them . . . I had a nice bus ride when I went over to Cavite to get my eyes tested. I was supposed to take a limited and I took a freight and they had all of the beggars in the country in it. There was a girl sitting alongside of me, and she tried to talk to me in English. By the way she talked she had just learned a few words and when she mixed them up with Tagolog, the language they speak over here, it seemed like she was talking another noise and I'd just sit there and shake my head yes and no.

Well folks, I'll have to cut off here . . . Will try to pick up a little more information about the Islands the next time and it may make a letter more interesting.

Your far away son,
Ben Gill

"Tarzan's Secret Treasure"

Twenty trained elephants got their first glimpse of a screen studio when the pachyderms arrived for the river battle between themselves, chimpanzees and tribesmen for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Tarzan's Secret Treasure," with Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan, coming Saturday and Sunday, January 10 and 11, to the Palace Theatre.

The jungle set was the largest piece of engineering ever achieved for a Tarzan picture. More than a hundred huge trees and tons of other vegetation were transplanted along the river, which flowed the length of the set, curving in and out among the trees.

Lions, hippopotami, apes, crocodiles, rhinoceros and other wild animals figure in the action.

Comedienne Plays New Film Role

Ruth Donnelly contributes a new character destined to go down in cinematic history in her portrayal of "Aunt Navy" in Republic's "Sailors On Leave," which comes to the Palace Theatre for a two day run starting Tuesday, January 13.

The film stars William Lundigan and Shirley Ross, and features Mae Clarke, Mary Ainslee, Jane Kean, Bill Shirley, Cliff Nazarro and Chick Chandler.

Rosalind Russell Well Prepared For Legal Role!

During filming of the new Rosalind Russell-Walter Pidgeon co-starring picture, "Design for Scandal," opening Thursday, January 15 at the Palace Theatre, M-G-M's legal-minded technical directors just stood around.

Although the story concerns a woman judge and there are a great many scenes in her courtroom, there was nothing for the law experts to do. Reason being that members of the cast knew all about law.

Queer accidents of 1941. The man who shot himself with his own pants, the snake that bit a woman by proxy, the man who almost burned to death while about to drown, and other odd mishaps. Read about them and see them graphically illustrated in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

Growing service demands due to Michigan's activities in the National Emergency have required increased telephone central office capacity, more equipment and more employees. Above are shown some of the new buildings and additions, started or completed during 1941, to help meet that demand. They are part of this company's $28,000,000 plant expansion program of the past year. That entire program is helping us to face the increasingly difficult problem of providing service when and where wanted.

an inquiry for such information. The inquiry asked if the buildings could accommodate 500, the report indicated a capacity of 1,000 after necessary alterations transforming the enormous barns into barracks. Further investigation is now awaited. A training base of such proportion would really mean something for this community.

"Bill" Fessenden isn't going to get lost in the blizzards we're having. Saw him wearing a compass pinned to his coat and upon inquiry he explained that even though the streets run east and west and north and south, he wasn't taking any chances.

Commercial fishermen are casting an anxious eye on the lake these days. Continued heavy snow like we've been having soon balls up into ice and the first thing we know the fish boats are ice-bound.

Her (sweetly): "Not at all, dear. You may not remember it, but when you came home you didn't have that black eye."

I guess the old saying, "Nature takes care of her own," is true after all. Physicians have repeatedly prophesied doom of the American race because they rode in automobiles too much and don't walk enough, then along comes tire rationing.

And if it [illegible] and blowing pretty soon, we'll all be walking.

A lot of us fellows whose 40 years kept us out of the last military draft can stop being disappointed. We're in! Biggest obstacles in the path from now on will be over-sized waistlines, bald heads and dependents.

It was 4 degrees below zero Wednesday morning and, despite a heavy wind, Round lake and Lake Charlevoix froze over completely.

DEFENSE STAMP DRIVE IN SCHOOLS PLANNED

Sale of Defense stamps will be conducted in Charlevoix public schools in the near future, it was announced this week by O. P. North, superintendent. The sale will probably be on a competitive basis.

LAURA ALICE MEYER AND DAVID GRISWOLD WERE WED THURSDAY

At a ceremony performed by Rev. L. Ick H. Hagle at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, January 1, at the Methodist church, Miss Laura Alice Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Meyer, became the bride of David Taylor Griswold, of Grand Rapids, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Griswold of Grand Rapids.

Candles on the altar, and in tall candelabra flanking baskets of pink and white gladioli, made a pretty background for the ceremony. Mrs. A. C. Belding, at the piano, and Miss Ernestine Chew, at the organ, played traditional wedding music and accompanied Miss Dorothy Meyer, of Chicago, cousin of the bride, who sang "I Love You Truly".

Given in marringe by her father, the bride wore a tailored dress of rose flannel, with a shoulder corsage of talisman roses. Her sister, Miss Billie Meyer, was her bridesmaid. She wore aqua flannel, with corsage of yellow roses. Ira Smith assisted as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception for forty-five guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. Buffet refreshments were served from a tuble decorated with bowls of pink and white flowers, lighted by tall candles. The wedding cake was topped by bride and groom figurines under an arch of pink and white flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Griswold left that afternoon for a trip to Florida. After January 20 they will be at home at 18 Wealthy street, Grand Rapids.

The bride is a graduate of Charlevoix high school, class of 1937, and the groom graduated from a Grand Rapids high school. Both attended the University of Grand Rapids.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Griswold, the groom's parents, of Grand Rapids; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Meyer and daughter, Dorothy, of Chicago; Miss Marguerite McDonald, of Grand Rapids; and Herman Meyer, who came from Camp Grant, Ill.

The party represents the Legion's effort, as an organization, to raise Charlevoix's quota.

Men From 20 to 44, Inclusive, Come Under Requirement

President Roosevelt has set February 16 as the date for registration of men between the ages of 20 and 44, inclusive.

Although recent changes in the Selective Service act permit registration of men from 18 through 64 the president called for the registration now of only those eligible for military service—men in the age brackets of 20 through 44. Men who had registered under the previous 21-35 law need not register again.

Plenty of Hunting Yet

Five snowshoe hares still make a day's limit, like the bag shown here, though no more than three cottontails may now be taken in one day. With the seasons closed on most small game and deer, rabbit hunters and their dogs have the field to themselves for many weeks to come. Hunting of snowshoe hares and cottontails continues until December 31 in southern Michigan, January 31 in northern lower Michigan, and March 1 in the upper peninsula.

CITIZENS RALLY TO DEFENSE CALL

NEARLY THOUSAND REGISTERED SATURDAY

Registration to Be Continued Through Saturday, Jan. 24, to Give Others Opportunity

(By B. C. Mellencamp)

The Charlevoix County Defense Council is greatly pleased with response from 977 individuals who registered on the county-wide registration day, January 10th.

At the meeting of the Defense Council held at East Jordan, Monday, January 12th, it was found that 341 had registered at East Jordan, 318 at Charlevoix, 318 in Boyne City. As an indication of the value of this registration to defense, East Jordan registrations revealed that 69 men and 41 women would take elementary first aid instruction, 32 men and 6 women advanced first aid course, 133 men would join the home guard, 129 men and 55 women offered their blood to build up the blood bank for future needs.

Very shortly the blanks will be examined and the various project volunteers listed. Thus committeemen interested in these various defense activities will have a splendid list to develop their classes and instructions.

The committee takes this opportunity of thanking the following helpers for their assistance at the registration centers: Earl Shapton, Robert Emrey, E. J. Edwards, Miss Frances Milner, Charlevoix; George Hemingway, Rev. Wyngarden, Boyne City; Mrs. Pauline Buchholz, Mrs. Mary Porter, Miss Phoebe VanAlsburg, Miss Helen Norton, Mrs. Mary Kortmann, East Jordan.

Due to the fact the weather conditions were so bad many folks interested in registering were unable to do so, the deadline has now been extended to Saturday, January 24. All persons may register any day during this period by stopping at the following places: First State Bank, East Jordan; Brown Motors, Inc., Charlevoix; Gerrie Drug Store, Boyne City; Post Office, Boyne Falls; Post Office, Walloon Lake. The Council of Defense is hopeful at least 1500 individuals will indicate willingness to serve in defense projects.

SEEK BOOKS FOR MEN IN SERVICE

MINNIE PAYTON, LIBRARIAN OPENS CAMPAIGN

Miss Minnie Payton, local librarian, has organized a Victory Book campaign in Charlevoix to assist in supplying books to men in service of the United States.

The campaign in this city is part of a nation-wide plan, sponsored by the American Library Association, American Red Cross and United Service Organizations, with central headquarters in the Empire State building, New York city. Clearing house for this state is the Michigan State library, Lansing.

There is great need for books for Uncle Sam's soldiers, sailors, aviators, coast guards and marines. Although their moments of relaxation may be rare, they must be occupied, and books will help to fill that time. The army and navy have excellent libraries, but cannot begin to meet the demands of our present expanded armed force.

Books that interest men cover a wide range: up-to-date technical books with copyright date of 1935 or later, grammar, shorthand, sports, poetry, travel, history, adventure, humor, mystery, aviation, western and the modern novel. All donations will be appreciated.

Gifts may be left at the Martin Block store, Central Drug store or the public library. If unable to take books to any of these places, call 157 and they will be collected.

Mrs. Robert Miles and Mrs. Walter Bergeon are assisting Miss Payton in this undertaking.

BIRTHOAY BALL PLANS PROGRESS

LEO W. POWERS IS NAMED CHARLEVOIX CHAIRMAN

Statistics Reveal Two Spent for Infantile Research In State for Every Dollar Raised

Plans are being made throughout the county for the 9th annual President's Birthday Ball, scheduled Friday evening, January 30th.

Activities in Charlevoix will be under the direction of Leo W. Powers, appointed local chairman by Joseph F. Bugai, of East Jordan, county chairman.

Tickets for the party will be placed on sale, it is understood, to provide a means for individuals to make a contribution, even though they do not attend the dancing party.

In urging support to the campaign, Mr. Powers stated that health department statistics reveal that laboratory work on the cause, and treatment of infantile paralysis brought two dollars into Michigan for research last year for every dollar raised in the state for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Aside from funds for local purposes, the President's birthday celebration and the march of dimes last year raised $52,370.90 for the National Foundation. Almost twice as much was spent by the Foundation in the state, for during the year Michigan research grants totaled $96,000.

The funds raised in the observance of President Roosevelt's birthday are divided evenly between local uses for care of patients and the research supported by the National Foundation. Since the Foundation was established in 1938, the grants for research in Michigan have totaled $127,000.

Full details for the pending fund-raising campaign will be published next week.

HUNTERS REMINDED TO SEND IN REPORT

Deadline for Deer and Small Game Cards Is February 15

Hunters and trappers again are reminded by the conservation department that kill report cards—the short stubs of their licenses—are due in the Lansing office not later than February 15.

The report cards, listing the amount of game killed by each licensee, are valuable to the department and indirectly to sportsmen because they carry much-needed information about game conditions throughout the state. With information from the cards to supplement its own investigations, the department is better able to make recommendations to the conservation commission and the Legislature on season dates, bag limits and other regulations in the next seasons.

Last year 129,000 small game hunters, 56,500 deer hunters and 8,374 trappers filed returns.

RAYOERS BEATEN BY ROGERS CITY

LOST FRIDAY NIGHT CONTEST BY 33 TO 20 COUNT

Class B. Hurons Led All Way for Easy Victory; Rayders Play at Gaylord This Week

Rogers City's class B Hurons won both ends of a twin bill at the school gymnasium Friday night. The Rayder varsity went down to a 33 to 20 defeat, while the reserves lost by a one-point margin, 16 to 15.

Charlevoix was outplayed in two of the four periods, Rogers City got away to a 11 to 7 lead in the first quarters. Charlevoix netted four free throws to match Rogers City's lone field goal and tripled 13 to 7 at the half. The Presque Isle county aggregation came back strong in the third stanza, snaring six field goals while limiting Charlevoix to one. The count at third intermission was Rogers City 25, Charlevoix 9. While the Rayders out-scored the visitors 11 points to 8 in the final period, the rally fell far short.

Carey topped the Rayder scoring with 8 points. Swanson netted 6, Rowe 2, Stewart 1. Gordon, with 14 points, led the Rogers City attack. Haselhuhn scored 10. Charlevoix used nine players during the contest, while the original Rogers City five played the entire route.

The Huron reserves came from behind to win the preliminary. They trailed 4 to 2 at the quarter, 6 to 2 at the half, 11 to 10 at third intermission, then scored six points to Charlevoix's 4 to edge out a one-point victory in the final period.

The Rayders play away from home this week, meeting Gaylord on a return tilt on Gaylord's floor. Charlevoix defeated Gaylord in their previous meeting here.

OPERATION OF IRONTON FERRY IS DISCONTINUED

Service by the Ironton ferry was discontinued last Wednesday, due, according to operators, to northwest winds piling ice into south arm to the extent a channel could not be kept open. It is believed the ferry was operated continuously during the winters of two preceding years.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Kaa Usher

It is understood in Berlin that if Goebbels manages to capture the Russian army three more times in succession, he will be allowed to keep it.

Why Worry About It?—

Either you are successful or you are not successful. If you are successful there is nothing to worry about.

If you are not successful, there are only two things to worry about; your health is either good or you are sick. If your health is good there is nothing to worry about.

If you are sick, there are two things to worry about. You are either going to get well or you are going to die. If you are going to get well, there is nothing to worry about.

If you are going to die, there are only two things to worry about. You are either going to heaven or you are not going to heaven. If you are going to heaven, there is nothing to worry about. If you are going to the other place, you'll be so busy shaking hands with old friends and acquaintances that you won't have anything to worry about.

So why worry?

It seems that in this bit of nonsense is a rather appropriate thought for the New Year. During the troubled months ahead, undoubtedly all of us will have plenty of cause for worry. But what useful purpose will it serve to give way to unnecessary worry? It won't help solve our problems. More likely, it will only complicate them. So why worry?

And while on the subject, I once heard the following: "Worry, it is said, will make anybody thin—except those who worry about being fat."

Maybe it is safe to say something about the weather now that the ten-day storm is over and almost everyone, made touchy by the over-dose, is in a better frame of mind. Total snowfall for the

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

A session of the Michigan legislature with no partisan politics!

If assurances from the leaders from both camps of the state's divided government carry through, Michigan citizens will witness a strange and unusual spectacle Monday, January 19, when the Republican controlled legislature answers the call for a special war session issued by Democratic Murray D. Van Wagoner.

Calling the legislators back to Lansing, Governor Van Wagoner made it clear that he wanted the legislature to confine itself to "this war emergency." That means the Governor wants it understood beforehand that there will be no injection of partisan disputes or other controversy into the consideration of strictly necessary war measures.

Simultaneously, Republican Speaker Howard Nugent notified the Governor that the dominant Republican majority in the House of Representatives would cooperate fully in the consideration of wartime measures.

War Needs in State

Just what the wartime measures will include were not definitely outlined by Governor Van Wagoner in his announcement.

He may ask appropriations totalling $5,000,000 for wartime spending.

Possible expenditures would include expansion and equipment of the Michigan State Troops (Home Guard organizations), further subsidy for the State Council of Defense to finance its program of civilian recruiting, auxiliary police, fire protection, air raid wardens, medical units, state police expansion and tie-in civilian defense activities.

Echoes in State House

Echoes of the storm which wrecked the fragile structure of bi-partisan government in 1941 still ring through the State House as the legislature approaches its war special session.

Memories of the legislature which refused to adjourn are still

CORRESPONDENCE

ROCK ELM

For a week the school bus and mail carrier were unable to make their route through here.

Two of the snow plows were laid up for repairs last week, which may account for the delay in clearing this road.

Ten degrees below zero is the lowest temperature reported around here so far but the wind made it seem colder.

This neighborhood was snow bound last week from Tuesday until Saturday, when two plows came through and opened the road for a few hours, but the wind soon had it blocked again.

After the plows went through Saturday Lawrence Jensen, Jesse Lawton and Tom Jensen went out to warm up their cars for a trip to town after needed supplies, only to find that all three cars had gone on a strike and no amount of coaxing would make them start. On Monday Tom Jensen and Jesse Lawton found ice in their cars which they removed so they were able to go again after the plows opened the road Tuesday morning.

Everyone is busy digging themselves out after the ten-day storm. The fellows that predicted a mild winter did not know their signs or else all signs have failed them.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hull and daughter Roberta, also Kenneth Empey, returned home from Pontiac on Friday, a week ago, where they visited with their son, Pvt. Buddie J. Hull, of Paris Island, South Carolina, who had a few days furlough.

ATWOOD NEWS

Nick Brock spent the week end visiting his family.

Paul and Oscar Veenstra were callers in Enst Jordnn Monday.

School was only held two days last week with only a few in attendance. Too much of a storm.

Here's wishing that the latter part of January is pleasanter than the first ten days, so that we will be able to see our neighbors home, and not think we are living on an island all by our lonesome selves.

The unusually long snowstorm didn't bring much news, as everyone was locked in by big drifts or closed roads. The Atwood-Ellsworth road was shut until Monday morning. It was a big problem to get through the main highway. The large rotary snow plow went through Friday and Saturday, making room for more snow. Banks are higher than a man a good many places along the road. This morning (Tuesday) the sun is shining beautiful. Maybe Mr. New Year is going to show bis good side now after sendiog us that bad spell for ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pischner spent several days here visiting relatives and friends. They returned Monday to Charlevoix, where they expect to spend the winter months.

The sudden and unexpected death on January 5th of Patrick E. Gallagher, came as a shock to his family and relatives, as well as his many friends. Mr. Gallagher was born on Beaver Island June 26th, 1871, and had spent most of his life on the island. He is survived by his wife, Nora, and four sisters, Mrs. Mary Jenkins and Mrs. Catherine Gallagher, of Chicago, Mrs. Rae Roddy of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Jennie McCauley of Escanuba, also several nephews and nieces. COMMUNICATION

The following communication is taken from a letter written by Ensign W. L. Freeburn, U. S. Navy, to Mrs. Freeburn, regarding the former Logan Thomson yacht "Sylvia," long quartered in this harbor. Many local citizens who were employed on the yacht, and summer residents who were familiar with it, will no doubt be interested in changes made to fit the ship for naval service:

"Do you remember the converted yacht that was docked just across the dock from us in Norfolk? She was the USS Tourmaline, YP20. Guess what? She was the Sylvia. When the duty officer aboard her found out I had been an officer on her when she was a yacht, he invited me aboard and showed me all over her. She is doing offshore patrol duty off the Virginia Capes. She carries a crew of 40 men and 6 officers. The guests staterooms have been torn out and that whole section is now crew herthing space, pipe bunks and lockers. The living room is now the crew's mess room. The smoking room is the ship'a galley. The dining saloon is the officers' wardroom. The officers' mess room and officers' staterooms is now all officers' staterooms. The CPO's live in the Stewards' and Oilers' rooms. The old crew's quarters is now used as a storage space. The old galley has been torn out and that space is now an engineroom store room and an office for the engineering officer. The after mast has been taken off and a small tubilar spar takes its place. The foremnst has been shortened and a crows nest for a lookout added. The howsprit and the billet head have been removed and a kind of a spoon bow effect given her. The after canopy has been removed and the after rails cut down. A steel gun platform is installed on the after deck with a small gun. The wooden hatch on the foredeck has been removed and replaced with a steel one. The boat deck is the same. The bridge is still the same. The skipper still has the same room. The radio room is still the same. The same boats are being used. There are some machine guns mounted on the boat deck. There are depth charge tracks aft of the gun platform on the after deck. All the windows on the main deck and boat deck have steel plates welded in their place and regular port lights installed. The port lights in the old crew's quarters have been welded over with steel plates. The engine room is still the same. The stabilizer is still there but still not repaired. It seems they have new batteries and are having valve trouble with the main engine. (I know all of this bores you but please show this to Roy Ranger, he will be glad to hear about it)."

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

From Your Congressman
Fred Bradley
11th District, Michigan

The second session of the 77th Congress opened last week in a real warlike atmosphere in Washington. Immediately after Pearl Harbor, we had two small machine guns mounted on the roof of our office building with a squad of soldiers constantly on duty. Some of us feel that it is rather difficult to imagine just how effective these two machine guns might be in the event of a real air raid, but at least they are supposed to, and look good to the visiting public—and they are all we have. From sunset to sunrise soldiers with bayoneted rifles guard each door of the Capitol buildings and no one is permitted entry except thru one heavily guarded door in each building, and then the visitor is carefully examined by armed guards and any packages or cases which he might be carrying are carefully inspected. In fact just the other day I was carrying a small handbag into the Capitol and was forced to check it on the ground floor before I could go upstairs to perform my regular duties.

Last week also all members of Congress and their clerks and secretaries were photographed and in the very near future we will probably all have to wear identification badges before we will be permitted to enter the Capitol buildings. Of course, this has long been the requirement in the Army and Navy buildings and the practice is spreading to all of the other government offices here. I hope that all of these precautions are necessary, but I must confess it is rather difficult to become accustomed to them. The first thing we know when you come down to call on your Congressman, you will probably have to bring a birth certificate or some other document of identification. Nevertheless, I will be very glad to see you at any time.

During Christmas week I had the extreme pleasure of inspecting both the Curtiss-Wright and Bell Aircraft Companies' new plants in Buffalo. In both of these plants they are producing our latest type fighter planes. I wish I could be permitted to describe in detail all of the very interesting things I saw in these plants and I wish I could tell you about these beautiful and yet vicious appearing 'Wings of Destruction'. Two things stand out foremost in my memory. First, in both plants I was told that Pearl Harbor had increased the average individual efficiency of each workman at least 25 per cent; and believe me wherever I went those boys looked determined—without saying it, their eyes seemed to indicate, 'we remember Pearl Harbor and those Japs are going to get it back—"with compound interest"!' Secondly, it was encouraging to see that in both plants planes which were going through the production line with the British circular insignia thereon were, for the time being at least, having that insignia repainted with the more beautiful red-white-and-blue star of the United States Army Air Corps insignia. For the time being at least, our Army Corps instead of the Royal Air Force was getting all of the production from those plants. Had this been the case but a few months ago, General MacArthur and his valient men in the Philippines might not be as hard pressed as they are today and the heroic resistance by the Marines at Guam, Midway and Wake might still be continuing. (If "Mac" had part of the planes that I saw go off the line in Buffalo in one day, he could do to those Japs what I saw Joe Louis do to Buddy Baer last Friday night—and in less time, if possible.) The more we hear about the real story of Pearl Harbor, the less said the better. History will some day place the blame at the proper door.

Many people are inclied to blame Congress for such restrictive measures as the recent curb on the sale of automobiles, tires and sugar. These are merely the first. All such restrictive measures are imposed by the Executive Department of the government under war powers previously granted the President and over which Congress no longer has any control whatsoever. Presumably these drastic restrictions are necessary because of the exigencies of a nation at war. At times, however, it is somewhat difficult to reconcile them with the precepts of common sense. Last August when he testified before the Banking and Currency Committee, Mr. Leon Henderson was questioned by Representative Wolcott of Michigan about a certain newspaper article which predicted that "the O.P.M. through its regulations might cause the shutdown of 5,000 to 6,000 factories and the displacement of well over one million workers within a short time". In substance Mr. Henderson replied that such "economic discipline" might be necessary to awaken the American people to their wartime responsibilities. This may be a prelude to the Sovietism of America—war or no war. Of that I am—and have been—fearful.

INFORMATION REGARDING INCOME TAX

Forms for filing returns of income for 1941 have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time—on or before March 16 if the return is made on the calendar-year basis, as is the case with most individuals.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors and from deputy collectors of internal revenue in the larger cities and towns.

A person should file his return on Form 1040, unless his gross income for 1941 does not exceed $3,000 and consists wholly of salary, wages, or other compensation for personal services, dividends, interest, rent, annuities, or royalties, in which event he may elect to file it on Form 1040A, a simplified form on which the tax may be readily ascertained by reference to a table contained in the form.

The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his legal residence or principal place of business on or before midnight of March 16, 1942. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 16, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

In making out your income tax return read carefully the instructions that accompany the form. If you need more information, it may be obtained at the office of the collector of internal revenue, deputy collector, or an internal revenue agent in charge.

LETTERS FROM THE ARMY CAMPS

Fort Bliss, Texas

Dear Sir,

I'm writing you and thanking you very much for sending me the Courier for so long. I sure enjoyed reading it and getting the home news.

We were transferred from Camp Wallace the first of the week. We didn't know where we were going but ended up here at Fort Bliss. It is about 5 miles from El Paso, Texas, and at the foot of a large mountain. I'm in the Coast Artillery Anti-Aircraft. We are only here a short while and are leaving for foreign service. Don't know where or just when we are going. Everything is kept secret. So you can send me 2 more papers if you will. And if I get to a place where I can get mail again I will write to you.

I'm thunking you again for sending the paper. And here's hoping I can do as much for you in the near future.

Yours truly,
Pvt. Harley C. Warner

Vital Metals from the Telephone Junk-pile

★ Worn-out, broken and outmoded telephone apparatus—even odds and ends of copper wire and lead-covered cable—are not wasted in the Bell System.

★ Instead, at the smelting and refining plant of Bell System's Western Electric, all basic metals in the telephone junk-pile are refined for use over and over again.

★ That is why old telephones and other equipment may appear once more in useful form . . . perhaps in gun parts, big shells, fighter planes, bombers . . . or be used in completely new form in the telephone system of a battle cruiser or naval arsenal.

But that's not all. Bell System research enables us to save vital metals for war needs by using alternate materials in some parts of telephone equipment. That research assists us, too, in the increasingly difficult problem of providing service when and where needed.

Civilian air raid spotters will have no difficulty distinguishing Axis planes from those of the United Nations if they memorize the markings illustrated above. American and British planes have designs of red, white and blue and Russia has a red star. Watchers on the southern border occasionally may see the red and green of Mexico. Axis raiders are easily spotted through the familiar black cross and swastika of Germany, the round red rising sun emblem of Japan and the Roman fasces insignia borne by Italian planes.

A public meeting will be held in the high school auditorium January 20th, for the purpose of organizing a Parent-Teachers association. Nearly all other cities in the state can boast of an active organization of this kind, and it is surprising Charlevoix has not had one before.

* DEFENSE BOND QUIZ *

* * * * * * * * * *

Q. What is the Treasury's underlying thought in avoiding a pressure campaign to sell Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps?

A. The belief that the American public is anxious to aid to the limit in defense of the Nation, and also wants to save money for future needs, especially since such savings will help to keep down the cost of living.

Q. Should I buy Defense Savings Stamps at retail stores rather than at post offices and banks?

A. Buy stamps wherever it is most convenient. The important thing is to purchase Stamps as often as you can, and exchange the completed Stamp album for a Defense Savings Bond.

Note.—to buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps are now on sale at retail stores.

* THE HOME FRONT *

* * * * * * * * * *

The President gave the signal and America's war production machinery, already rolling, switched into high gear. Today we are moving at constantly quickening speed along the only sure highway to victory — the hard and rocky road of self sacrifice.

There's not a one of the whole 131,000,000 of us, probably—man, woman or child—who won't have carried some part of the burden of this war before it is over, before the Japanese are slapped back onto their own islands and disarmed, before Hitler and his stooge Mussolini and their followers — willing and unwilling—have been made harmless. Expressed in terms of cold cash, the huge 1942 program for tanks and guns and planes and ships will cost more than $400 for every citizen of these United States.

So far the crisis in materials needed for this vast production program has been reflected chiefly in the nation's auto salesrooms and auto supply stores. So far it's been primarily a matter of cars and tires.

But already other changes are on their way, changes which will be reflected in the products displayed on the shelves of tradesmen in thousands of towns and villages when present stocks are exhausted.

Take clothes, for one thing. Clothes are going to change. They are going to look different, and they are going to be different, too. That's because we are cut off from sources of wool in Australia and New Zealand, and because so much wool is needed for military uniforms. There's from 40 to 50 per cent less wool available for civilian use this year and it's going to mean that overcoats made probably will be made out of a mixture of virgin wool and re-used wool, and that coats will be shorter and pants trousers skimpier, and an end, for the duration, of the "two pants suit."

The vital need for more and more alcohol to make explosives is going to change the formula of lots of things on your drugstore shelves. Not things you need when you're ill, but things like toothpaste, and perfume, and a great many cosmetic products. The Office of Production Management has ruled that no more alcohol may be used in the manufacture of such products after April 1.

To date, despite tremendous lend-lense shipments to Britain, there hasn't been any real shortage in any foodstuff. Nearest approach to a shortage is in sugar, because much sugar is made from cane, and sugar cane molasses has been largely used to make alcohol. The OPM has ordered distillers equipped to make alcohol from corn or grain to use these materials exclusively.

At the same time the Office of Price Administration ordered an upward adjustment in the price ceiling above refined and other "direct consumption" sugars, a maximum price advance of 20 cents a 100 pounds. This isn't expected to have any immediate effect on retail prices, because retailers now are selling sugar acquired at lower prices. When stocks are exhausted, however, retailers will have to pay higher prices to replenish their stock.

The OPM suggests a variety of ways in which dairy operators and milk distributors may overcome shortages. Dairymen can't buy new trucks for home deliveries, but they are urged to repair old equipment, just as the farmer has been urged to have his old farm machinery repaired. OPM suggests that deliveries be made every other day and that duplication in milk pickup routes be avoided in order to conserve rubber and machinery and, incidentally gasoline. Containers are going to be a problem, OPM suggests campaigns to salvage used bottles, a reduction in the variety of container sizes offered the consumer.

The sweeping drive to conserve metals for war production continues, with lead—the raw material for bullets—latest on the list headed by copper and steel, tin and aluminum. Just as iron and steel priorities meant far fewer refrigerators and no pleasure autos at all; just as tin priorities are working changes in everything from cans to many articles customarily found at the five and dime stores; so with restrictions on the use of lead for civilian purposes.

The lead order, effective April 1, will even be felt in the undertaking business — no more lead may be used in caskets or in casket hardware. No more lead, either, for automobile body solder, for ballast or keels of pleasure boats, for foil or ornamental glass or regalia or badges or emblems. Nor for statuary and art goods, toys, tennis court markers. Lead may not be used in bats, (as weights), or in clocks, decoys, dresses, golf clubs and jockey saddles.

America's force of war workers must be doubled or trebled to meet the victory production program and women must play a larger part in war industry, says Sidney Hillman, OPM's Associate Director . . . The OPM has prohibited use of methyl (wood) alcohol in antifreeze compounds . . . You'll probably be putting something containing ethyl alcohol or isopropenyl in your radiator . . . Paper manufacturers were warned by OPM against building up excessively large inventories . . . Paper pulp is a real wartime military necessity, it's used in making pasteboard containers for small arms ammunition . . . The OPM is campaigning for waste paper salvage . . . Canadian paper mills are planning to increase newsprint prices . . . The OPA conferred with representatives of the American Publishing Industry, which gets 75 per cent of its newsprint from Canadian mills . . . Director of Defense Transportation, Joseph B. Eastman says military needs for iron and steel constitute a particular danger to the trucking industry . . . If trucks can't be replaced the burden carried by the railroads may grow heavier . . . Our railroads are doing a good job, Mr. Eastman said, and they're helped by a public which realizes that first things come first.

NOW WE GET THE LOW DOWN

Well, now we know what we have to do, and it's up to us to roll up our sleeves, tighten our belts and go to it.

We received our orders from the commander-in-chief Tuesday.

He wants 60,000 planes this year and 125,000 next year; he wants 45,000 tanks this year and 75,000 in 1943; he wants 20,000 anti-aircraft guns in 1942 and 35,000 in 1943; he wants 8,000,000 tons of shipping during the coming year and 10,000,000 next year.

O. K., Mister, if that's what it takes to win this war that's what you'll get.

Now we have specific goals to shoot at. We know what we must do to defeat the axis, and when we know what we have to do we can usually do it.

All non-essentials must go by the board. Partisan politics, profits, savings, strikes, must be buried for the duration.

A man swimming for a life raft doesn't stop to view the scenery. Neither must we.

"It's "eyes front" from now until the axis yells "uncle".

DEER STORAGE PERMITS EXPIRES JANUARY 29TH

Feed the birds. This request comes from numerous bird lovers of the region who point out that the continued cold and deep snow have caused considerable distress among the feathured friends of the community.

One resident of the city said, in discussing the situtnion this morning, he has been placing a mixed grain food out for the past few days and that a general raid on the station results.

He suggested that a sheltered place be provided and food placed out each morning. Beef suet, he stated, is another item which is relished by the birds and is inexpensive.

Nurse Triumphs Over Paralysis

Amazing Cures Win Support of Doctor for Method of Australian.

MINNEAPOLIS. — General hospital recurds here have disclosed what Dr. F. E. Harrington, city health commissioner, termed an "amazing series" of successes in treating infantile paralysis by an Australian nurse who disdains accepted methods.

The nurse, Elizabeth Kenny, who began developing her method in Australia 30 years ago, argues that all infantile paralysis patients precent conditions of muscular incoordination and mental alienation. She has been working at General hospital since last September.

She is confident that all hospitals and doctors will eventually recommend her hot pack treatments and coaxing of diseased muscles back into action by schooling the mind to demand and get work from the muscles.

Doctor Enthusiastic.

Dr. Harrington says it is perhaps too early to determine whether Nurse Kenny's methods, about which many still are skeptical, will win her immortality in medical annals, but she nt least has his enthusiastic support.

"General hospital records show that she has successfully treated at least 17 cases since September when the hospital gave her permission to work after several other cities had refused," said Dr. Harrington.

"Nurse Kenny is doing a wonderful work and we are very happy that the city of Minneapolis and our doctors have given her full co-operation after she failed to get co-operation in any place from the Pacific to Atlantic coasts."

Among the cases she treated, as shown by the hospital records are these:

A 10-year-old boy, his respiratory muscles failing, was rushed to the hospital sobbing weakly for breath. Before Nurse Kenny could reach him he was placed in an iron lung. She had him removed from the lung, went to work and within 24 hours he was breathing freely and able to eat. In three weeks he was discharged, recovered.

Girl Recovers.

On another night doctors warned parents of a seven-year-old girl, whose neck was paralyzed, not to leave, as it was not believed the child could live. Under Nurse Kenny'a care the child was out of danger in three days, recovered in a month.

Under her treatment an 18-year-old boy completely paralyzed transferred from the Warm Springs Foundation was able to stand alone in four months and Miss Kenny says he will one day be completely recovered.

Nurse Kenny has left for Australia and returns in May to teach at the University of Minnesota.

This Youth Is Subject to Army Call of 2 Countries

SEATTLE. — Robert Clark, 24, Hussar, Alberta, wheat and cattle rancher who attends the University of Washington every winter quarter, is subject to call for army duty in both the United States and Canada.

He is the Canadian-born son of American parents. He registered for Canadian military service at Hussar when the war started. He is subject to call there any time. He registered for the United States selective service in Idaho at the border last December. His American draft number is 2176.

"I guess I'll have to draw straws when the final decision between the United States and Canada must be made," he said. "If Canada calls me I'll try for the Royal Canadian air force. If the United States drafts me, I'd like to go into artillery."

A student of economics and business, Clark attends the university here as a "vacation" from his duties on his 8,000-acre ranch.

War Brings a Shortage In U. S. Surgical Tools

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The European conflict is threatening an acute shortage of surgical instruments of various types. American purchases for the Red Cross, army, navy and Great Britain have depleted the supplies of clinical thermometers to such an extent that hospitals are urging care to preserve existing supplies.

Paul L. Burroughs, purchasing agent for the Rochester General hospital, reports that prices of surgical instruments previously imported from Sweden and Germany have increased 125 per cent in some instances, while many are not available at any price.

Little Electric Autos Replace Taxis in Paris

PARIS.—Small automobiles powered by batteries which can be recharged by plugging into an electric wall socket have appeared on Paris streets. They can travel about 70 miles before recharging is necessary and have a top speed of about 25 miles an hour.

There is great demand in Paris for transportation to replace taxis, which have been banned owing to the gasoline shortage.

VACATION ARE URGED INSTEAD CASH BONUS

Four Associations Adopt Stand to Bolster Tourist Business

Michigan's four tourist associations are urging industries to guarantee workers vacation time and "not just the payment of an extra bonus."

At a meeting held in Bay City, the association attacked the increasingly widespread seven-day work week, contending that without vacation relief, the schedule was injurious to the health and morale of the workers.

James Driver, of Midland, president of the East Michigan Tourist Association and personnel director of the Dow Chemical Company, voiced the plea for vacation time rather than payment of extra bonuses.

Official representatives of the associations met to revamp plans for advertising the state as a resort and summer sport center.

The association representatives determined to scrap the budget for advertising in all states as drawn up in November and concentrate the drive on prospective visitors from Michigan's neighboring states and on vacationists in the state itself.

EGG SHORTAGE IS THREATENED

More Laying Hens Needed To Meet Demand.

By LESLIE M. BLACK
(Extension Poultryman, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Keep your pullets and turn them into laying hens instead of putting them on the market thereby providing more eggs for Uncle Sam's food-for-defense program and aiding your own income.

There's no definite egg shortage now but there may be in the future unless egg production is increased. People are eating more eggs at home, the army needs lots of eggs, and large quantities are scheduled for shipment overseas. The government recently asked poultry producers to increase egg production 10,000,000 cases during a 15-month period ending next summer; and they have responded, but later figures indicate the increase will fall short of that figure.

We know that we can produce all the eggs needed in the food-for-defense program. It's just a matter of having plenty of laying hens and taking care of them properly.

Eggs are one of the best foods, and no one should eliminate them from one's diet because of shortage. On the average, each person in the United States uses 26 dozen eggs a year. This average should be maintained along with supplies for the army and Britain.

A recent United States department of agriculture report shows that about 19 per cent more chicks have been hatched since January 1 than a year ago, but the increase in numbers of young chicks on farms on June 1 was disappointing. This would indicate that many pullets are being sold as meat along with cockerels for the broiler market.

The egg-feed price ratio is attractive to the poultry producer now, and the government has announced that a favorable ratio will be maintained. It looks like this was the year to fill all available poultry houses with well-matured laying pullets.

A special effort should be made to withhold all well-developed pullets from slaughter. The market or poultry meat can be fully supplied from the cockerels out of this year's hatch because prices will be better if the broiler market is not overloaded.

To Prevent Fuel Waste Adjust Oil Burner Now

Owners of household oil burners can avoid unnecessary expense and conserve fuel this winter by having burner flames properly adjusted with a flue gas analyzer.

With his flue gas analyzer, a service man can adjust a flame for the most effeient use of fuel. Homeowners, however, are warned against trying to adjust the flames of their oil burners themselves. Oil companies and furnace representatives can supply trained men for the job.

The majority of the country's 2,000,000 house-heating oil burners are east of the Alleghenies, according to the U. S. department of agriculture. Use of a flue gas analyzer can help materially in conserving oil, which is particularly important in the region faced with a shortage.

Experiment in Use Of Dried Vegetables

BERKELEY. — Dried vegetables will soon be a part of every army cook'a larder, if experiments carried out by the fruit products division of the University of California college of agriculture are any indication.

The division began investigating methods of dehydrating vegetables for army use more than a year ago at the suggestion of the quartermaster corps. Dr W. V. Cruess, head of the division, reported today that the methods developed have been very successful in drying the vegetables and still retaining their color, flavor, and cooking quality.

The secret of success, said Dr. Cruess, was found to lie in thoroughly scalding the raw vegetables in steam to precook them and destroy enzymes responsible for undesirable changes in flavor, color, odor, and texture. Very thorough drying was found to be essential to preparing vegetables that will keep well.

Farm Hill Land

One of the big advantages of farming hill land on the contour is the amount of water that is saved for soaking into the ground. During an eight-year period at a government soil erosion station in southwestern Iowa, an area listed on the contour lost only 2.7 inches of water a year, while a similar slope area farmed up and down hill lost 19 inches of rainfall. In a drouth year, especially, such differences are very significant.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Garden Seed Packets Being Offered Home Gardners

Garden seeds of proper varieties and quantities will doubtless be hard to secure this year due to the elimination of many foreign sources of seeds. Also for National Defense greater emphasis is being placed upon home gardens and the development of community and school gardens. Not alone this but increased prices for garden seeds are in prospect.

Hoping to be of assistance in this program the various agricultural agencies in the county are cooperating in making available to all persons both city and rural, a garden seed packet suitable for supplying the needs of a family of five with all the fresh vegetables needed and those needed for preserving for one full year.

The packet includes the following varieties and quantities:

Golden Bantam Sweet Corn, 2 lbs.; Grand Rapids lettuce, ½ oz.; Lucullus Swiss chard, 2 oz.; Thomas Laxton or Early Progress peas, 2 lbs.; dwarf telephone peas, 2 lbs.; golden wax string beans, 1 lb.; green string beans, stringless pencil, 1 lb.; Chantenny carrots, 1 oz.; Table queen squash, 1 oz.; Hubbard squash, 1 oz.; Detroit dark red beets, 3 oz.; rutabaga, ½ oz.; Henderson bush lima beans, ¼ lb.; early scarlet globe radish, 1 oz.; John Bair, or Bonny Best tomato seed, ¼ oz.; cucumber, medium size variety, ½ oz.; yellow globe onion seed, ¼ oz.; parsnips, ½ oz.; Danish baldhead cabbage, ¼ oz.

All of these seeds will cost $3.19 shipped by parcel post to the participant on or before March 15, 1942. By special terms with the seed dealers all orders for this seed packet must be received at the State Bank of East Jordan not later than January 23. Your check or money order should be made payable to Garden Seed Fund, State Bank of East Jordan. The time is very short so kindly consider this opportunity and if interested you should immediately forward your order to the State Bank of East Jordan.

SUPT. NORTH GIVES TEMPERANCE TALK BEFORE LOCAL UNION

Due to the storm there was a small attendance at the monthly W. C. T. U. meeting held last Friday afternoon with Mrs. Susan Milner. The tea to be given by Group 1 was postponed until April.

The topic "My Town and Alcohol Education" was presented by Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall with the assistance of Superintendent O. P. North, who gave an interesting account of temperance teaching in local schools.

The school law in Michigan requires that at least one-fourth of the space in textbooks on physiology and hygiene shall be devoted to the nature of alcohol and narcotics and their effects on the human system, but there seem to be no textbooks printed that fulfill these requirements.

Miss Bertha Rachel Palmer, National Director of Scientific Temperance Instruction for the W. C. T. U., has developed a new and up-to-date method for teaching this subject which is used throughout the country. She has trained many teachers in the subject in a six-weeks seminar conducted every winter for the last six years at Evanston, Ill., and in summer courses offered at Chautauqua and Winona Lake. Miss Palmer's Syllabus in Alcohol Education is used in many state teacher's colleges.

Responsibility for temperance education rests primarily upon teachers in Sunday schools and public schools. The character of such instruction today will largely determine the general attitude of the public tomorrow.

I am a candidate for nomination to the office of City Treasurer at the primary, Monday, February 16th. Your vote will be appreciated. Fred V. Tyler.—Adv.2t1

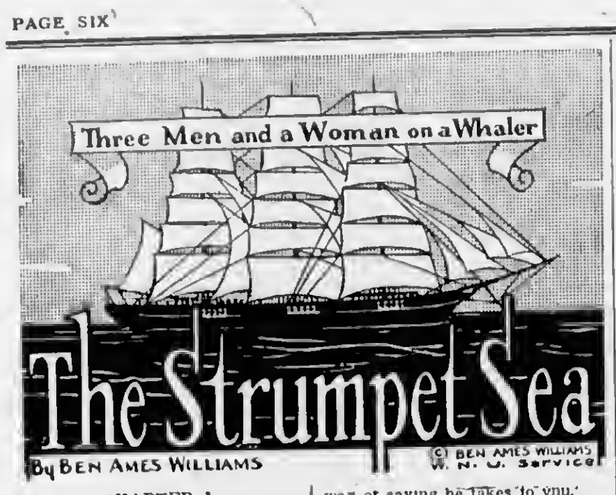
TAILOR AND CLEANER



CHAPTER I

To sign a crew is one thing; to keep all hands aboard till sailing time is another. At dusk, Captain Keen moved the Sunset from the wharf out into the stream to wait for the morning tide. She was a full-rigged ship of three hundred and forty-seven tons burden, bound for the Fiji Islands to load with sandalwood for Chinese and Indian ports; but she was under charter to the Mission Board to carry certain freight and passengers from San Francisco to Honolulu and to the Marquesas, on the way. "I want to give the men overnight to sober off before the missionaries come oboard, Mr. Chase," Captain Keen told the mate as the ship swung to ber anchor. "And another thing. As long as they're with us, I'll have no going ashore at Honolulu, or at the Islands, nor any native girls coming on the ship at all."

The Reverend John Gale and Mrs. Gale were returning to their post in Micronesia after a year's leave at home; and the Reverend George McAusland went to serve his apprenticeship with them. McAusland was not a young man as years go, but bis training for the ministry was only just concluded. He was rather small, and decidedly thin. He was, actually, thirty-eight years old. John Gale, since they met a day or two before, had studied his new assistant. He had some misgivings. McAusland seemed full of a restless earnestness; but the old minister knew that too much zeal could be as dangerous as too little.

Aboardship, Mrs. Gale went to her cabin to settle her belongings there; but John Gale and McAusland stayed on deck to watch the business of departure.

"What decided you to become a missionary?" Gale asked.

"Why, sir, at the Seminary I read a great deal about the mission to the Sandwich Islands, and—I want to be like the men who led that work. They did so much, and everyone loved them." McAusland added humbly: "I want to help people, and—to be loved. I'm pretty clumsy about it, though; about making friends."

The other suggested: "The trick is to like people. People like a man who seems to like them." He asked: "But what turned you toward the ministry, at your age?"

McAusland answered frankly: "I'd killed a man, in Nevada City, in the mines." There may have been surprise in the older man's quick glance, and an unspoken question, for the other explained: "I suppose I don't look like a man of violence; but I lost my temper. He was drunk, and shouted at me, and I threw a pickaxe at him. It hit him in the head."

John Gale thought he would have to readjust his estimates of this young man. "Wasn't that—just an accident?" he suggested reassuringly.

"I suppose a man is responsible even for his accidents," McAusland insisted. "He had no family. There was nothing I could do directly; but I wanted to find some way to—atone."

Captain Keen, one eye on his ship, joined them with some casual word. McAusland walked forward to watch them cat and fish the anchor, and John Gale looked after him, and after a moment he smiled and asked the Captain:

"Would you take that young man for a"—he hesitated, used McAusland's own phrase—"a man of violence?"

The Captain said wisely: "There's never any knowing. The quietest little man I ever knew killed four Malay pirates with a cane'an bar."

"He and I are going to work together, these next years," John Gale explained. "I'm trying to find out what sort of man he is."

Captain Keen said: "You'll find out, presently. Being shut up on the same ship with a man, you come to know him. The sea strips him down, wears him down till what's inside him shows through."

The old minister nodded; and during the days that followed, while the Sunset took her peaceful way across the peaceful sea, he sometimes thought that McAusland was no more than an enthusiastic boy. The first morning at sea, he himself came on deck to find the other bare-footed, his sober black trousers rolled up his thin shins, pushing a holystone up and down the planking under the instruction of the sailor with the parrot. The sailor's name was Corkran; and the two were laughing together at McAusland's awkwardness. The parrot watched George too, its head cocked, and presently it nipped Corkran's ear and said wheedlingly:

"Mighty pretty. Mighty pretty!"

Corkran laughed and clapped McAusland on the shoulder. "There, Reverence!" he said. "That's Pat's way of saying he takes to you."

The friendship between these two developed rapidly. Corkran was an able seaman, above the level of his fellows in the forecastle; and he did his work so cheerfully and completely that he had certain tacit privileges. Whenever he was on deck, he and George were apt to be together. McAusland was intensely curious about ship's business. He worked under Corkran's instruction to learn the knots and bends and hitches, and how to seize and splice and serve.

John Gale, observing the friendship between McAusland and Corkran, tried to understand its basis. He saw that when they were together, George was always the listener.

The mate called Corkran to some duty; and George, turning, saw John Gale near them, and stopped beside him. "Corkran's a strange man," he said, and he colored in a slow way. "Most men are ashamed of their vices, but he brags about his. He's simply an animal."

The older man suggested: "You can't always judge men by the way they talk, George."

"I suppose not." McAusland laughed uncertainly. "And—I like him, in spite of what he is," he admitted. "I don't know why."

One late afternoon, George, under Corkran's instruction, was learning to put an eye-splice in a discarded piece of eight-inch cable when the masthead man sighted the first distant peaks above Honolulu. George laid down spike and maul and swarmed aloft to see for himself; and when presently he descended, dropping from the ratlines the last six or eight feet to the deck, he stepped on the marlinspike where he had left it. It rolled under him; and the result was a severely sprained ankle. John Gale bandaged the hurt; but in the morning when they were anchored McAusland was too lame to walk. The Sunset would lie in harbor overnight while Captain Keen lightered off the freight consigned to the Honolulu mission but Mr. and Mrs. Gale went to lodge with friends ashore, and they urged George, despite his lameness, to come along. When George decided to stay aboard, Mrs. Gale thought he was shyly relieved at having a valid excuse for avoiding a casual meeting with many strangers.

Ashore, she and her husband found that two other passengers would board the Sunset here. One was Joseph Neargood, a tall young Marquesan convert trained in the college at Oahu, going now to take his place in the native mission at Fatuhiva. The other was Mary Doncaster. Her father and mother had established themselves twenty years ago on one of the smaller northern islands of the Marquesan group, which Ephraim Doncaster called Gilead. Mary was born there a year later, and lived there till when she was ten years old they sent her home to New Bedford to school. Now she was returning to them; and John Gale, when he had talked with her, approved Mary mightily. He and Mrs. Gale agreed between themselves that it would be good for McAusland to have the girl's company aboard the Sunset during the rest of the voyage to Gilead. When they were all rowed out to the ship next afternoon a little before sailing time, the old man looked forward to watching McAusland's face light with pleasure at first sight of Mary; but Georga was not on deck to greet them, and John Gale found him in his bunk with a slight temperature, presumably from the pain of his hurt.

Georga did not come to supper, so he did not see Mary till next morning. John Gale had told him she was aboard, but—afraid of saying too much—he said only: "She's the daughter of Ephraim Doncaster, the missionary at Gilead." George inattentively expected Mary to be like a younger edition of Mrs. Gale. Mrs. Gale was pretty as paper flowers under a glass case, with a pale and delicate beauty that would not disturb a man; but Mary was mightily disturbing, beautiful not with youth alone but already ripely. The ship's carpenter had fashioned a crutch for George out of a mop-handle and a block of timber cut to fit the minister's shoulder socket. When George hobbled out into the cabin, the others were already at table, Mary sitting with her back to him; but John Gale greeted George as he appeared, and Mary turned to look up at him. The sun from the skylight fell full upon her countenance as she turned, and George stopped like a struck man, shaken and trembling. She thought he would fall, and she rose quickly to help him, slim and yet warmly round in her tight bodice above loose full skirts of sober stuff. The button at her throat was unfastened; and George as his eyes fell before hers saw her smooth white throat. She touched his arm, steadying him; and John Gale spoke her name and his, and she said:

"Here, I'll help you. Sit here."

George said defensively: "I'm all right." He freed himself and sat down; but his arm where she had touched it burned long after her fingers were removed. He sat beside her at the table with Captain Keen at the head, but he could not look at her. He ate briefly, a little, with trembling hands, silent, so that his silence oppressed them all. Afterward he took refuge in his cabin again; and when next day, his ankle quickly healing, he was able to hobble on deck, he walled himself behind an intense dignity.

But if he was afraid of Mary, he was attracted to Joseph Neargood. The Marquesan was youthfully impressed by his own consecration to the Mission work in which he would presently assume a place. McAusland, his own life committed to lead the Island people to Christianity, saw in Neargood a fine example of what could be done in that direction.

The Sunset was five days out of Honolulu; and the day was lovely and serene, with a light steady breeze and a long cosy swell so that the breast of ocean rose and fell as sweetly as the bosom of a sleeping woman. Two sailors on a stage slung over the side forward were scraping and painting, and Mary Doncaster and Mrs. Gale stood by the rail above the catheads, idly watching the men and watching the porpoises under the bow. Now and then as they talked together the sound of Mary's laughter rang out pleasantly. Captain Keen, near the two missionaries aft, cocked his head that way and chuckled.

"We'll be sorry to say good-bye to Miss Doncaster," he remarked. "The girl has an honest, friendly sound in her laughing."

Mary and the others were coming aft toward them; and George, always apt to avoid Mary, went forward along the other side of the deck. She looked after him, her eyes sobered by hurt; and a moment later, when Mrs. Gale and

She looked after him, her eyes sobered by hurt.

Joseph Neargood had gone below, she smiled and said to John Gale:

"I saw you talking with poor Mr. McAusland."

He chuckled. "Now I wonder why you call him 'poor.'"

"But isn't he? He might have so many things, but he's afraid to take them."

"Afraid?"

"Well, at least sort of ashamed, and shy."

"Ashamed of what?" The old man watched her with a lively interest.

"Ashamed of—life, perhaps." The girl's cheeks were bright. "Don't you know people like that? Old maids who insist that there's something sinful in loving and marrying? People who persuade themselves that the things they want to do and don't dare do are really wrong; and who think everyone else is wicked for doing them?"

He spoke in an affectionate amusement. "So wise so young!"

"I'm not so awfully young," Mary assured him. "I'm nineteen. Remember I lived on Gilead till I was ten, and the Island girls start having babies when they're not much older than that."

"So you're sorry for that poor young man?" he asked.

"Of course! He'd be nice if he didn't think he had to be so awfully severe! And when I speak to him, he jumps as though I'd stuck a pin in him. Mrs. Gale says he wants to talk to me and doesn't know how. He'd feel so much better if he just did."

"You think he does want to talk to you?"

"Of course! Why shouldn't he? I'm young, and pretty, and friendly, and nice; and he's not nearly as old as he thinks he is. You watch him, sometime, when I'm talking with Joseph Neargood."

They heard a cry forward, and Mary leaped past the old man to look overside. George McAusland somehow had fallen off the stage, had toppled into the sea.

"He can't swim!" Mary Doncaster exclaimed. The old minister heard the hiss of torn garments; and, an instant later, she stepped out of her skirts and petticoats, and—slim and white in less encumbering apparel—vaulted easily over the rail into the sea.

The deck was a scurry of activity. John Gale kept his eye fixed on these two dark spots that were heads, in the vast waste of ocean, hidden as they dipped into the trough between great swells, lifting on the crests again into his view.

CHAPTER II

At the moment when Mary Doncaster leaped overboard, George was almost directly below her. She jumped wide of the vessel's side in order to clear him; and when she came to the surface again, the ship, towering high, was gliding smoothly away across the silent sea. From her decks shouts came back to the girl, and she saw the splash of a grating thrown overboard, and knew help would come quickly.

But in the meantime this helpless George McAusland had sunk, sucked under in the burble at the ship's stern. Mary swam toward the spot where he had disappeared, and saw his floundering arm break the surface. He coughed and gasped and muttered something; and she heard the words:

"Into Thy hands . . ."

She felt a hot impatience with him because he did not know how to swim, and because he now surrendered so supinely. She cried: "Don't talk so silly! You're not going to drown! You're all right! I've got you. Lie still."

At her voice behind him, George stiffened rigidly, and a little wave crest lapped across his face and into his open mouth, and he gagged and revolved in the water like a crocodile twisting to tear off the gout of flesh in which its teeth are set. He rolled over facing her and tried to clutch at her. She dove instantly, escaping his grasp, and ruthlessly caught his foot and pulled him under water. Then she slipped up past him, clear of his hands that were like talons, and from behind him caught his collar again and drew him to the surface.

She was on guard against any sudden movement by George; but he now submitted, rigid as an oar. Yet he was heavy, and his clothes were heavy, and the grating was farther away than she had thought. Before she reached it, she was tired, her heart pounding. The ship now was almost broadside to. She hoped someone aboard had had the wit to

Shirley Temple in "Kathleen"

Taller, older — and a greater actress than at any time during her phenomenal childhood years, Shirley Temple returns to the screen in "Kathleen," features attraction at the Palace Theater, Saturday and Sunday, January 17-18.

Lynne Roberts Is Songstress

20th Century-Fox may have another singing "discovery" on its roster. Lynne Roberts, who won a long-term contract for her dramatic talents, was given four songs to sing in her featured role in "Romance of the Rio Grande," which comes Tuesday and Wednesday, January 20-21, to the Palace Theatre with Cesar Romero as the Cisco Kid.

Others featured with Lynne Roberts in the strong cast of "Romance of the Rio Grande" include Patricia Morison, Ricardo Cortez and Chris-Pin Martin.

"Sleepers West"

A crack limited roaring over the peak of the Rockies can capture the imagination of the most blase, but when that San Francisco-bound train contains a potential killer, a key witness in a murder trial, a two-fisted fast-talking detective, and a smart newspaper woman hot on The Big Story, then it's time to hold tight in your chair.

These, roughly, are the ingredients that have been mixed together to make "Sleepers West," the new 20th Century-Fox Michael Shayne detective film coming Thursday and Friday, January 22-23, to the Palace Theater.

Once again Lloyd Nolan crosses wisecracks with lovely Lynn Bari. Others featured in the cast, which was carefully selected by Executive Producer Sol M. Wurtzel, are Mary Beth Hughes, Edward Brophy, and Ben "Shadrach" Carter.

Wanted! Elephant hairs! This plea in a sedate London newspaper sounded like a secret code, but it was really the heartbroken cry of a distracted manufacturer. CHAPTER II keep an eye on them; and then she saw a man in the rigging, pointing in their direction; and when the next swell lifted them, she saw a boat in the water between them and the ship, the oars gliming in the sun, racing this way like a spider.

She told George: "Hold on to the grating. Don't try to climb on it. Just hold on." His fingers clutched the edge, and she released him and moved away out of his reach.

He said humbly: "I can't swim."

She laughed, herself easier now. "I noticed that! You'll learn. Everyone swims in the Islands. I could swim before I could walk, I think. The boat's near." His teeth were chattering. "You're not cold," she said. "That's just nerves. Don't worry, we could float like this for days."

She talked more and more swiftly, fighting to hold him up with words; for under her eyes strength visibly flowed out of him. Yet he must hold on a minute more, a minute more . . .

The boat reached them. The mate was in the stern; two sailors at the oars. "Take him first, Mr. Chase," she said quietly. "He's tiring."

They hauled George McAusland over the gunwale, and he collapsed in the bottom of the boat between the oarsmen and the mate. "I'll come in over the bow," she said.

The mate swung the boat and she caught the bow and with a deep kick of her feet thrust herself upward, swung one leg over the gunwale, clambered in. The mate said: "Here's my coat, Miss Doncaster."

When they came alongside, the rail was lined above them. A sailor gave Mary a hand up, cupping her foot in his palm, and Captain Keen reached down to help her. On deck, Mrs. Gale had a long coat to put around the girl.

Mrs. Gale said: "Run and change, Mary." But the girl stayed a moment to be sure George was all right. They were rigging a whip to hoist him aboard, since he was still too weak from the shock of his immersion to help himself. The mate and the sailors watched him gravely. Mary, understanding that he would not want her to see him thus, went below, leaving him to other hands.

George even when he was safe on deck was barely able to stand. John Gale said to him: "Well, it's lucky for you Miss Doncaster was aboard."

"Yes. I'd have drowned. Where is she?"

"In her cabin, changing."

"I want to thank her."

"Later. The first thing is dry clothes for you, and a noggin of rum. You're blue with cold. Come along."

George followed obediently; but he refused the rum. He shook with a teeth-chattering chill till he had rubbed himself dry and glowing. Then he lay down under blankets to warm himself, and slept till John Gale came to rouse him for supper.

"All right?" the older man asked. "I thought you were probably asleep, needed sleep more than anything."

"Yes, I'm fine. I'll be along."

But he was slow in dressing, dreading the necessity of meeting Mary and of thanking her. When he came out into the main cabin, the others except John Gale and the Captain had finished supper and were already on deck. "Gone to watch the sunset," the old minister explained. "It promised to be fine."

George was relieved at this postponement; but when he and John Gale presently went on deck—the sun was gone, the sky fading fast to the deep blue of night—he faced his duty. Mary was in the waist with Mrs. Gale. He went toward them, and they saw him coming, and Mrs. Gale asked:

"All right now?"

"Fine," he told her. She said some approving word and went aft, leaving him alone with Mary. He wished to ask Mrs. Gale to stay; turned to face Mary reluctantly. She smiled, understanding, and said quickly:

"It's all right. You needn't thank me."

"I want to," he told her, blurting out the words; and then he spoke the phrase he had decided was most suitable. "I owe you more than I can ever pay."

Mary smiled. "I'm glad you feel so much in debt to me. It will be fun to have you try to pay. Be very nice to me, won't you?" But then she relented, seeing his embarrassment, and said quickly: "It wasn't anything, really. I could have kept you afloat all day."

"I'm sorry you had to . . ." He hesitated. "Well, I mean . . . Well, I know how brave you were, how hard it was to do what you did."

Mary frowned a little, puzzled, and then suddenly understanding. "Oh, you mean because I took off a few petticoats?"

He insisted stubbornly: "I know what it must have meant to you."

She touched his hand. "You're sweet; but honestly, I didn't mind. I didn't even think of it. Naturally I couldn't swim in a lot of petticoats." And she said, faintly amused: "You know, Mr. McAusland, you'll have to learn to look at so many things differently on the Islands; to learn new ways."

"I hope instead of—learning their ways, I can teach them ours. Do you remember a lot about your childhood down here?"

She looked at him in a quick satisfaction. "I think that's the first question I ever heard you ask," she declared. "Yes, of course I do. After all, I've only been away eight or nine years."

"You seem glad to come back."

"Of course! I'm coming back to my home, to my father and mother! This is where I live, really. I just went away to school, you know. I lived with my aunt in New Bedford. Aunt Patty Hanline. Uncle Tom was away all the time; only came home twice. He's mate on the Venturer, Cap'n Corr's whaler."

George echoed: "A whaler?" He said with a strong distaste: "Corkran's told me stories about the whalers, the whaleships. They've ruined these islands."

"Whalers aren't so bad. New Bedford's full of them. The Venturer is a fine ship. I know Cap'n Carr. His sons are mates aboard her. I knew them both in New Bedford. Peter was in the same school with me; and Richard too, for a while, years ago. He went to sea as cabin boy first, and then came home and came to school for two years, and then went fourth mate with his father again." Her eyes were dancing, amused at his expression. "I thought Richard was pretty wonderful, and Peter too, of course. Richard was so shy he hardly looked at me, but I worshiped him. You know how little girls are."

"I'm afraid I don't know much about little girls."

She smiled. "Or big ones, either, do you, Mr. McAusland," she challenged; and then she told him quickly: "But maybe you'll see them. Richard and Peter, I mean. Cap'n Corr promised to put in at Gilead to see my father and mother on this voyage. Mother's Uncle Tom's sister. Maybe we'll find them at Gilead when we get there. I hope so."

He asked in curiously thick tones: "Why? Because you want to see your uncle again?"

"I want to see them all, of course," she said.

He said, after a moment, almost wistfully: "I've never known young men. My brothers were a lot older than I."

"I know," she assented softly. "You haven't known young women either, have you?"

"No."

She said, smiling in the darkness, as though he were a child: "I knew you wanted to be friendly with me, but you didn't quite know how."

"I want to be friendly with everyone!"

"But specially with me, a little, don't you?" she urged. "Only you're sort of afraid?"

"I don't think so!" he protested, half-resentful.

"Oh, but you are," she insisted. "You're afraid to do the things you want to do."

He swung toward her as though startled; but someone spoke behind them.

Suddenly George sneezed.

"You'd better go below, hadn't you?" she suggested. "You've taken cold."

He blew his nose. "I'm afraid I have." They went aft together. Mrs. Gale prescribed hot lemonade, but George protested that he was all right, till he sneezed again. Then he consented to go below.

During the days that followed, John Gale was pleased to see that having taken the plunge, George no longer avoided Mary. They were much together, as often forward as on the after deck. Under Corkran's instructions they practiced rope work and listened to his tall tales. Mary led him to talk of whaling; and sometimes Corkran told of bloody battles with Leviathan that made George's pulse pound, and sometimes he made them laugh together in a gleeful incredulity.

Lionizing the Lamb

By IRVIN S. COBB

P. T. BARNUM, at the outset of his career as a showman, originated the idea of the Happy Family, taking his cue from that prophecy of Holy Writ wherein it is stated that the lion and the lamb eventually shall lie down together.

The thing proved a sensation. On the opening day, following advertisements in the daily press, crowds flocked to Barnum's museum to stand in front of a cage wherein, with no bars to separate them, were displayed a lion, a tiger, and a panther, and in the midst of these a gentle lambkin, all four dwelling together in seeming amity. News of the marvelous wonder spread and the patronage increased by leaps and bounds. Nevertheless, Mr. Barnum appeared at times, worried.

When the spectacle was two weeks old a friend inquired of him how the Happy Family seemed to be getting along.

"Oh, fairly well," said the great showman. "I am going to make a permanent feature of it if only the supply of lambs holds out!"

AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

In spite of the severe storm, twelve Charlevoix County Triple-A farmer committeemen met with the County Committee, headed by Walter H. Henley, Chairman, on Saturday, January 10, at the Dilworth Hotel, in Boyne City.

The meeting was held for the purpose of preparing a survey report on the hay and feed grain and farm labor situation in this county. The Triple-A committeemen, through personal contacts and informational meetings have obtained a general knowledge of existing conditions and needs of their community which enabled them to submit an accurate report to the State U. S. D. A. Defense Board regarding hay and feed grain deficiencies and surpluses and seasonal farm labor needs for the entire county.

This information is of great importance in meeting 1942 production goals and will aid the Department of Agriculture in working out a plan to relieve the farm labor shortage this year. Similar reports likewise have been prepared in other counties of the state and nation by Triple-A committeemen.

During the afternoon meeting, Sabin Hooper, field supervisor for the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office of St. Paul, Minn., presented information to the committeemen concerning crop and feed loans available to farmers. Mr. Hooper pointed out that loans for the purchase of feed for livestock can be secured at all times during the year.

LANSING LETTER

fresh and the politicians in both camps are inclined to be a bit jittery.

The personnel of the legislature, which defied the governor at the regular session, is unchanged. There is no indication that the temper of the leaders of the opposition has undergone any definite change. The "show me" attitude is apparent in both houses on the part of at least some of the members, who will be alert for any semblance of an attempt to play politics in the special session.

At the same time there is strong evidence of the desire of Republican leaders to cooperate with the Governor to the fullest extent possible in the matter of wartime emergency legislation. Requests of the Governor, within that category, will be speedily granted. No one seems to doubt that. Further, Republican leaders may be depended upon to avoid any controversy, which may tangle up the defense program or stall quick and united action on Michigan's part toward meeting the national crisis. It is to their party's best interest that a Republican legislature goes along in that phase of bipartisan government.

Test at Hand

Governor Van Wagoner has stated that he does not contemplate injecting such issues as the appropriation of funds for civilian non-defense governmental activities into the special session picture. This does not preclude action on other matters, mutually agreed upon, however. It is here that the bi-partisan government idea may be put to another test.

"We would need a pretty clear understanding that there would be no opposition to any non-defense items brought into the special session," the Governor has been quoted as saying.

There has been increasing pressure upon the Governor from several of the state departments and commissions for additional funds, with which to operate for the remainder of the year. One such request comes from the Labor Mediation Board, which has been concededly under-financed from its inception. Most departmental budgets have been upset by salary increases ordered by the Civil Service Commission.

Some of these requests for funds may be considered if the executive office and the legislature can reach a mutual agreement. They may furnish the test as to whether or not bi-partisan government is more than a dream.

Defying Superstition

Can Governor "Pat" Van Wagoner defy a superstition and get away with it?

The Governor's "advisors" are said to have called his attention, with fear in their voices, to an old superstition of the Capitol that the governor who calls back the legislature for a special session pays with his job. The rumor is that the Governor paid some attention to those who begged him beware, but decided to risk his political neck, anyway. So the legislature will come back. A survey of gubernatorial history does not bear out the superstition and indicates that some governors, who went down in defeat after calling back the legislature, would have lost at the polls anyway.

Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald called back the legislature late in 1936, but he had already been defeated at the November election and convened the special session at the request of Governor-elect Frank Murphy to consider social security legislation.

Wartime necessity has chased away fear of the jinx from the "front" office.

Public Pressure

Sometimes, in the whirl of governmental procedure, John Q. Public rises up and takes over a function usually performed by special groups and interests. He puts pressure on government for something HE wants.

From the outside, it looks as though public pressure is being recognized in the matter of bi-partisan administration of the state's defense program. At any rate, public demand for some such arrangement may have something to do with action of the state's officials, responsible only to the electorate. And such public pressure is not unwelcome to the officials of the bi-partisan administrative board, composed of all the elective state officers, because it may remove some of the party pressure from their own necks.

The epaulettes and shoulder marks now worn by U. S. Naval Officers survive from olden days when fighting seamen wore metal plates on their shoulders to protect them from saber cuts.

period was in the neighborhood of 20 inches. There were two days without train service, rural mail deliveries were badly disrupted, Round lake has more ice than at any time in the past two years.

This is one war in which every American has an axis to grind.

Monday was just like a homecoming here. You met people you hadn't seen for some time—now that the storm is over.

Don't worry about your hands getting cold this winter—taxes will keep them in your pockets most of the time.

Some of these wise-cracking guys get my goat! Was minding my own business while waiting in the car for the children to get out of school a few days ago, when along comes "Bill" Fessenden and says: "You'll hit the jack-pot pretty quick, won't you?"

Now that Round lake is ice-covered and fish shanties have put in an appearance, a person should be able to get a mess of perch—if there were any perch. That perch are becoming more scarce every year is an undeniable fact. Perhaps those who blame this diminishing to the sewage disposal plant outlet into Round lake harbor may not be so screwy after all.

Running after women never hurt anybody—it is the catching them that does the damage.

Lack of pre-election rumblings wasn't the "lull before the storm" as some were led to believe. The fact only one contest will be on the ballot at the primary means one of two things—either citizens are satisfied with present officers, or else they just aren't interested at all. Between the weather and the war, our minds are kept off from politics, anyway.

Unless it would be curtailment in foods, fuel and clothing, rationing in war time effects more Americans that covering automobiles. The National Automobile Dealers' Association is responsible for statistics revealing there are 27 million owners of private cars in the United States and that every one of them uses his or her car in part, at least, for necessity driving. There are 48,495 United States communities, including 1,251 in Michigan, depending solely on motor vehicles for their transportation. They have no rail service. Farmers own 38% of all the passenger cars in the nation and the average farmers, with the exception of a few horse and buggy and buckboard patrons, are solely dependent on automobiles for transportation. Millions of Americans, especially those on farms and in small communities, suburban developments and remote industrial and defense plants, have no means of transportation but the motor car. While we realize all-out war requires all-out effort and personal sacrifice, loss of the automobile in this country presents a serious problem. All of us having confidence in the ability of our industrial executives to create a remedy, feel the critical situation will some how be kept in hand.

Charlevoix, it is understood, will lose another of its large pleasure yachts. The R. E. Olds yacht Reomar is being taken over by the U. S. Navy. Work of stripping the boat of furnishings is now underway under supervision of Capt. Alfred Brow. No doubt the yacht will be transferred from this port when navigation opens in the spring.

Will List All Male Residents Between Ages of 20 to 44

Instructions have been given to local draft boards on registering an estimated 435,000 Michigan men for selective service February 16, according to Col. E. M. Rosecrans, state selective service director.

Colonel Rosecrans said that with the possible exception of Wayne county local draft board personnel could handle the new registration for men between the ages of 20 and 44 with the aid of a few volunteers.

The registration was to be the third conducted in Michigan and those who registered previously did not have to sign up again.

FISHING FLEET HAS RESUMED OPERATION

Calm Weather Tuesday Ended 12-Day Tie-Up for Boats

The Charlevoix commercial fishing fleet, storm-bound here since January 1, resumed operations Tuesday.

Continued accumulation of snow ice and persistent low temperature had formed ice fields off the harbor, giving indication of an early tie-up until conditions changed over the week end.

The Willis Cross tug Dornbos, which left the harbor Friday, had to be assisted into port through heavy ice by coast guards Saturday. High winds balked attempts of several boats to lift nets Monday, but Tuesday the entire fleet was again in operation.

COLLECT OLD PLATES TO GET SCRAP METAL

Motorists Notified to Bring Plates In When Buying New

Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly has instructed his branch managers to ask local police to permit motorists to drive from their homes or garages and return with unattached automobile license plates when they buy 1942 plates to facilitate collection of the old plates for scrap iron.

Fenton E. Bulow, local branch manager, stated Sheriff Floyd Bens and Police Chief Chrecon Hess have copies of willingness to cooperate with the plan, but it is not, however, contemplated driving without new plates. Mr. Bulow further stated that auto owners having old plates, are requested to bring them to his office for disposal.

Kelly said that the prisons industries had arranged to collect old plates from his branch offices and take them to concentration points where scrap metal dealers would take over after making an acceptable bid.

William Burke, head of the prison industries, estimated that if all Michigan's 2,000,000 motor vehicle drivers turned in their old plates 1,500 to 1,800 tons of scrap would be available for the nation's defense stock pile. The budget office expected about 640 tons of old licenses to be turned in.

At the end of five weeks, the winner is sent a check for ten dollars, and to the runner-up goes a five-dollar check. These names are then eliminated for the next few weeks.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

At this time of year we are inclined to feel that there is very little we can do along the lines of gardening. However, there are many things to keep in mind, some of which follow:

In times of thaw, water the evergreens in the outdoor window boxes.

Remember that war-time gardening means gardening without waste.

Fuchsias, which have been resting, may be started into growth this month.

Hardwood ashes from the fireplace are valuable as fertilizer if stored away in a dry place and used after the ground opens in the spring.

It appears advisable to place seed orders early this year. Seeds left over from last year can be tested between moist blotters in a warm place.

Overwatering of the crab or Christmas cactus at this time will make the flower buds drop off. However, do not let the plant go dry.

Christmas plants will last longer if careful attention is given to heat. Most of them do not want too much light and water requirements.

When water collects in heavy drops in terrariums open the cover with a match and let the air circulate through to remove the excess moisture. Wipe the cover dry.

Primroses in the window garden need good drainage and plenty of water. Older plants will flower better over a longer period if they are not permitted to become too pot pound.

Branches of Christmas trees may be used as a mulch over roses, bulbs, rock gardens, perennial borders or cold frames. The boughs make a light airy mulch which is most desirable.

Check over bulbs and tubers now in storage to determine how they are keeping. Shriveling usually indicates the presence of too dry air, while rotting usually points to the need of better ventilation.

Be careful when removing snow from the branches of evergreens. As far as the upper branches are concerned, the sun usually does the job promptly and safely. Guard foundation plantings from assault by snow cascading from building roofs.

I am a candidate for nomination to the office of City Treasurer at the primary, Monday, February 16th. Your vote will be appreciated. Fred V. Tyler.—Adv.2t1

Charlevoix high school's Red Rnyders won Friday night from Gaylnrd by the closest possible margin—a one-point 26 to 25 victory—on Gaylord'a court.

It was Charlevoix's narrawest victory of the season and culminated a close struggle in which neither team had a safe margin at any time. The Rayders led 9 to 7 at the quarter, 16 to 13 nt the half, 20 to 19 at third intermission. Charlevoix maintained its slender one-point advantage as both teams scored four points in the finnl period. The Rayders defeated Gaylord by a 32 to 27 count in a previous engagement here.

Carey gave an outstanding performance, scoring 18 of Charlevoix's points. Gallagher and Rowe contributed 3 each, Stewart and Swanson 2 each. Three Gaylord players divided their team's scoring, Barnes with 7, Wenver and Goodrich with 6 each.

Formal proteat against a Wiaennsin proposal to allow return of small-mesh chub nets to Lake Michigan wna entered by the Michigan conservation commission at its January meeting here.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

When people can learn to disagree without being disagreeable, this'll be a better world to live in.

You've often heard, no doubt, of the genii who makes any wish come true for the asking. Perhaps it'll take a genii to get tires for the old bus before this war is over.

It is profoundly true that there is nothing permanent but change. Whatever is ahead we can be sure it will be different. We can't count on anything for long, even though time is measured by the short span of a human life. In my life I have lived through one world war and we are now in another. My calculations and foresight have proved wrong so often that I now try to live in the present hour. I know what brings me personal happiness and health and that is what I aim at.

When you reach in your jeans for maney ta buy a Defense Stamp or bond, remember this is ane fight that can be won with your hands in your pockets.

I can remember not so many years back when traveling men would say they could always tell they were in Charlevoix county because af the perfect condition af the highways in winter. Today you hear them say they can tell when they hit Charlevoix county because the highways are in such poor condition. There certainly must he a reason for such a radical change, and if the reason is because of internal strife in the road commission or its maintenance organization then it is time for a house cleaning.

And while on the subject of winter highway maintenance, want to state that you can not fully appreciate the good job Leo Allard and the city street department does in Charlevoix until yau visit some neighboring community.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Michigan's harhor towns are again fighting threats to their shipping. Attorney General Herbert J. Rushton has notified Secretary of War Stimson that Michigan proposes to join the fight against a new "grab" of water from the Great Lakes by the Chicago Sanitary district.

Chicago wants to increase its permitted flow of 1500 cubic feet per second of lake water through the Chicago Drainage canal to 10,000 cubic feet for the duration of the war. Following a long fight which went to the U. S. Supreme Court, Chicago is permitted, by the high tribunal, to divert a maximum of 1500 cubic feet every second from Lake Michigan.

Michigan's attorney general declares the Chicago plea of impairment of health has no merit, and that demand for more water is merely an attempt to nullify the court's order. Rushton insists that the diversion of more water will greatly impair Great Lakes navigation at a critical time when water-born commerce is an essential for the movement af defense material. He charges the Chicago Sanitary district would save $1,500,000 a year for itself, in wages by such an increase.

Shipping interests and commercial fishermen have consistently claimed that diversion of lake water, reduces water levels in harbors and on shoals to the danger of lives and property. Rushton says he considers it his duty to vigorously oppose any attempt to take more water from the lakes.

Plates for Tanks

Automobile drivers will hereafter be compelled to give up the sentimental custom of tacking their out-dated license plates on garage walls. Collection of old plates will salvage hundreds of tons of scrap far use in tanks, armored cars, guns and projectiles, in the opinion of Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly.

To accomplish this salvage, the state will designate depositories for the collection of old plates.

AT THE MOVIES

"Mr. and Mrs. Smith"

Coming back with a bang to high-speed mirth-making after their recent dramatic successes, Carole Lombard and Robert Montgomery are co-starred in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," coming January 28, 29, to the Pnlace Theater and hailed as the outstanding comedy offering of the season, and which teams the two favorites for the first time.

The story is particularly adapted to the fun-making talents of the two stars. It presents Montgomery as David Smith, a prosperous New York City attorney, and Miss Lombard as his wife of three years' stormy standing. Their frequent quarrels are automatically concluded by a mutual rule that both parties must remain in their bedroom until they have made up.

"Tuxedo Junction"

Carrot-red pigtails, and a broad, engaging grin, are part of the success secret of Republic's Sally Payne. Her tom-boyish type of humor hecame nationally famous when she was signed as a fixture in the Roy Rogers westerns, and now she joins another series—the Weaver Brothers and Elviry pictures at Republic, in which she plays a hoydenish hillbilly.

The first Weaver film in which she is so featured is "Tuxedo Junction," which comes to the Palace Theater for a run of two days starting January 28. With the Weaver Brothers and Elviry in top billing, the film also features Lorna Gray, Clayton Moore, Thurston Hall, Frankie Darro, Ken Lundy and Billy Benedict.

INFORMATION REGARDING INCOME TAX

The Revenue Act of 1941 provides a simplified method of computing income tax in the case of individuals whose gross income is derived wholly from salary, wages or other compensation for personal services, dividends, interest, rent, aanuities, or royalties, and does not exceed $3,000. A new Form 1040A has been provided for taxpayers who are entitled to and elect to use such method. A table on the reverse side of this Form shows the amount of tax on increasing amounts nf gross income nfter the proper allowance of $400 for each dependent, if any.

The tax under the simplified method is the same for each $25.00 block of gross income and the taxpayer need only ascertain in which block his gross income (less allowance for dependents) falls to determine his tax. A flat reduction of 10 per cent has been made in arriving at the nmount of tnx shnwn in tho table for deductions such as charitnble contributions and taxes paid, so that the tnxpayer who uses this method does not list these but gets an automntic deduction of 10 per cent.

Under the simplified method the status of a person on the last day of the taxable year is the governing factor in determining the exemption level ($750 for single persons and married persons not living with husbnnd or wife, and $1,500 for married persons living together) as well as the credit for dependents.

A husband nnd wife living together on the last day of the tnxable yenr may file separate returns on Form 1040A if the gross income of each is from the prescribed sources and does not exceed $3,000, or they may file a single joint return on that Form if their combined income is from the prescribed sources and does not exceed $3,000.

The use of the simplified method is optional with the taxpayer but once an election has been made for any year, it is irrevocable for that year. If a taxpayer files a return under tho simplified method for the taxable year he may not thereafter file a return under the general provisions of the law for that year. Conversely, if he files n return under the general provisions for any tnxable year, he may not thereafter file a return under the simplified method for that year. However, a new election is allowed for each succeeding taxable year.

COMMUNICATION

Northern Mich. San.
Gaylord, Michigan
Jan. 7, 1942

Dear Ken:

Knowing it will be practically impossible to personally answer all the many fine letters, cards and gifts from friends in and around Charlevoix, I am wondering if it might be possible to write or reach them through the Courier.

First of all let me say that this is a swell place to be—provided one MUST be here! All reports place this sanatorium ahead of any in the state and I am satisfied that I am getting the best care possible, under a fine staff of doctors and nurses.

My case is comparatively mild and I expect to be able to say farewell to this place before many months pass.

Naturally this is a stormy period for us and is something we did not include in our plans for this winter. Being an old member of the Polar Bears, I nm not unaccustomed to being behind, and it is with a great deal of confidence that we look to the future, with our many friends, knowing we eventually will be on the long end of the score.

Permit me to say this, too; that this dreaded disease strikes just as the Japs did at Pearl Harbor—without warning—usually winning the first round. For this reason I would like to say that for the protection of America's production line against TB, contributions are accepted the year around at the Michigan Tuberculosis Headquarters.

I sincerely appreciate all the kind sentiments expressed, the gifts sent, and particularly the kindness shown my family. I will also appreciate any letters from anybody, and in case somebody is over this way, visiting hours are from 3 to 5 p. m. every day.

Incidentally I can imagine now how the boys in the army feel when they receive the Courier—I feel the samo way.

Thanks, and I am
Sincerely yours,
Dean Davenport.

AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Due to the fact that the shipping of most of the hemp imported into this country from India has, practically, been stopped by the war activities in the western Pacific following the dastardly sneak attack on Pearl Harbor and other United States ports by the Japanese, there is great need for farmers to conserve their supply of burlap bags.

Of the small supply of hemp that still trickles in, the United States is taking two thirds for military purposes.

For thesn reasons the U. S. Department of Agriculture requests all haadlers of feed, beans and other materials shipped in bags to use care in unloading shipments. Use no honks, which might tear bags. Farmers are requested not to cut bags in npening them. Store them in a dry place free from rats and mice. Prices are up and bngs can be resold to dealers.

Come on farmers and city folk. This is one way wo can practice real conservation and help in the National Defense Program. One burlap bag filled with sand might save your son from a bullet.

Shooting a doe deer for camp this fall was just like "eating forbidden fruit," it seems, now that the law making it legal has been declared illegal. Don't make sense, does it?

Plans have been filed with the war department, Washington, D. C., to secure permission to close navigation until certain needed repairs can be made in the foundation and mechanism of the swing bringe over the channel on Bridge street. This bridge has been in constant us for 15 years and expert opinion gives it another ton year lease of life, provided the necessary repairs are made without delay. (The patient recovered quickly and extended its lease indefinitely.)

Because of the shortage of coal, the Pere Marquette train will run north on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and south the following days.

Al Weber, who has been editor of the Cheboygan Observer (then the Democrat) since Lake Michigan was a mud-puddle, makes this sage observation in regard to the one-buck and no-doe hunting law: "The amateur hunter who is unable to distinguish a man from a deer, surely will not be able to tell a deer with horns from one without horns". How too true. Or from a cow.

H. O. Mohrmann, assistant cashier of the Charlevoix County Bank, has accepted a position with the state banking department that will necessitate his taking up a permanent residence at Lansing in the very near future. The vacancy at the bank will be filled by Robert Bridge, who has been a member of the organization for the past three years.

The "wreckers" have been busy on Ben Brown's store front this week getting ready to replace the old wooden construction with nice new brick.

Atwood: A. W. Hartwell is enthusiastic over the new steam automobile just invented. Wonder if he intends to trade his Metz for one of them?

Ellsworth: The Ellsworth school house, built in 1912, was completely destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon. This is the second school house burned in the village in the last six years.

H. L. Oldham has asked for an appraisal of the city's light and power properties and a franchise to erect an up-to-date plant for the production of electricity sufficient for the city's present and future needs.

Mrs. John S. Baker, a Charlevoix resident for 33 years, and owner of the Beach Hotel, died January 13 at Miami, Fla. Mrs. Baker had built the Beach Hotel up to one of the region's leading summer hotels, from its humble beginning on April 20, 1899. On that date ground was broken for the building, which was completed and formally opened July 2. The hotel contained but fifteen rooms and one bath; a desk in one corner of the dining room (seating capacity 72) served as an office. She also owned and managed Baker's Inn, which in 1922 was the Hotel Charlevoix and is now East Park.

John O'Neill, 74, one of Charlevoix's pioneers, died last Wednesday at his residence on Dixon avenue. A native of Ireland, he had lived in Charlevoix since 1882, and operated a large fishing business.

Born, Wednesday, January 11, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Willis of Petoskey avenue, a girl named Betty Margaret.

Miss Helen Webster, clerk in Bergeon's drygoods store, is taking a few weeks' vacation.

Born Sunday, January 15, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coatta, Jr., a son named Edward Frank.

George W. Weaver has been reappointed for his second term as postmaster.

The Hime Pearl barber shop has been moved from the cigar store in the County Bank building to the store building owned and occupied by L. P. Adams.

The annual ice harvest on Lake Charlevoix is now in full swing.

Mrs. Lydia Alcock, a resident of Charlevoix since 1888, died Sunday after a long period of failing health.

Edgar Smith, owner and manager of "Dinty Moore's" cigar store, sold out last week to Clarence Bartlett and Vaughn Orvis.

Bob Morse left Monday for Lansing, where he will remain while the legislature is in session.

The new 1927 model improved Chevrolet coach, on display in the salesrooms of Block & Simmons, features the new bullet-type lamps. These cars could doubtless now be converted into tanks, with such a good beginning.

Charlevoix high school's basketeers scored an 11 to 9 victory over Harbor Springs on Harbor's court last Friday night, their first win in five starts. Joe Smith, Norman Ance, and Vic McSauby scored. Lyle Ance played in Emerald Chew's forward position, and Joe Arvilla subbed for Howard Davenport late in the game.

Staging a great rally in the second half, the Polar Bears overcame the hitherto undefeated Cheboygan Merchants by a 29 to 26 count at the gym Thursday evening. Bill Supernaw was high scorer with 10 points. Dean Davenport, Floyd Brown, Ray Kipke, George Higman, Glenroy Ikens and Vic Smith played for the Bears, and Pete Hallett was referee.

St. James: Miss Dolores Gillespie and Emil L. Pischner were united in marriage Wednesday afternoon at the home of Fr. F. McLaughlin. They will make their home in Cheboygan.

Eveline: Joe Doakes (not his real name, of course) and wife were re-married January 6th. He was seen plowing his field January 13th. That is something unusual for this time of year. (But Joe was a rather unconventional fellow, it appears).

Thomas Belding, well known old-time fiddler, who has been broadcasting from radio station WOOD at Grand Rapids during the past two months, has returned to Charlevoix to spend the balance of the winter with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Belding.

John W. Johnson of Portland, Oregon, is making a visit here with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Johnson, also his uncle, John Robinson. Mr. Johnson, formerly a Charlevoix resident, left for the west in 1902 and this is his first visit to his former home since that time.

* THE HOME FRONT *

This country is learning fast how you must go about fighting a world war. We are learning that it isn't enough to be united in our feeling about the war but that we must be united in action too. And that we must be realistic—prepared for a long hard pull.

Nothing better shows the need for realism than the fact that a lot of people thought tire rationing wasn't going to last. A lot of people thought that because we might be ready to turn out synthetic rubber at the rate of 200,000 tons a year in 18 months or so tire rationing regulations could be relaxed immediately.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson killed that idea pronto. He called it "a false hope" and said it is entirely possible that every pound of synthetic rubber that can be produced will be needed for military use.

We will do well to avoid all easy optimism all the trends indicate that things may get a lot tougher for the consumer before they get better. But things will get tougher for Hitler and Hirohito too.

As for unity in action we took a long step toward that on the broad and all-important war production front when the President established the War Production Board with Donald M. Nelson as its chairman. That action cleared the way for concentrated attack under a single leadership on the job of converting our huge national industrial plants from the uses of peace to the work of war. And that's how we'll beat the Axis.

The past few days have shown that Americans can unite on action in other spheres too. The Office of Production Management's campaign to salvage waste paper and scrap metal and rags and old rubber now has been organized in 16 states and OPM is calling on the operators of the Nation's 1,700,000 retail stores to help. Now that we're in this war and faced with critical shortages of materials needed to make weapons and equipment nothing is waste—nothing should be thrown away.

All that comes under the general head of conservation. There's another side to this conservation business too ut which we will all probably have to become experts. That's nothing more than taking care of things—from garden hose to tractors. That's just keeping the old bus running and being careful of its tires because it may be a long long while before you can get another helping.

Speaking of tractors the OPA probably has headed off a threatened rise in farm equipment prices. The increase was to have been based on increases slapped on original equipment tires by the four major rubber companies. The rubber companies withdrew the increases at OPA's request.

So far as the consumer is concerned the prescription looks like "The mixture as before" but in much larger doses. The great diversion dam of war needs already has impounded more of the things to which we are accustomed than we realize. Many of us won't realize it until present stocks in the hands of dealers—often these stocks are large—have been exhausted. But then we'll see the war reflected on the druggist's counter and in the clothing store and many other places beside the auto dealer's.

Another thing we can expect is conservation through substitution and simplification. Substitution merely means the use of some other material for a material needed for military purposes. The Nazis who've had to do a lot more of it than we probably will call such products of substitution "Ersatz" simplification means stripping a machine or a household appliance of every bit of unnecessary material.

A good example of simplification is the "Victory Model" bicycle at which OPM officials looked the other day. It weighs only 34 pounds as against a 55 pound average for last year's models. America's bike manufacturers will turn out 750,000 of these machines as against 1,827,000 of the larger models made in 1941. That's save 30,000 tons of steel and a lot of nickel and copper. The tires are smaller and mostly reclaimed rubber.

Consumers will have to make sacrifices but the OPA is making every effort to see they don't have to pay excessive prices for the things they need . . . sugar prices shouldn't rise until present stocks in the hands of retailers are exhausted and then only fractionally if at all . . . there's no shortage of any foodstuff in sight although sometimes people create temporary local shortages by "runs" based on false rumor . . . the OPM's order allocating cellophane is going to make a lot of things look a lot different . . . it'll change the packaging of cosmetics and soaps and razor blades and jigsaw puzzles and punch boards . . . cigarettes will still come done up in cellophane where the manufacturer has eliminated the use of tin foil . . . there's been a rise of ten cents a thousand in the price ceiling above the so-called "ten cent brands" of cigarettes but they shouldn't cost you any more over the counter . . . the retail price has been on that basis for some while . . . the office of civilian defense has enlisted the nation's 1,600,000 Boy Scouts for the duration . . . they'll assist civil defense units in emergencies . . . the OCD has launched a Victory Garden Program . . . Idea is more and larger vegetable gardens in every community.

THOSE AUTO STICKERS

Before February 1 every automobile and motorbont owner must secure from the postoffice a use-tax sticker. The sticker costs $2.09 and is good until July 1. A week or two beforu thnt date he will be required tu obtain another sticker —this time the cost will be $5— which will be good for the ensuing 12 months.

The money paid out for the stickers is, of course, a federal tax, one made necessary hy the war effort. In thnt it is a use tax, it does not differ from the annunl stnte license. There is one important difference, however, and that is the new federal tax is not intended to be n permanent assessment. For that reason the government has established no elnborate tax-collecting system to enforce it. Instead, every motorist is charged with the responsibility of buying his sticker and seeing to it thnt it is properly displayed on the windshield or inside on the cowl.

Becnuse there will be less than two weeks in which to purchase the stickers, it would be well for everyone who owns a cnr to stop at the postoffice at the first opportunity if he is to avoid the last-minute rush which seems a part of every taxpaying event.

RUBBER FOR WAR

The $400,000,000 synthetic rubber program announced by Loan Administrator Jesse Jones, is good news. Use of the hutadiene process will produce, Jones says, an estimnted 400,000 tons of synthetic rubber by mid-1943.

Military requirements are suggested by pertinent figures. Last year 700,000 tons of crude rubber were used in all manufactures, about 175,000 tons of it going into defense production. What war consumption will be hereafter is anybody's gness. But rubber is basic to the construction of 60,000 planes in 1942 and 125,000 in 1943; 45,000 tanks in 1942 and 75,000 in 1943; 8,000,000 tons of shipping in 1942 and 10,000,000 in 1943. And these were only the three categories recently mentioned by Mr. Roosevelt. Tbere are many others.

Synthetics from tha butadiena —crude oil base—process will afford, therefore, only a partial answer to our war needs. Other aources, including a 600,000 stockpile will make up the required difference.

The principle source of great satisfaction is, of course, that government and the rubber industry hava moved so promptly and in such nccord to meet the rubber crisis. A model for action in other fields appears to have been set.

WHAT ABOUT CREDIT?

In the war years ahead the average American will live in strict simplicity in order to save money to be given up in various forms of taxation to finance the war. He will cheerfully accept the dislocation of his normal way of living caused by the new national obligations.

But how about his old obligations? How many people in this region are purchasing their homes on contracts or mortgages? A goodly share. How many are paving for their automobiles on the installment plan? A lot of them.

The average American lives pretty close to bis income and when his uctual living expenses, plus his insurance, payments on the homo and car ure cared for, he has very little left. In most cases his insurunce and his home represent his snvings. Now, with heavy incume taxes facing him, what is he going to sucrifice? Either his home or his insurnnce or his car must go hy the board.

It would uppear that the government must step in and seo that additionul time is given on old obligations. The fellow who planned to have his home paid for in two or three years must be able to refinance it so he can keep it nnd still meet his financial obligations to his nation,

Unless something of thia sort is done, thousands and thousands of partly pnid-for homes will either be forfeited or go on the market nt ridiculously low figures. Insurance, carried fur many years, will huve to be tossed overboard. The result will be a decidedly unhappy and restless public, just what the government does not want in this crisis.

The average Americnn will pay cheerfully, down to his last avnilable penny, to carry his end of the load. But when equities in home, insurance and automobiles go, cheerfulness and enthusiastic patriotism go with them.

CLARIFY ROLE RED CROSS IN DEFENSE

Chapters, Defense Councils Strive to Avoid Duplication

Clurification of the policy governing the relationship of the American Red Cross chapters to state and local defense councils in meeting the emergency needs of the nation is contained in an announcement by Chairman Norman H. Davis.

In making the announcement, Chairman Davis pointed out that the Red Cross has made available all of its services as needed by the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense and state and local defense councils.

"It is the duty of every Red Cross chnpter and branch to aid in the most efficient marshalling of the community's resources," he snid. "Duplication should be avoided in these services, and training courses required in civilinn defense activities should be utilized to the fullest extent.

"Services required in civilian defense activities will be made available by chapters to defense councils in accordance with the policies I am enumerating. Chapters will cooperate to the fullest extent, and during tbe period of emergency will operate subject to the authority of the defense councils or appropriate governmental officials. The Red Cross at all times will maintain administrative and financinl control of its immediate operations."

Red Cross chnpters, Chairman Davis declared, must be prepared to function in the fnllowing fields in full cooperation with all public and private agencies: disaster relief training and service; first aid training; nurses' aides training and service, and Red Cross home nursing training.

The Red Cross chaptera ara to assist the defense councils in the following fields on a basis of mutual agreements as to the lines of responsibility: disaster relief and nutrition aidea.

All chapters are to make available to defense councils the services of the following: Volunteer Special Service units as the need arises; Motor Corps, Production Corps, Staff Assistance Corps, Canteen Corps and Canteen Aides, and Hospital and Recreation Corps.

In their Services to the Armed Forces tha Red Cross chapters are fully responsible for the following activities: information and claims, communications and reports, and consultation on personal and family problems.

The functions of Red Cross chapters adjacent to Army posts and Naval stations include: Hospital and Recreation Corps; Motor Corps (service originating on military reservations); Production Corps and Staff Assistance Corps, and participation in Red Cross Camp and Hospital Service Councils.

HARRY WEBSTER, Charlevoix Rt. 1

DISGUISE

By R. H. WILKINSON

(Associated Newspapers) WNU Service.

"THE trouble," said Toby Stark, "with your modern criminal is his lack of confidence in himself. The fact that he is forever afraid of being detected, the fact that he usually works under cover of darkness—a time when burglars are expected to work—all combine to bring about his apprehension by men who can work in the open."

Toby paused and lighted a cigarette. 'A half dozen of us were grouped on the veranda of the Ridgeley Club and for a mnment after Toby finished talking there was a sdence. Toby is inclined to be loquacfous and at times extremely boring. There are few subjects on which he can't talk knowingly and, mucb to our regret, lengthily.

"You talk like an experienced hand at the game," said Lloyd Barnard presently, and grinned.

Toby laughed. "I'd like to wager I could pull off a crime and get away with it. Employing my own methods, too."

Lloyd puffed at his pipe. "Why not? I'll take your wager."

Toby alapped hia knce. "Donel I have twenty-five dollars that says I can break into a house in broad daylight, fill a traveling bag with silver, and get away with it."

Watching Lloyd closely I distinctly saw a twinkle come into his eyes and immediately disappear again. He said, "Twenty-five suits me, Toby. But suppose you get caught?"

"I won't. But in case there's a slip-up, you boys will have to fix it up with the police. I'll tell you what. Leo Chapman is up in the mountains thia week and with his family. His place on the drive is empty. That's the house I can break into."

Again Lloyd's eyes twinkled, and I knew a feeling of excitement. Unless the signs lied, Lloyd had in mind some sort of plan whereby Toby was to get a jolt.

Toby waa in jail, getting hia jolt, and none of us were very sorry.

A moment later my excitement subsided. Toby bad also seen tha twinkle in Lloyd's eyes. "O. K." he grinned. "I know you live out that way Lloyd, and you can fix it up with the cop on the beat if you like. Only in that case, I'll collect the twenty-five."

"There'll be no fixing," said Lloyd. And Toby nodded.

One or two of the group wbo had listened in on the conversation were a little doubtful. In the first place, they didn't think Leo Chapman would like the idea, and, in the second place, they thought we'd bave a pretty bard time explaining the situation to the police in case Toby were caugbt.

But Toby was adamant. In fact, ba was no cocksure of being able to commit his crime and getting away with it, that we all agreed to let him try, hoping secretly that he'd get caught and taugbt a lesson.

The day set for Toby's attempt at crime was Sunday. We all agreed to stay away from the Chapman place, giving him a clear field to work in. When the Chapmans got bome we would accompany Toby to their house, make sure be bad actually stolen some of their property and witness the payment of the wager.

At seven o'clock that Sunday night Lloyd Barnard dropped into the club and found four of the half dozen of us who ware in on the plan talking together. Barnard was grinning.

"Well, I win the bet. Toby didn't get away with it."

"Didn't get awny with it! What happened? Where la he now?"

"Rivers, the cop on the beat, met him as he came out of Leo's front door. Toby's down at headquarters."

Earl Colby leaped to his feet. "Good heavens! We'd better go down and get him out. This thing bas gone far enough!"

Lloyd sat down and pulled out bis pipe. "Go ahead if you want to, but it won't do any good. Toby, I'm afraid is in for a good long stay. And I'm inclined to think this will take some of the conceit out of him."

Early, who had had little taste for this business in the first place, displayed no little alarm. "But look here, Lloyd, that isn't playing the game quite fairly. You agreed to fix it up with the police, you know."

Lloyd seemed not at all put out. "Sure, I agreed to fix it up, and I tried. I just came from there, but they wouldn't believe me. There's another factor entered the case."

"Another factor! Good heavens, Lloyd, tell us what's happened!"

Lloyd lighted his pipe and smiled plessantly. "Well, to begin with, Toby did a pretty good job, according to his own telling and according to Rivers, the cop. About three o'clock this afternoon Toby drove up in front of Leo's place as smart as you please, took a traveling bag from the rumble seat of his car and strode up the walk. Acting quite as if he owned the place ha removed a bunch of keys from his pocket—skeletons, of course—unlocked the front door and stepped inside.

"Rivers saw him do this and didn't get the least bit suspicious. Rivers told me about it himself. What happened after Toby got inside the house was told me by the culprit through the bars of his cell."

Lloyd paused and chuckled. "After Toby got inside the house," he went on, "he put a pair of gloves on, and fitted a mask to his face. The mask was just a precaution in case Leo had left any servants in the house, and because he liked the idea of wearing one.

"However, the mask proved unnecessary. The house was empty. Toby filled his traveling bag unmolested. And a half hour later he stepped through the front door, first wiping off the knob and removing his gloves and swung jauntily down tha walk again, whistling merrily.

"At this very moment Rivers rounded a corner on his return trip, espied Toby coming down the walk and waited for him at the gate."

Lloyd paused again. "Well?" Earl asked.

"Well," Lloyd echoed. "Rivers arrested Toby for breaking and entering. And upon looking into tha traveling bag, the charge was substantiated."

"But how," I asked, "did Rivers know?"

"How? Why, Toby had forgotten to remove his mask! Except for that, the crime would undoubtedly have been successful."

For a moment there was silence. Thea Earl said, "But the new factor? You said something about another factor in the case?"

Lloyd nodded. "That happened later. Toby explained to the police all about the joke and the bet he'd made with me. They called me on the phone and I came down and confirmed his story. However, in order to make sure everything was as Toby had said, the police called Leo Chapman at his place up in tha mountains — and learned he wasn't there at all. He'd gone on an extended motor trip to Canada and wouldn't be back for a week.

"The police were willing to believe our stories, but they weren't willing to let Toby go until Leo returned. There was too much evidence against him. Furthermore, they advised me that unless I made myself scarce around the vicinity of tha station house, they'd be inclined to lock me up with him as an accomplice."

Lloyd ended his tale, and there was again that twinkle in his eye. I wanted to ask him if he hadn't known that Leo was going to take that Canada trip. And I wanted to ask him also why he hadn't offered to go bail for Toby, or if, instead, he had bought the sergeant a box of cigars and told him to keep Toby in storage for a week.

But I didn't. Toby was in jail, getting his jolt, and none of us were very sorry.

Eyes Are Vital Controls Of Many Body Activities

More than 70 per cent of the muscular activity of the human body results from impulses received from tha eyes, according to the Better Vision Institute. At work and at play the eyes play a dominant role, and our muscular actions are influenced strongly by the impressions received by the eyes.

A survey of 20 common industrial and office occupations has shown that the eyes are in serious work three-quarters of the time. Improper lighting conditions or uncorrected visual defects tend to impair the efficiency of workers by fatiguing the eyes. Experiments bave demonstrated that visual fatigue slows up body activity and is conducive to errors.

"If an office or a factory worker gets 'three o'clock' fatigue it would be a good idea to check up on bis eyes," says the Institute. "There are millions of adult persons in the United States having relatively minor visual defects that are uncorrected. Such eyes may not cause headaches but they frequently cause 'three o'clock fatigue.' During the last hour or two of the working day tha body of a worker may be tired because his eyes unassisted cannot work an eight-hour day."

Jumping Beans Stimulate Crickets

When thousands of crickets got sulky and refused to perform before the camera in a cricket plague scene, a sack of energetic jumping beans, with a lot of pitultary, was rushed by plane from Mexico City. Actual pictures of crickets were painted on the beans which then were mixed with the live crickets—which thought that it was just simply cricket and caught on right quickly. Anyway, the jumping proclivities of the oomph beans kept the crickets on the move, which kept the movie people happy.

But, as might be expected, the crickets finally carried the whole thing to extreme. They invaded the movie camp in such hordes they literally chased the players off location, spattered up the camera lens, and got into the sound equipment.

CARBURETOR CHECK SAVES ON GASOLINE

Automobile Club Gives Valuable Hints to Motorists

Do you waste gasoline? Is your car delivering peak mileage?

These are highly important questions now that new passenger cars are tabu and when the possibility of u gasnline shortage—or even rationing—is in prospect.

Automobile Club of Michigan reports that in a recent nationwide check of 24,406 passenger cars it was found that 62.2 per cent of the cars wasted 10 per cent of their fuel, 29.7 per cent of them wasted 20 per cent of the gasoline, and the remainder wasted, from 20 per cent to well nbove 30 per cent.

Eddie Shumaker, chief of the Club's Road Service, said:

"A simple method of checking gasoline mileage is to fill your tank full and note the mileage on your speedometer. Next time you fill the tank note the amount of gasoline required to fill the tank and then note the mileage on the speedometer. Divide your miles by the gallons of gnsoline used and you have your miles-per-gallon.

"Recently we checked a car in which mileage had dropped from 20 miles per gallon to 12 miles nfter some 750 miles of driving over rough roads. We found the float valve levers in the carburetor bent, which raised the gasoline level sufficiently to cause the 40 per cent increase in fuel consumption.

"It required fifteen minutes of n mechanic's time to correct the situntion and get the car back to its normal economical operntion."

* * * * * * * * * *
* THIS WEEK *
* IN WASHINGTON *
* From Your Congressman *
* Fred Bradley *
* 11th District, Michigaa *
* * * * * * * * * *

The first question visitors in Washington today ask us is "What happened at Pearl Harbor?" or, "Why do we not send aid to General MacArthur?". The answer to both questions is — 'becauso we have been asleep'; possibly we are just nwakening to the full realization of our responsibilities for the enormous task ahead of us.

The report of Senator Truman'a Committee for the Investigation of the National Defense Program disclosed a disgusting as well as alarming degree of inefficiency, incompetency and grosa extravagance in the prosecution of our war production to date with a correspondingly poor record of tangible quality and quantity production of fighting equipment of all kinds. With but one exception — the Maritime Commission — every one of our too numerous procurement and production organizations cama in for criticism and censure by the Truman Committee. What is the fundamental reason for this alarming situation? The answer—politics, too much politics.

One of the powers of the Executive is not specifically mentioned in the Constitution, but Mr. Roosevelt referred to it last week when in discussing the Senate farm provisions of the proposed Price Control Bill, by which Secretary of Agriculture Wickard would have a veto power over farm price ceilings set by Leon Henderson, the President allowed himself to be quoted directly and said—"I can fire either one of them". There is need for us to remind the President of that fnct, not for him to remind us. Loyalty to one's friends is a most commendable trait. Loyalty to one'a country is n more commendable trait.

It has long been recognized that the Spoils System is contemporary with American politics. It has been but natural, therefore, throughout the years for the President to appoint to positions of responsibility in the peacetime management of our government, those who have been his political friends and supporters. Such men are seldom selected because of their particular business ability, but rather for their vote getting ability at election time. In America, we have preferred to live under that type of government in peacetime, hut when the very existence of our nntion is threatened by the imminence of war, or war itself, political consideration shnuld have been and must be forgotten now, and it is hoped will soon he forgotten in Washington and thnt the Preaident will remember that he has the power to fire. He hos not exercised that power in any degree commensurate with the seriousness of the present situation.

The recent drastic orders rationing new automobiles, tires nnd tubes has brought forcibly to the minds of all of us the fact that a wartime national existence differa tremendously from that of peacetime. We all recognize that war production takes priority over all else. Likewise we recognize that when shortages of commodities occur, we all must pull in our belts and sacrifice regardless of how indispensable we may have considered those commodities before. In exactly the same measure must the government itself recognize that it, too, must be prepared to pull in its belt, that war production alone has priority in government as well as in our individual lives and hence it, too, must be expected to sacrifice in exactly the same proportion as the individual citizens who in our Republic make up that government. Thus must we all recognize that in wartime many of our governmental peacetime activities must be drastically curtailed, if not completely abandoned.

It is plain, therefore, that there exists every justification to expect either an immediate firing of tens of thousands of political appointees in such pencetime departments, or at least their transfer into those branches of the government dealing solely with war production. The only move that has been made to date is to transfer en bloc these huge government bureaus and their present personnel out of Washington to other metropolitan centers, in order, to make room for a much greater influx of new political appointees. Meunwhile, the press propagandists of each of these various peacetime bureaus seem to lie awake nights seizing upon every possible example to portray where their department has played some part in the defense production picture in the past, in order, to justify increased appropriations for their future existence. More and more alarming becomes the evidence here in Washington, that while we do not hesitate—when an excuse of necessity is offered —to threaten the very existence of every small businessman in this country, the throwing out of work of millions of the employees of those firms, still the bureaucrats continue to contrive ways of keeping their bureaucracy intact and unaffected by the restrictions placed on the private citizen.

The President's action in appointing Donald Nelson to supreme command of the war production effort, together with the blanket authority he was given, meets with universal approval here in Washington. Mr. Nelson has the ability and he can, and will, do the job and gain the utmost respect of the American people, if he is permitted to du it — and abuve all is not hamstrung by the god of political expediency.

He Was Well Satisfied

"You seem pretty well satisfied with yourself?" a friend said to his neighbor the other day, and got this reply: "I am."

"I used to earry my money around with me. Sometimes had it hid in the house. I had insuranee papers, deeds and other valuable doeuments and no safe plaee to keep them. It worried me. Finally I got to doing business with the bank. Now my money is safe on deposit and my papers are in a deposit box there. It relieves me of a lot of worry. Why shouldn't I feel satisfied?"

LANSING LETTER

Drivers buying new licenses will be asked to remove their old ones and turn them in at the branch offices.

Discarded plates, dating back over many years, which have been religiously saved as a sort of curious family heritage to posterity, are being asked for to give our fighting men a break.

What About Schools?

Michigan schoolmen are a bit worried about what is going to happen to the schools under wartime conditions. Realizing that state government cannot hope to cope with the crisis in school financing and meeting the needs of boards of education, educators are looking to the federal government for help.

Territory adjacent to industrial areas, where defense plants are operating are finding the need for new school housing most serious. If a proposed Michigan school project is approved by the federal authorities a total of $41,247,104 will be needed for school building expansion and new construction.

Rural education problems are so increased by the threatened tire shortage that Superintendent of Public Instruction Elliott has asked Michigan educators to consider the task of getting 22,000 rural students to school.

Farming for Freedom

Michigan farmers should have a better idea of where they appear in the defense picture when they go back home from East Lansing after Farmers Week February 2 to 6, at Michigan State College. Agricultural Dean E. L. Anthony has announced that the theme for the 27th Annual Farmers' Week will be "Farming for Freedom."

Speakers who will tell farmers how they can help in the fight against the destruction of the America idea of self-government, will include M. Clifford Townsend, director of agricultural relations, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and Col. Harold Furlong, director of the State Council of Defense. Edgar A. Guest, Michigan poet, will be an inspirational speaker on one of the main programs.

Dean Anthony says the programs this year will stress poultry, dairy and meat products and more efficient family nutrition.

New Constitution?

An important question of state government, which must be answered by the voters next November, has been over-shadowed by the war crisis and other issues of more or less political complexion.

That is the proposal to revise Michigan's constitution.

A similar proposal was submitted in 1926 and turned down by the voters 285,000 to 119,000. The need for revision has been argued sporadically by various interests in certain sections of the state, but the question has not come to the voters since its turndown 16 years ago.

Justice George E. Bushnell of the state supreme court is chairman of a study commission of 32 members appointed by Gov. Van Wagoner. Twelve sub-committees will be assigned to study specific sections of the present 33-year old constitution.

If the revision proposal is approved by the voters in November, a constitutional convention commission must be elected at the next spring election to do the revision job. The Governor's study group may recommend complete or partial revision, or some specific changes, or leave it to the voters to decide whether any change at all is needed.

The present constitution was adopted by the voters in November 1008.

Changed But Twice

It is interesting to note that the people of Michigan have changed their constitution but twice in 107 years. The original 1835 constitution lasted 15 years, until 1850.

The state then operated 59 years, until 1909, under the basic law adopted ten years before the Civil War. The constitution adopted in 1909 is still operative after 33 years of service. It took the 06 delegates to the last constitutional convention from October 1907 until March 1008 to frame the new constitution. It was approved by the voters in November 1008 by a vote of 244,705 to 130,783.

Constitutional conventions were called by the legislature in 1867 and again in 1873, but revisions recommended in both cases were rejected by the voters. The 1867 attempted change lost 71,733 to 110,582. The second attempt in 1873 was rejected 39,285 to 124,-034.

Wariness, in past years on the part of Michigan citizens is indicated in the unsuccessful attempts to tamper with the state constitution. Whether that attitude still prevails remains to be demonstrated. Advocates for the new constitution have two hurdles to leap —the referendum relative to calling a constitutional convention in November, and the final approval of revisions, if made, by that convention.

War Jitters

Some folks, afflicted with war jitters, are still suffering from the shock of Japanese treachery at Pearl Harbor. They expect everything devilish from the little yellow man, from hideous poisoning to the destruction of whole families at the home hearths.

Some weeks ago certain sections of the country were warned against powdered glass in Japanese canned goods, mostly fish foods.

In Detroit recently, a woman arrived excitedly at police headquarters with a Japanese "mystery rug", woven in bright colors and picturing the Japanese sacred mountain. She told police that when she walked on it she could see flames and clouds of smoke. Lieut. Frank Richards tried tromping it and told his detectives to take it away. He said he could see small bright spots like flames but no smoke and that he wanted no part of the thing.

Police detectives decided to have the thing analyzed to find out if the material had been saturated with an inflammable element, intended to set fire to American homes.

The escape for Americans, of course, is to refuse to become jittery by having nothing to do with Japanese canned foods or materials.

The Strumpet Sea

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

CHAPTER II

They sighted the tip of Gilead's highest peak one day as the sea cut the sun's disk in half. At dawn they were close aboard, or seemed to be, although still ten or twelve miles distant.

Mary was with Captain Keen, and George joined them and asked a question; and Mary said:

"We'll come to a big bay presently, with room for a hundred ships. It runs deep into the island, over two miles, and there's a small island in the mouth of the bay, so there are really two ways in. The bay narrows all the way to the beach at the inner end. You'll see!" Her eyes were happy with anticipation. "Father and Mother will come out to meet us," she predicted.

"Will they be keeping a lookout?"

"Oh no, but someone will see us." She pointed ahead. "That's the entrance, Cap'n Keen. You can't see it yet, but that rock that looks like a hill with no trees on it is the island in the mouth of the bay."

The Captain asked: "We go in south of it, don't we?"

"Whichever's easiest, according to the wind. There's deep water everywhere, even close in to shore. The best holding ground is about a mile this side of the beach."

Captain Keen nodded. Mary went forward, George with her; and she pointed out to him things familiar to her eyes, which his could not yet perceive.

"There aren't any houses anywhere in sight," he said.

"They're in among the trees, in the shade," she told him. "People keep out of the sun down here." A faint trouble showed in her eyes. "I don't know why no canoes come off. They must have seen us long ago."

But a moment later she cried, relieved: "Oh, there they come!" Captain Keen and the others joined them in the bow, and Mary borrowed the Captain's glass to look for her father and mother.

"There's Jarambo," she said. She gave the glass to George. "Look," she said. "That old man in the first canoe. He worships my father, goes everywhere with him, like a dog."

Captain Keen spoke to the mate. She was close-hauled, the wind light. He said quietly:

"Square your fore and main yards, Mr. Obese. Smartly, now."

The mate shouted orders; men swarmed to their tasks; and presently the cable slid out through the hawse, men standing by. Mary moved back to the waist while the old man in the canoe drew alongside; and she was white now with formless fears. She called something to Jarambo in his own tongue; but instead of answering, he dropped his eyes. There was something terrifying in his silence.

A moment later, still without speech, he swung himself aboard. Jarambo produced a folded bit of paper and offered it to Mary.

She took it; she looked at Jarambo imploringly. Then her dry eyes raced along the lines, and the color drained out of her cheeks. Old John Gale came quick beside her, and she gave him the bit of paper, shaking her head wretchedly. He read it aloud, slowly.

"My dear Daughter,

"I thought I could wait for you, but since your mother died I am lonely and tired. I cannot wait any longer. I have nothing more to do except leave you my love and my blessing, and draw up my feet like good old Jacob and go home.

"Your father,
"Ephraim Doncaster."

John Gale read the letter and George McAusland said, not understanding: "Gone home? Didn't he know Mary was coming?"

John Gale said: "Yes, gone home. Ephraim is dead."

CHAPTER III

After she had read her father's letter, Mary turned to Mrs. Gale and clung to the older woman and was suddenly like a child weeping at a hurt it cannot understand. Mrs. Gale led her below. George wished to follow them. An overpowering sympathy and tenderness filled him. Mary in her sudden bitter grief seemed small and defenseless and in need, and he felt himself strong and wished to strengthen her. But John Gale, watching him, said:

"Let her weep, George. She'll be better then." He suggested: "You and I might go ashore, see the Island."

George agreed.

George McAusland looked around him at the clustering crowd which welcomed them as loving children welcome a returning father, and he thought with a sort of reverence: This is what the first missionaries found. These are the heathen. Yet even in that first moment a doubtful reprobation filled him. Jarambo leading them, they moved away along a broad beaten path while men and women and children of every age trooped happily about them.

McAusland said unensily: "Mary's father hasn't taught them to wear many clothes."

"Ephraim was a trouble to the Board in some ways," John Gale admitted. "He refused to teach all the things they thought important; yet he accomplished more than most missionaries do. He worked less by precept than by example. I've heard his house is a model of what island houses should be; neat, secure, clean. I'm anxious to see it, perhaps to get some ideas to improve my own."

They moved on, many following; and a little way beyond a pool, they came to the house in which Mary's father and mother had lived.

McAusland saw the house with a quick pride in his race. It was built of stones, set on a sort of platform of basalt blocks five or six feet high, with a wide, thatch-shaded veranda all around. A fence of poles bound together with vines enclosed a neatly tended garden in front; and when they went indoors George saw everywhere evidences of proud and loving care. John Gale said understandingly: "These people have kept it like a temple, since Ephraim died." Jarambo began to give an account of his stewardship, and since he and John Gale spoke in the island tongue, which George did not understand, the young man turned aside. He saw a wide doorway opening at the rear of the main central room, and stepped out and found himself in what might have been a pulpit, with a lectern of stone, facing a rising slope of ground like a small amphitheater under the palms. Then John Gale beside him said quietly: "Ephraim preached to them here."

"Had he no church?"

"He thought it suitable to worship out of doors."

That night on the ship a grave question was discussed. Mrs. Gale and the old minister, George McAusland and Joseph Neargood and Captain Keen talked over the replacing of Ephraim in the cabin after supper. Mary sat with them; but she was very quiet, and she seemed small, as though grief had gone out of her and left her empty. John Gale stated the problem to Captain Keen.

"Someone ought to stay here," he said. "Jarambo tells me that a schooner lay in the lagoon across the island for a while, and the natives aboard her dived for shell till bad weather drove the schooner away. But I judge they found pearls, and that means they'll come back, this year, or next, or the year afterward. Ephraim's people need someone."

Captain Keen nodded. "We'll let the Board know. I can't put back to Honolulu, but we'll speak the first sail we sight, send word."

Mrs. Gale suggested another problem. "What is Mary to do? Go on with us?"

No one answered. Then Joseph Neargood, without emphasis, began to tell them some things he had heard from Jarambo. He spoke of Mary's father and mother, and of their work here and of their deaths. The cabin grew quiet while they listened. When he was done, Mary said:

"Thank you, Joseph." She smiled in a faint fashion, almost apologetic. "I think I'm beginning to be all right again," she decided. "I was scared at first, like a child."

She spoke to the Marquesan. "But Joseph, you make me see that Father is more alive than ever now. He's alive in all their hearts on the island." She said steadily: "I shall never think of him—or of Mother—as dead again."

Captain Keen cleared his throat. Then Joseph Neargood said to old John Gale:

"I have thought, till someone better can come, I might stay here with these people."

They discussed this suggestion for a while; but George only listened.

McAusland was the first to leave the cabin. He went on deck, stood alone by the after rail with stars close above his head in the velvet blackness of the tropic night. Was he fit to take up the work old Ephraim Doncaster had laid down? Was he brave enough to undertake the task—which Joseph Neargood was brave enough to face so humbly?

This was a very lonely man, this George McAusland. He had been lonely all his life.

Tonight that loneliness was bitter on him. For the first time he understood that he was untested. It was one thing to be lonely; it was another to be able to stand alone.

He went below at last to lie in torment all that night, to rise with burning eyes, sick for the sleep that had refused to come.

At the cabin table for their midday meal, Mary Doncaster told them she had decided her personal problem. "I asked Jarambo," she said. "He says the Venturer hasn't touched here yet." She explained to Captain Keen: "She's a whaler; and my Uncle Tom Hanline is mate aboard her, and my cousin Tommy is cabin boy. When they sailed from New Bedford, Uncle Tom promised they'd put in here on the way home. So I'll wait here for them, go home with him." She added after a moment: "I might even stay on here after that; but at least I want to stay a while, in my father's house, with the people who were mine when I was a little girl."

"I'll stay with Joseph," she said. "Joseph can help them; and I can live in our house, and perhaps help him a little, too."

"I don't like that business of shell in the lagoon." Captain Keen reminded them. "If those men found pearls, they'll be black, and pearlers are a hard crew."

"I'm not afraid," Mary insisted. "No one could find me unless I chose. Remember, I was a child here. I know all the hidden trails."

"Joseph couldn't protect you," John Gale pointed out. "They wouldn't respect him." He looked at the Marquesan apologetically. "You understand, my son, I hold you high; but they would not."

The Marquesan nodded simply.

George McAusland felt his hands clench on his knees. There was burning in him now something reckless of all reason. To think that Mary was to be left here alone with a brown-skinned man for her protector filled him with a passion beyond controlling. His nails bit his palms; and he rose abruptly, stalked toward the companion, and went on deck. He went forward, stood by the rail, staring off across the water toward the shores so incredibly green that rose steeply to the tips of the mountains shimmering in the sun. There was a thumping in his throat that would not be still.

Corkran spoke at his shoulder. "A fine island, and fine people, Reverence," he said. "No one's spoiled 'em. The young lady's father, the missionary that was here, he must have been a sensible lot."

George spoke without thought. "She's going to stay here."

"Now if I was in the missionary line, myself, Reverence," the sailor remarked, "and if I was looking for some heathen to convert, I'd ask nothing better myself than to tackle this lot here, with the young lady to help." He glanced at the man beside him, saw the jaw muscles knotted, saw George swallow hard. "Yes, Reverence," he declared, "I'd say to myself, 'Tis no work for a brown-skinned man, this; so I'll stay. The heathen need me, so they do.'"

"I want to, Corkran," he said miserably. "I want to. But I don't know whether I could do the work. Alone."

"A fine island, and fine people, Reverence."

Corkran nodded. "If it was me, I'd be thinking a wife would make it easier," he agreed. "I'd be thinking of marrying. Someone." He added calmly: "The young lady, say."

"We certainly couldn't stay here alone together without being married," George reflected, half to himself.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Diet of Expectant Mother

The development of the child before birth depends to a large extent on the mother's food intake. A diet that is lacking in proper quantity and quality may be reflected in the poor health of both child and mother. The most essential food is protein, and if this is not being taken in adequate amounts trouble invariably results.

There are seven essentials in the diet of the expectant mother. They are: sufficient water intake; proteins — egg, meat, milk and cheese—to rebuild the body tissues; fats to furnish heat and energy; carbohydrates or starches for fuel; minerals to insure good bones, teeth, blood and resistance to disease; iodine, in some areas, to prevent the formation of goiter in mother and child; and the several vitamins or body regulators.

Of the list, the last should be given especial attention. Mild vitamin deficiency is extremely common during pregnancy. Its chief signs are burning of the feet, heaviness and tenderness of the extremities, ease of fatigue, loss of appetite, constipation and, sometimes, nervousness.

Vitamin A is necessary for proper growth, vision, a healthy skin and internal structures. About 4,000 units daily are required for the average adult but this should be doubled during pregnancy and infancy. A special effort should be made to consume fairly large quantities of the green vegetables, sweet potatoes, carrots, corn, squash, peaches, egg yolks, cream and cheese.

Vitamin B is perhaps the most valuable of all the vitamins and is best obtained in sea foods, lean pork, milk and all dairy products, liver, peanut butter and yeast.

Vitamin C, where present in insufficient quantities in the diet, causes mental sluggishness, weakness, soreness of the gums, fatigue, joint pains and anemia. The best sources of this substance are the citrus fruits and tomatoes.

Vitamin D, which protects infants from rickets, is no less essential for the expectant mother. Lack of the vitamin may mean loss of calcium from the bones. Common complaints, when this substance is absent from the diet, include irritability, profuse sweating, low back pain, and stiffness of the legs. The baby may be born with evidences of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin deficiency. Foods rich in Vitamin D are egg yolk, fish, liver, herring, canned salmon and cod-liver oil, which should be taken routinely, especially during the last months of pregnancy.

No particular attention should be given to supplying other vitamins, such as Vitamin E and Vitamin K as these are associated in sufficient quantities with the other vitamins.

The diet of the pregnant woman should be varied and generous. If the appetite fails, the doctor may prescribe vitamins, minerals and proteins in medicinal or concentrated form. It is helpful to the doctor if his patient will maintain a "food diary" over the period of a week or longer, that he may know the kind and amounts of food consumed and offer suggestions for improving the diet.

Death solves the problems of the world's fattest woman. 815-pound Ruth Pontico won't be a circus headliner anymore—but her passing saved her a lot of discomfort and inconvenience. Read about her in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

"PLOWING IN" a new cable line. These huge machines bury several miles of telephone cable a day.

Cables for America's Battle

★ IN THE past year, while the nation was preparing for the present struggle, Michigan Bell spent $28,000,000 largely to meet the need for increased telephone service.

★ Part of that total went into new buildings, additions and new central office equipment. But a large and important share was buried in the ground—in the form of telephone cable. 448,000 miles of new telephone wire were used in the cables placed by Michigan Bell in 1941—enough wire to go more than 18 times around the earth!

★ Hundreds of miles of new cable bring telephone service to military bases and munitions plants. Other hundreds supply the swiftly growing districts of defense workers' homes. As long as the necessary materials can be obtained, your Telephone Company will do its level best to provide good telephone service for all who need it.

SHOT AT RANDOM

You can't keep your mouth and your mind open at the same time.

A fiery tempered business man is reported to have written the following letter:

"Dear Sir: My stenographer, being a lady, cannot type what I think of you. Being a gentleman, I cannot think it. You, being neither, will understand what I mean. Your truly."

What a contrast in weather conditions a week can bring! The worst winter storm in years is followed by three successive days of thaw, snow settles almost unbelievable, fish hants break up the ice in Round lake harbor and you're right back where you started from. Haven't heard any kicks, though.

The effect of tire rationing is becoming apparent. Saw a car this week with the unusual combination of one snow tread and one regular tread in front. It's anything to keep 'em running nowadays.

Women never tire of redecorating rooms or reforming men.

They say it's a good thing for everybody to laugh in these days of wartime seriousness, so just to put you in the mood, how about this one: "They laughed when I came in with my shorts on, but when I sat down they split."

Charlevoixans in recent years have become accustomed to the exploits of Keith Carey in basketball. Last Wednesday night the former local high school star scored 25 points for Alma College in a game with Central Michigan College at Mt. Pleasant. His season's total for six games is the greatest ever accummulated in an equal number of games by any former Alma player. Last year he was high scorer in the M.I.A.A. and it looks like he's going to repeat the performance. It's a good thing, too, that he doesn't use his teeth to play basketball, because he lost two in the Mt. Pleasant tilt, we understand.

And speaking about casualties, Clinton "Dick" Cooper, who, under the new defense set-up at the postoffice, heads the police committee, hasn't been on the job since a mishap during performance of duties the first day he took over policing. Looks like they need somebody to police the police.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

It has not been many months since the house plants were brot in and, yet, I have noticed that some ivies and other plants are showing yellow leaves, especially along the older stems and near the bases of the plants. Most of the trouble is probably due to a reduction in the amount of light available. Watering may have something to do with it, too. In some of the homes it is altogether possible the plants may be getting too much water. At any rate the injury is almost always superficial. The plants do condition themselves to living indoors and while that may be true as far as the life of the plant is concerned losing too many leaves does not make the plant very pretty.

There is not much beauty to an English ivy whose stems are bare except for a few leaves at the tips, but, you know, the way to avoid such a condition seems to be to give the plant plenty of light and not too much heat at this time of year.

Of course some of the trouble may come from the make-up of the plant itself. It is wise to avoid coarse-growing ivies, the ones with big leaves. The English ivy has dozens of varieties and for home decoration one should stick to one of the forms with small leaves and free-branching not-too-vigorous stems. In fact, some of the difficulty can be avoided if one uses philodendrons, instead of English ivy, in places where the light is dim.

In all places then, and in all seasons, flowers expand their light and soul-like wings,

RED CROSS ACTS UNDER JAP FIRE

PREPARED FOR PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Relief Set-up Works Smoothly When Enemy Bombs Hit in Hawaii, Philippines

While war rages thousands of miles away in the western Pacific area, residents of Charlevoix are being asked to dig deep in their pockets for $700 to give the American Red Cross for their enormous war relief fund.

With hostilities yet so remote from our own city, many people may find it hard to realize the immediate need for such a fund. The following eyewitness account of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Sunday, December 7, may give some idea of how quickly the Red Cross has sprung into action on our battlefronts, and why President Roosevelt called for a fifty million dollar war relief fund the minute the United States entered the war.

This account of the war's first engagement is given by Walter Wesselius, director of China relief for the American Red Cross during the past year, who watched the attacks on the Hawaiian naval base from the porch of a Honolulu hospital, where he was convalescing from a serious illness.

When the Japanese bombs shattered the early morning peace of that Sunday in Hawaii, Red Cross Motor Corps and Canteen Corps went into action immediately and a prearranged plan for evacuation of civilians functioned without a hitch. Immediate evacuation of 3,000 people was essential. By three o'clock Monday morning this was an accomplished fact.

Upon two hours' notice, fourteen nurses were supplied by the Hawaiian chapter to care for the wounded on the first refugee ship to steam eastward to San Francisco. Red Cross volunteer workers helped keep up morale of passengers on that ship. Christmas day toys and candy were provided for the children. When the boat landed in San Francisco December 26, the local Red Cross chapter was on hand to arrange for transportation and care of the refugees, and are now prepared to care for all war victims who arrive. In Honolulu, Red Cross first aid stations opened up at short notice after the bombing.

Similar scenes took place in Manila, capital of the Philippine Islands, where approximately 120,000 evacuees from war areas in those islands are receiving aid from the Philippine Red Cross. Already the American Red Cross has made more than $300,000 of its funds available to the Philippine Red Cross. Three shipments of relief food supplies, originally consigned to China, were diverted to the Philippines in the first two weeks of war.

KIWANIS NOTES

Two meetings of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club have been held in the lunch room of the high school building, a feature being a dinner pail of food secured from the cooking establishments of members' homes. The usual price for a dinner was paid on each occasion, the surplus from the first meeting going as a Red Cross donation in addition to twice the usual contribution from the Club treasury.

At the first meeting Ebb Warren of Traverse City presented a talk and film showing the effective 24-hour per day schedule maintained by officers of the conservation department. It was shown that although a careful check is made of infractions of the law, most of the time is devoted to an attempt to educate and help the public in emergency and ordinary cases.

In the program for this week Mr. de Willo of the National Program Service, Des Moines, Iowa, presented several numbers on a special type concertina. Mr. de Willo was on a booking tour for his company so was able to be present. A program from the same organization, the Kilty Trumpeters, had appeared at a public school assembly in the afternoon.

Mr. de Willo's numbers were followed by a film secured through the efforts of Dr. McMillan. This depicted the story that underlies attempts to give to all the advantages that are available in a modern hospital.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB GIVES TIRE AIDS

Various Methods Used In Re-Treading Are Explained

In this period of wide discussion of re-capping and re-treading of passenger car tires few car owners know just what is meant by the terms.

Automobile Club of Michigan explains that these are three distinct methods of reconditioning the used tire: 1 — Top-capping. 2—Full re-capping. 3—Retreading. And, the club points out, shortage of rubber may materially curtail full retreading.

In top-capping and full-recapping, new rubber is cemented to the remaining rubber on the tire's tread, and then the new rubber is given a final strip of uniformly thick rubber known as a "camel-back." It is this "camel-back" which provides the new road surfacing for the tire.

Retreading means that most of the remaining rubber on the tread and sidewalls of the used tire is buffed off and new rubber attached, the new rubber extending over the side-walls as well as the tread.

Fleet operators for years have used reconditioned tires and have found that a reconditioned tire will deliver about 80 per cent of the tire's original mileage, and that a second reconditioning will provide about 57 per cent of additional service—or that a tire twice reconditioned will deliver about two and one-third times its original mileage.

Two things the Club emphasizes:

1—Have your tires reconditioned by a reliable tire concern.

2—Reconditioned tires must be driven at reasonable speeds, probably below 50 miles an hour.

LUMBER OPERATIONS PROVIDE DEER FEED

Animals Leave Swamp Yards to Browse on New Cuttings

Upper peninsula logging operations, stimulated by the wartime demand for timber, are incidentally providing deer with food and luring them from swamp areas, according to conservation department game men.

Deer are now seen regularly away from their usual winter feeding areas in swamps, attracted by the food provided in the tops of fallen trees. This extra food is a considerable aid to deer, which in some places will exhause the normal winter food supply within their limited browsing reach above ground. Their absence from the swamps assists heavily browsed cedar to become reestablished.

The number of captive deer now being used in browse plot studies at the Cusino wildlife experiment station north of here will be increased soon, as more extensive livetrapping is now underway.

INDEPENDENT GROCERS GIVE DEFENSE STAMPS

Gift 10c Stamp With Each $10 Purchase Is Adopted

Michigan independent grocers and meat dealers are sponsoring a defense stamp gift plan for their customers. Through the plan, Michigan's thousands of independent food merchants will voluntarily give to the public one per cent of their gross sales in defense stamps.

Under the plan, customers of each participating store are being furnished with folders, bearing the name of the store, in which the amounts of purchases of groceries and meats will be recorded. With each $10.00 in purchases, the grocer will give the customer a ten cent defense stamp.

The program is being sponsored by the Michigan Retail Grocers and Meat Dealers Association.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Farm Machinery Check-up Meeting Set for January 29th

Defense on the farm should begin now in the farm tool sheds, according to Charlevoix county's U. S. D. A. Agricultural Defense Board and not next summer in the harvest fields.

In carrying out this theory County Agricultural Agent B. C. Mellencamp has already mailed to farmers, implement dealers, and others, yellow check sheets designed to provide individual farmers with a complete list of tool repairs which will be needed to produce the bumper crops planned for this year. This machinery meeting will be held in the machinery warehouse, Charlevoix Cooperative Company, on Thursday, January 29th, beginning promptly at 10:00 a. m. County farmers desirous of learning more of the check list inventory method and also of machinery repairs are being invited and urged to attend this machinery repair and adjustment demonstration.

Olen Wanty, Michigan State College specialist, will conduct the demonstration, which will feature the repair and adjustment of different kinds of farm machinery.

All information leads us to think that it will be much more difficult for farmers to obtain new machinery or repairs for old machinery because of the national steel shortages for non-defense work and because most of the country's manufacturing plants are engaged in war production. A six weeks delay now isn't hard to take but even a day delay in the spring and summer months might prove fatal to those large crops that Charlevoix county farmers are planning to produce in 1942. Don't forget to mark down the date of Thursday, January 29th at 10:00 a. m., in the machinery warehouse, Charlevoix Co-operative Company. Let's meet together and get everything set for the new year. Now's the time!

16 WAR MEASURES MAOE STATE LAW

LEGISLATURE ENDED SPECIAL SESSION THURSDAY

Over Five Million Dollars Allowed for Defense Program; Meet Again February 9th

The legislature adjourned its special session Thursday, enacting 16 of the 17 bills proposed by Governor Van Wagoner to constitute Michigan's war-time program.

The governor, in closing hours of the session, submitted a special message informing the lawmakers he would call them back into session February 9 to consider liberalizing the unemployment compensation act to meet problems presented by enforced idleness of thousands of men whose places of employment have closed for conversion into munitions plants.

Appropriations aggregating $5,000,000 to finance Michigan's general war preparedness program were included for the following:

Appropriate $637,000 to the state police for man and equip the agency on a war-time basis.

Authorize the governor, thru county sheriffs to order blackouts in time of emergency, and set up rules of conduct for motorists and pedestrians during blackouts, air raids, or raid alarms.

Place the Michigan state troops on the same military basis—for the war emergency only—as the national guard.

Impose double the usual penalties on the theft of rationed goods.

Authorize the state government to pay compensation to firemen injured or killed in line of duty outside the municipality where they are regularly employed.

Deputize guards on state property, and set up defense areas about properties and services vital to defense in which travel would be restricted.

PRAYER SERVICE AT METHODIST CHURCH

Everyone is invited to attend and join in prayer for our country and for the men in its service, and for themselves and their problems.

Rev. L. H. Hagle of the Methodist church will be in charge of the hour of prayer and meditation next Sunday, which will begin with a quarter-hour of quiet music, followed by a hymn by the congregation, scripture reading, prayer, meditation, concluding with prayer.

NINTH ANNUAL PARTY AT THE ARGONNE, JAN. 30

Support Solicited in Nation-Wide Campaign for Funds to Fight Infantile Paralysis

Charlevoix county's ninth annual President's Birthday celebration will be held Friday evening, January 30th, at The Argonne, near Charlevoix, and at Cal's Tavern, located in the peninsula near East Jordan.

Joseph F. Bugai, of East Jordan, county chairman, and Leo W. Powers, local chairman, state that most gratifying response has been given by this city and other communities toward efforts to organize the campaign. The "march of dimes" campaign, another means of raising funds, has also met with good support.

Funds derived from the President's Ball will be divided equally, 50% remaining in the county for work of the Charlevoix County Infantile Paralysis Chapter, and 50% going to the national organization supporting the Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and research work of the national organization.

W. J. Kerns, owner of The Argonne, announces that special features have been arranged for the entertainment of those attending the party. Wayne Belding's orchestra will furnish music.

Seek Assistance Local Citizens In Campaign to Aid Defense

Charlevoix Boy Scouts have gathered between 8 and 10 ton of waste paper since their campaign to aid defense opened several weeks ago.

Under the direction of Scoutmaster "Pat" Hawley, members of the local Scout troop utilize Wednesday evening for baling at The Ion garage donated by the Charlevoix Oil Co. Saturday is collection day. Answering a request for assistance, several Kiwanis members have aided the boys to bale paper Wednesday evenings.

Further assistance would be greatly appreciated, Mr. Hawley has stated. The need of another baler is urgent, also donation of trucks for collection of paper Saturdays. Collections have fallen behind somewhat due to lack of time and required equipment, but all who have signified they have old paper have been listed and will be reached as quickly as possible.

Those willing to give assistance to the Scouts are requested to contact Mr. Hawley, as the campaign will be continued indefinitely.

SIX ELK SLAYERS GIVEN HEAVY FINES

Total of $700 Assessed In Circuit Court at Gaylord

Fines totalling $650 and costs of $50 assessed in circuit court this week on six hunters who shot elk during deer season marked the successful conclusion of a determined effort by conservation officers to protect the state's elk herd.

In three of the cases the evidence was developed from small clues by ballistics studies, made by the conservation officers with the aid of the state police laboratory. All six hunters pleaded guilty.

One hundred dollar fines were paid by George Wills of Flint, Dell Mitchell, Jr., and Wilford Krick of Greenville, and Anson Carpenter of Central Lake. Roger Mills of St. Clair Shores and J. Scott McLinn of Detroit paid $125 fines. All defendants paid $10 costs except Mitchell and Krick, who were arraigned on a joint warrant.

During the deer season, violators killed 10 elk from the Michigan herd, which is the largest elk herd east of the Rockies. Special patrols in the Pigeon River district apprehended the six violators.

RED CROSS FUNO "OVER THE TOP"

GRATIFYING SUPPORT OF CITIZENS IN DRIVE

Total Returns Not Yet Known; City Joins Others in Giving More Than Asked

With returns still coming in from canvassers, Charlevoix's quota for the Red Cross war relief fund this week went "over the top" to the tune of $817.53. The amount to be raised was $700.

Expressing thanks to all who joined in success of the drive, the local chapter credited this fine record to the splendid co-operation of religious and fraternal groups and women's clubs, the city council's contribution, generous donations from summer residents, and to the whole-hearted support of Charlevoix people in this urgent appeal for funds to carry on war work in behalf of our own country.

Following so soon after the 25th annual Roll Call, it seemed a great task to re-canvass the city and ask the people to give again, but the response in almost every home was quick and hearty. Benefit parties given by various organizations gave impetus to the drive. Many summer people "split" their donations, giving some to their home chapter and sending part to Charlevoix. Thus the city joined hundreds of other communities throughout the country in raising more than their set quota.

Red Cross dollars are transformed into a tangible means of protecting the American way of life, as the great machinery of its operations is geared into a vital part of our military and civilian defenses. On the job with the

RATIONING OF SUGAR STARTS IN FEBRUARY

Estimate Limit Three-Quarters Pound Person Each Week

Price Administrator Leon Henderson, estimated Monday that initial sugar sale under proposed rationing to be started in a few weeks, may not amount to more than three-quarters pound per week per person.

Henderson declared that sugar consumption this year should average nearly one pound per person per week, but he pointed out that supplies must be provided for those who eat in hotels, restaurants and institutions, as well as at home.

In addition, Henderson said, some sugar will have to be held back to meet unusual demands for home canning during the summer months and for the winter holidays.

Ration books, to be provided so that the regulations can be enforced, will be distributed next month.

GREASE VERY HARMFUL TO AUTO TIRES

Motorists Warned Not to Let Car Stand on Greasy Floor

Grease is a deadly enemy of rubber. Keep your garage floor free of spilled grease or oil, Automobile Club of Michigan technicians warn, if you'd get the maximum life from your tires. They say:

"If you let your tires stand in accumulated oil or grease you're inviting trouble. Occasional scrubbing of the garage floor is cheap insurance against deterioration."

The technicians also recommend that the motor be kept free of grease as protection for ignition wires and radiator hose. An occasional steam-bath by your garage will do the trick.

"Remember that your ignition wires are rubber-coated and that your hose is of rubber, and in time you may find it difficult, if not impossible, to obtain replacements."

Charlevoix still leads in the total bond sale, with $32,250. Stamp sales to date come to $1,038.50. Boyne City is in second place for bonds, with $26,149; and has sold $3,423.45 in stamps. East Jordan bond sales are $20,125; while stamp sales are $602.75.

TOOK FOURTH CONFERENCE GAME BY 43 TO 10 COUNT

Boyne City Comes Here Friday Night for Feature Contest of Basketball Season

Charlevoix high school's Red Rayders hung up their fourth conference victory Friday night, winning from East Jordan by a lopsided 43-to-10 count.

Fans looked for a hard battle after East Jordan netted two goals for a 4-to-point lead in the early moments and emerged from the first quarter with a 5 to 1 margin. The advantage was short-lived, however, for Charlevoix went on to dominate play during the remaining periods.

The Rayders piled up 14 points while holding East Jordan scoreless in the second quarter for an 18 to 5 lead at the half, added 17 points to the loser's single free toss in the third period. Charlevoix scored 8 points to East Jordan's 4 in the final stanza.

Carl Rowe and Don Carey shared Charlevoix's scoring, the former with 13 and the latter with 11 points. Stewart contributed 4, Gallagher 3, Swanson 2, Lusk and Vratinina 1 each. Coach Kipke used 10 men during the contest.

Charlevoix meets Boyne City on the home hardwood Friday night in one of the feature games of the season. The natural rivalry between the two schools always results in a hard-fought battle.

URGE MOTORISTS GET NEW PLATES

DEADLINE FOR 1941 LICENSES FEBRUARY 28

Half-Year Plates Went on Sale Monday; Numerous Changes to Save Defense Metals

With the deadline for 1941 automobile license plates on February 28, a little more than four weeks away, Fenton R. Bulow, manager of the local branch office of the secretary of state, urges motorists to obtain new plates.

Half-year plate for all types of motor vehicles went on sale Monday. As a means of saving metal for defense needs, windshield stickers are being used in place of plates on commercial, farm commercial, and trailers and buses. The sticker represents a continuation of the 1941 license, in event vehicle were not licensed last year, the owner, applying for the 1942 licen will be issued 1941 plates together with the sticker for 1942.

The half-year passenger car and trailer license plates for 1942 are, like the full year plates, smaller in size, representing another saving of vital metal. They bear the expiration date in lettering and, at expiration of the half year period, are renewed by purchase of a strip bearing lettering "1942", which is fitted over the expiration date on the half-year plate. Through this means, issuance of two sets of plates as in the past is eliminated. There is no variance in color between the full and half-year plates.

It is pointed out that there is no extension of time limit, set by legislative act, for motorists to obtain new licenses. Motorists are subject to prosecution for violation of the law.

Motorists are again reminded to bring in old license plates. Legal provision has been made for them to drive to the license bureau in back home with plates detached.

LOCAL BANKS WILL HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Invite Public to Visit Institutions Evening February 5

The important role Michigan banks are playing in the National Defense program is due to be portrayed through "Know Your Bank Week", February 2-7, State Banking Commissioner Maurice Eveland announced in Lansing.

The program is sponsored by the Michigan Bankers Association of which Earl W. Dehaan of Allegan is president, and arrangements have been made for most banks in the state to hold open house for the general public on the evening of Thursday, February 5.

The Charlevoix County State and Charlevoix State Savings banks are joining banks throughout the state in taking time off during the week to present their case to the public through meetings of clubs and service organizations and will hold "open house" between the hours of 7 and 9 p. m. Thursday, February 5, giving the public an opportunity to visit the institutions.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Acting to stem an epidemic of rabies, the Petoskey city council has adopted and is enforcing a new dog quarantine ordinance. From its effective date until the quarantine is lifted by the city health officer, dog owners face stiff fines and even jail sentences for violation of the ordinance. While this action on the part of Petoskey officials is commendable, the lamentable feature of the matter is that official and public indifference did not break down until human welfare was endangered. Other cities, Charlevoix included, can learn a lesson from Petoskey's misfortune. The law provides, in no uncertain manner, means for control of dogs permitted to run at large, unlicensed dogs, etc. Any community that does not enforce these laws, is neglecting the public's interests.

Albert Harwood, Norwood township farmer, did his bit for defense last week. He had been saving automobile license plates for many years and, upon hearing that Uncle Sam needed the metal in them to produce implements of war, turned them over Friday to Fenton R. Bulow, manager of the local Secretary of State office. There were about 48 plates, all sizes, colors, patterns and shapes, representing years from 1915 to 1940, inclusive. Mr. Harwood set a good example for others to follow.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Michigan's working population will see the sunrise most of the year, in the opinion of R. Glen Dunn, deputy attorney general.

Despite the fact that this state is officially on Eastern Standard time, it is very probable that Michigan clocks will be set one hour ahead, 2 a. m., Monday, February 9, when Daylight Savings time, established by an act of congress, becomes effective.

Only by an act of the state legislature can Michigan time remain as it is. At the present time there is no indication that the legislature will take such action.

The new Daylight Savings act, intended to save electricity and step up war materials production, requires that clocks all over the country be set ahead one hour. President Roosevelt has signed the bill and the law becomes effective 30 days after the signing.

In Odd Position

Michigan is in unique position on the time question.

With most of the state normally in the Central Standard time zone—west of the 75th meridian—an act of the legislature has made Eastern Standard time the legal time in the entire state. The change came as a result of several years experience with Summer Daylight Savings time, following World War I. Although some agricultural districts objected to tampering with the clocks, the folks in most cities liked the extra hour of daylight in the evening and the legislature listened to the demand for adoption of "fast" time. Detroit and a small portion of the Thumb section fell within the Eastern zone, but all the rest of the state was officially on Central time, and all legal matters of the state were so based.

It required a special act of the legislature to put the clocks legally ahead on the "fast" time. Since then only a small section of the Upper Peninsula, adjacent to the Wisconsin border, have followed a "slow" time schedule. Even there

Local Cherry Growers Attend District Meeting at Traverse City

Last week Wednesday a delegation of four growers accompanied by County Agent Mellencamp, from this county, attended a district cherry growers meeting at Traverse City. The activities and wonderful results of the New York Cherry Growers Association were explained to a large audience of over 200 growers. It is significant that New York has perfected an organization that has the respect and confidence of both the producers and canners. Perhaps, the biggest accomplishment is that the growers, every week or two, meet and develop a yield forecast which is accurate and right up to the minute. This has resulted in having the two parties possess correct knowledge of yields.

Furthermore, it was developed that the prices received by the producers was somewhat higher than has been the case here in Michigan and also in Wisconsin. After the discussion the meeting voted to perfect a tentative organization for this Northwest District with headquarters at Traverse City, to be made up of one director from each of the five counties involved. A similar meeting was held at Hartson Thursday and at Benton Harbor on Friday. It is thought that these will be the three logical districts, each one having their own directors, but all being part of the state organization.

A. L. Darbee was selected by the Charlevoix county growers as their director. Within a very few days it is expected that a meeting will be held at Traverse City to make a rather definite organization. The consensus is that the membership should be $1.00 a year and one vote, of course, for each member. Last year a similar effort was made and a state organization perfected which was called the Michigan Cherry Growers Association. It may be desirable to inject new life into last year's organization instead of organizing a new group but in either case it is pretty safe to predict that the cherry growers will organize and help boost the industry. The growers from this county attending this meeting were Claude Fairman, Charlevoix; Loyal Barber, East Jordan; Howard Taft, East Jordan; and A. L. Darbee, East Jordan. These plans have the complete endorsement of our delegation and we hope to announce the plans to all local growers in the very near future.

INFORMATION REGARDING INCOME TAX

To make it easier for taxpayers to meet the increased taxes required by the National Defense Program, the Treasury Department is offering for sale two series of notes, both dated August 1, 1941, and maturing August 1, 1943.

In January of each year two new series will be provided so that a taxpayer can always purchase notes during the entire year in which he is receiving his income for use in payment of taxes due the following year. The reason for the two-year note is to permit a taxpayer, if he so desires, to begin saving in January of one year and continue through that year to save for his taxes due the following year.

All notes are sold at par and accrued interest. When presented in payment of income taxes they will be received at par and accrued interest up to and including the month in which such taxes are paid. Interest will not accrue beyond the maturity of the notes. If not presented in payment of income taxes, they will be redeemed for cash under certain specified conditions at the purchase price paid for the notes. In other words, the taxpayer, if he redeems the notes for cash, gets back just the amount he paid.

Complete information about these Treasury notes, will be found in a Treasury Department Circular available at local banks, Federal Reserve Banks and branches, or Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

Office supplies of any description may be obtained quickly through the Charlevoix Courier.—Adv. 29

This American Tire Made From This American Bush

O'Neil Jones Kloesner

Proving that manufacture of tires from the American grown guayule shrub is practical, William O'Neil, president of The General Tire & Rubber Co., has turned over to Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, a specimen of the mature plant and a tire made entirely of guayule rubber. The tire was made in the same General Tire plant and in the same machines used in making tires from far eastern rubber. O'Neil has urged the development of guayule as an emergency rubber supply for years. A bill now before Congress calls for the immediate planting of all available guayule seed in the states of Texas, California, New Mexico and Arizona. Because it thus far is impossible to make a tire from synthetic rubber alone, O'Neil is urging the growth of guayule to supplement the 400,000 ton production of synthetic already announced by Jones. American Legion Posts in all parts of the country are supporting the O'Neil guayule program, which O'Neil discussed this week with Secretary Jones and H. J. Kloesner, president of the Rubber Reserve Corporation.

Charlevoix has definitely set the date and is going ahead with plans for her first winter carnival. Planned by the Association of Commerce, the tentative program for Friday and Saturday, February 11 and 12, includes skiing contests and tobogganing at Mt. McSauba, hockey game, fancy skating and races at the municipal rink on the school grounds, coasting on Bridge street hill, dog-sled races on Bridge street. Business places will close from 2 to 5 p. m. on those days.

Officers of the newly organized Parent-Teachers Association are: president, Mrs. E. E. Cross; vice-president, Pearl C. Bigge; secretary, William E. Parmelee; treasurer, Walter Alexander.

Cheer up, girls. All-silk hose were $1.95 in 1927, same brands that have been sold (until recently) for about 89c. Stockings apparently take a leap every now and then, even without a leg in them. Or should we say that what goes up must come down, and this is particularly applicable to hose?

It seems incredible that one small city could boast so many great coasting bobsleds as Charlevoix. Down Bridge street hill they come, on a narrow track iced by the fire department the length of the business center, and sport reigns supreme here each afternoon and evening.

* THE HOME FRONT *
* * * * * * * * * * *

This is the job—to mould our whole country into a single weapon of attack, as the separate fingers of the hand unite to form a clenched fighting fist. And now, under the new War Production Board, we are really hammering at that job. WPB's Chairman, Donald M. Nelson, intends that every ounce of material not required for absolutely essential civilian needs, every machine and every plant which can be spared from civilian production and converted to military uses, shall work for war.

That's going to bring this struggle to the home front as it hasn't been brought before. As time goes on it's going to test the mettle of every one of us, in one way or another.

For some while now the trends have indicated that the American consumer faces increasing deprivation, must be prepared for increasing sacrifice, and last week was no exception.

All this underlines the fact that the civilian in this fight for democracy must practice two soldierly virtues, he must be cheerful and unafraid.

What the President said about fear — "That the only thing we have to fear is fear itself"—is particularly true on the consumer front.

Hoarding is fear operating in the sphere of the consumer. You can't beat shortages by hoarding. Hoarding, where potential scarcities exist, simply hastens the day of rationing — and hoarding may actually create artificial shortages of goods or commodities which actually are plentiful.

Sugar we may have to ration, because of the tremendous quantities required for production of alcohol used in making explosives and for other military purposes. But there are many energy-giving substitutes for sugar, so far as that goes. It is with sugar as with the spices we may not be getting in quantity because the jab stands athwart our far eastern trade routes—we certainly can get along with less pepper, if we have to.

The point is that fundamentally we have plenty of food. Even under the most unlikely conditions our standard of nutrition still will seem extravagently high to the Japanese with his 35 handfuls of rice each month, or the German living on a diet of potatoes and ersatz.

But suppose — and this isn't theory, the office of price administration and the Department of Agriculture are jointly concerned about it — suppose some people, motivated by unreasoning fear, begin to hoard staple groceries.

If enough people are moved by the contagion of example and do likewise, retire great quantities of staples to what amounts to dead storage, you have the rudiments of a serious situation. Prices pyramid in response to suddenly stimulated demand, the time comes when retailers' stocks really are depleted, when warehouses and processing plants stagger under a rush of orders, when the whole economy of food supply is upset.

OPA has received reports that at least one grocery distributor has been encouraging hoarding in handbills given out to housewives with their purchases at the store. Anyone urging housewives to stock "emergency pantry shelves" at this time is seeking temporary profit at the expense of truth, and is doing himself and his fellow citizens and his country a disservice. Don't have any of it, buy your foodstuffs as you need them, be prepared to make adjustments if and when they become necessary —there'll be enough to eat for everyone.

Keep your head, and don't be afraid.

Here are new developments on the war production front, developments which will eventually—as present stocks are exhausted—be reflected in the lives of many consumers. They stem from a variety of secondary causes, everything which happens on any sector of every front in the world battle affects us all, but their primary purpose is to speed our victory over the Axis.

1. The WPB slapped further drastic controls on rubber which will reduce the amount available for a wide range of civilian products by about 75 per cent. And many products, such as garden hose, toys, erasers, sporting goods and rubber heels, may be made only from reclaimed rubber in the future.

2. WPB moved to meet tremendous Army and Navy demands on the radio industry by ordering heavy cuts in production of receiving sets for civilians, also ordered reduced output of phonographs and radiophonograph combinations. Cut for the next 90 days is 40 per cent below output for the nine month period ended September 30, 1941. Most of the big companies are converting for 100 per cent military production. We now have an estimated 60,000,000 radios in 87 per cent of U. S. homes.

3. Consumers in 15 eastern and southern states will pay more for gasoline as the result of 3/10th of a cent per gallon increase granted by OPA and Petroleum Coordinator Ickes. The increase compensates for higher transportation costs incurred by oil companies using tank cars and other methods to relieve the shortage of ocean-going tankers.

4. Representatives of the men's and boys' clothing industry handed up a report to WPB on style simplifications to conserve wool and this report recommended—as had been expected—abolition of the two-trouser suit. A breakdown on the "two pants" suit—forty per cent of 25,000,000 suits made in the U. S. last year had two pair of trousers. Each pair averaged one and a half yards of cloth. Resultant 15,000,000 yard saving by eliminating one pair would equal 17 per cent more suits. Forty-three per cent of last year's suits were double-breasted. The industry men would eliminate vests with this type of suit.

5. Restrictions designed to plug loopholes in control of nickel are going to make many articles of common use less decorative, if just as serviceable. The list runs a gamut from musical instruments to saddlery and harness hardware.

Salvage, simplify, substitute—these are the "three S's" of war time economy. Even the Army is using substitutes where it can, conserving scarce metals for work in which they're absolutely essential. The nationwide salvage campaign—to collect scrap metal, old rubber, used paper — moves forward apace . . . OPA's Consumer Division suggests you carry your bundles home from the store, save tires, truck, paper . . . printers and publishers are studying ways of conserving colored inks, salvaging metals.

WPB has ordered Texas and Arizona cotton seed mills not to crush SXP American Egyptian cotton in their possession . . . the seed is needed for planting, the cotton "long staple" is used for balloon cloth and other aviation equipment . . . production of passenger autos and light trucks for any purpose at all will be stopped February 1 as the industry begins conversion to full war production . . . parts producers may turn out 60 per cent as many replacement parts during this year's first quarter as they sold in the last half of 1941 . . . Sidney Hillman, WPB's Labor Division Chief, says AFL and CIO leaders will meet for the first time in years at Regional Conferences on war production next month . . . America's canners will have to get along with less tin plate, less sugar . . . but WPB will help them maintain production, increase along in some lines.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

From Your Congressman
Fred Bradley
11th District, Michigan

I think it is common knowledge throughout our District that thru the Sault Locks during the 1941 eight - months shipping season there passed the greatest tonnage of freight in its history. Approximately 111 million tons went thru those locks, of which almost 90 million tons was vitally needed iron ore. This is a much greater tonnage than normally would pass through the Panama, Suez and Kiel Canals combined over a whole year period.

We all know that the President has insisted we must vastly expand our war production facilities and this, of course, means a tremendous increased demand for steel which will require constantly increasing shipments of iron ore and other boat freight through the Sault locks.

We all know that there are at present under construction on the Great Lakes five huge ore carriers, being built for the Pittsburgh Steamship Company, and 16 additional large freighters being built for the government. It is frankly recognized, therefore, that the maximum facilities at the Sault will not only be required but will probably be stretched beyond present comprehension to handle the increase. Therefore it is recognized that our war production cannot secure the full benefit of this increased tonnage unless, and until, the lock facilities at the Sault are expanded. As most of you know, there are at present two main locks at the Sault which will handle boats drawing 22 feet of water. This has been adequate in the past, but now these new boats are being built to draw 24 feet. Consequently, their own maximum capacity cannot be realized until a new lock is constructed.

The urgent need for this new lock has long been recognized by those charged with the transportation of our iron ore, coal, limestone and other commodities; and last May, the War Department urged Congress to speedily authorize the construction of a new lock which will replace the original small, and now completely obsolete Weitzel lock. The Secretary of War and the OPM authorities have insisted that we cannot reach our maximum ore production without this new lock. An accident to a railroad bridge over the approaches to the Sault Locks last summer completely held up shipping for a week, and it is estimated reduced the annual shipments by about one million tons. The new lock will help to prevent such interruption in the future and if built bomb-proof will insure it against possible air raid damage.

The Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House months ago favorably acted upon the recommendation, and has provided for the construction of this lock in two separate places in the Omnibus Rivers and Harbors Bill which may be considered by Congress within a few weeks. It is included not only in the famous St. Lawrence Waterway proposal, but is also in the bill as a separate item. However, according to the precedents, or legislative procedure, in the House of Representatives, which have long been completely mandatory, all measures for construction of harbors, breakwaters, river improvements, flood control, etc. are always included in one Omnibus Bill, and it is against Congressional precedent to take out of this Bill any of the individual items and consider them separately on the floor of the House. Consequently, each session of Congress brings forth what has long been known as the greatest pork-barrel bill to be considered by that Congress. The reason for this, and the reason they do not permit individual items to be taken out and considered separately is because in this manner it is hoped to gather additional votes from each member of Congress who may have some item in the Bill of benefit to his District, and against which he might not want to vote for fear of reprisal by his voters at the next election — he must swallow all the pork to get his own pet project authorized.

Thus do we see this tremendously important item for authorization of this new eight million dollar lock being held up in this Committee by Congressional red tape. Thus do we permit Congressional red tape to gamble with the very security of our nation.

In adopting the only possible parliamentary procedure which might circumvent this red tape, Senator Brown last week, in cooperation with Senator Vandenberg, secured unanimous passage in the Senate of a separate bill introduced by him to authorize the immediate construction of this new lock. Notice that this bill passed the Senate by unanimous consent. Under our parliamentary procedure our Congressional red tape could be simply cut if the chairman of the Rivers and Harbors Committee would simply take the floor of the House of Representatives and ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration in our body of Senator Brown's bill. But only he, alone, could obtain that unanimous consent. I have the assurance of our Republican leader, Joe Martin, that the Republicans would not object to the immediate passage of that bill, in order, that this vitally needed construction work could start immediately. It should be obvious that the President, fully cognizant of the absolute necessity for this lock, through his Congressional leaders could prevail on members of the majority not to object to it.

However, despite everything we have been able to do; despite the fact that both Senator Brown and I have prevailed on the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and the OPM officials, and many steamship operators on the Great Lakes, who are charged with the responsibility of transporting this iron ore, in order that our war production program can be expanded; despite the fact that we have had all these various people write or call personally on the chairman of the committee, or even the President himself, still Congressional precedent is preventing this simple procedure. Thus Congressional precedent gambles with the security of this country. The excuse is offered, of course, that the House will shortly consider the annual Omnibus Bill, but I point out to you that this bill is so notoriously full of pork that its passage is extremely doubtful; but even if passed, I point out to you that by the time the House gets through debating it and by the time it has gone through conferences by the members of both Houses, there is little likelihood that whatever is left of this bill—which I certainly expect and hope will include this authorization measure for the lock—will probably not be finally signed by the President and become law for at least three or four valuable months. And we are continually reminded that today "time is of the essence".

On December 7th, this was a united nation, when we all proposed that politics should go out the window for the duration of the war. Politics has not gone out the window in Washington, as this article I think clearly proves.

army and navy here and abroad, it provides an important link of communication between the service man and his family back home. Red Cross volunteers are giving their blood for emergency transfusions in the army and navy. Already 10,000 Red Cross nurses are on duty with our fighting forces. Uniformed volunteers have completed 40,000,000 surgical dressings requested by the surgeons general of the army and navy.

For its part in the civilian defense program, the Red Cross has undertaken the training of 100,000 nurse's aides, to help relieve shortage of registered nurses. During this year a million men and women will be taught first aid as a civilian preparedness measure. Disaster relief preparedness has been widened to meet the challenge of sabotage, fire, explosions and to stand in readiness in event of sporadic bombing or armed invasion.

Safeguarding Milk by Pasteurization

It seems a pity that milk can be such an excellent food and at the same time so dangerous if not properly safeguarded. But it is unfortunately true that milk is not only a good food for human beings, but also a good food for certain types of disease organisms, such as those causing typhoid fever and diphtheria. Then, again, milk may sometimes, without our knowledge, come from sick cows. In such cases their milk may at the time of milking contain large numbers of organisms of such diseases as septic sore throat, undulant fever, and tuberculosis.

This fact is tremendously significant to all of us who drink milk—and especially to all of us who have children.

Among the diseases which may be transmitted through milk are tuberculosis, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, septic sore throat, and undulant fever.

There is no way to make it absolutely sure that raw milk will never contain the germs of the diseases mentioned above. It seems impossible, then, to escape the conclusion that all milk should be either pasteurized or boiled to make it safe.

Should we rely upon boiling? That is what is done in many parts of Europe and South America, and as a result, they have in those places practically no milk-borne disease. But with these people boiling milk is a matter of daily habit. In most of the areas in question, the housewife does not have ice, and milk is boiled to keep it from souring.

In this country we have to deal with two factors: First, that most families do have ice or electric refrigerators and can keep milk sweet; and second, that many people do not like the taste of boiled milk.

There is, then, only one other thing we can do (short of putting chemicals into the milk, and nobody wants to do that), and that is to pasteurize the milk. That is why most health authorities today feel that all milk should be pasteurized. The most common method of pasteurizing milk commercially is to heat it to 1430 F. and hold it at that temperature for 30 minutes. This treatment kills or renders harmless all disease organisms which may be transmitted through milk.

You need not be worried about the effect of heating milk upon its food value. The vast majority of health officers and physicians today believe that pasteurizing milk has no significant effect upon its food value, especially when it is remembered that all children should receive a supplementary diet in addition to milk. Vitamin C is affected by heat, but this is not significant, since the amount of this vitamin present even in raw milk is frequently insufficient, and it is therefore necessary to feed children orange or tomato juice or some other source of vitamin C, regardless of whether the milk they drink is raw or pasteurized. Therefore, since the child will get all the Vitamin C it needs anyway, why take a chance or disease by insisting upon giving it raw milk?

FARMER'S FACTS ON INCOME TAX

Income You Must Report

Most farmers report their income on the basis of receipts and disbursements for few care to keep the complicated records required for the use of the accrual or inventory basis. The farmer reporting on the basis of receipts and expenditures must include in his gross income the three following kinds of income.

1. Amount of cash or the value of merchandise or other property received during the year from the sale of livestock or produce raised during the year or prior years.

2. Profits from the sale of any livestock or other items which were purchased and later resold.

3. Gross income from all other sources.

Questions

1. I worked in a saw-mill for five weeks last winter. Must I include the wages I received in reporting our farm income?

Ans. Yes. Form 1040F which every farmer must attach to his income tax return contains a separate heading in the column for "Other Farm Income" where "Work Off Farm" is to be listed.

2. What does the law include under the terms "farm and farmer?"

Ans. The term farm embraces the farm in the ordinarily accepted sense, and includes stock, dairy, poultry, fruit, and truck farms, plantations, ranches, and all land used for farming operations. All individuals, partnerships or enrporations that cultivate, operate, or manage farms for gain or profit, either as owners or tenants, are designated as farmers.

A person cultivating or operating a farm for recreation or pleasure, the result of which is a continual loss from year to year, is not regarded as a farmer.

3. What income is not taxable?

Ans. Money received as beneficiary from a life insurance policy, health and accident policy, or under workmen's compensation laws; money or property received as a gift, under will or by inheritance; old age benefits paid under the Social Security Act; unemployment insurance benefits; government pensions to soldiers' and sailors' widows; money received as damages for personal injuries or loss of life resulting from negligence or wrongful act of another; alimony payments; money received under a separation agreement between husband and wife.

4. Must I report as income the value of produce which our family has consumed during the year?

Ans. No, but neither can you claim as deductions the expenses incurred in raising this produce.

5. Twenty acres of my corn were ruined by hail last summer. I was insured against this loss and received payment from the insurance company. Must that money be reported as income?

Ans. Yes. It is regarded as replacing the income which you would otherwise have received from your crop.

AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Word has just recently been received from the British Food Mission by the Secretary of Agriculture, Claude R. Wickard as follows: "I'm informed that arrivals of Lend-Lease foodstuffs has just passed the million ton mark. Please convey my hearty congratulations and heartfelt thanks to Mr. Wickard and the Department of Agriculture on this splendid achievement within nine months of the passing of the Lend-Lease Act."

"The letter came to me," Secretary Wickard said, "because I happen to be Secretary of Agriculture but the expressions of appreciation are for the American farmers who have made possible this splendid record."

This illustrates what the farmers have been able to do for our allies on the fighting front. One million tons of food is enough to fill a freight train about 400 miles long, extending from Detroit thru the Straights of Mackinac to the city of Escanaba.

These shipments included 13 per cent of our production in six months of evaporated milk; 14 per cent of the cheese; 12 per cent of all dry skim milk for human consumption; 5 per cent of eggs produced as well as pork, lard, fruits, vegetables and many other farm commodities. These same items will be shipped in increasing percentages and amounts of our total production during the current year. For instance one third of all cheese and one third of all dry skim milk, made this year, will be a part of our contribution.

That these shipments may continue with unabated and increased volume your county and township AAA committeemen are working in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture and the farmers to produce the necessary increases of the commodities most needed, so that there may not be any holdup of shipments and insure a plentiful supply of food at home.

George C. Ferris, vice-chairman of the Charlevoix County Triple-A committee, will present the Triple-A broadcast over station WTCM, Traverse City, on Wednesday, February 4, from 1:15 to 1:30 p. m. Mr. Ferris will discuss the various ways in which the Triple-A program is cooperating with farmers in carrying out National Defense responsibilities. Charlevoix county is represented, once each month, in a series of broadcasts sponsored by the Michigan Agricultural Conservation committee.

THE GROWTH OF THE FEDERAL BUDGET
By E. J. Madill

The cost of government in time of war as well as in time of peace is indeed tremendous, and the problem of financing the expenditures, either by taxing or borrowing, is a task that keeps more than one Federal Agency on a twenty-four hour basis.

Now that the United States is at war, the necessity of checking and re-checking both estimated expenditures and estimated revenue is a problem not to be underestimated by anyone. For those who heard or read the annual budget message of the President on January 5, the stupendous program outlined by him makes one realize the magnitude of the situation which we now face.

The submission of the annual budget to the Congress by the President is no mere whim of the Legislative or Executive branches of our government, but is based on long years of study and research. As set forth in Title two (2) Section 201 of the Budget and Accounting Act of June 10, 1921, "The President shall transmit to Congress on the first day of each regular session, the budget, which shall set forth in summary and in detail:

(a) Estimates of the expenditures and appropriations necessary in his judgment for the support of the government for the ensuing fiscal year; except that the estimates for such year for the Legislative Branch of the government and the Supreme Court of the United States shall be transmitted to the President on or before October 15 of each year, and shall be included by him in the budget without revision;

(b) His estimates of the receipts of the government during the ensuing fiscal year, under (1) laws existing at the time the budget is transmitted and also (2) under the revenue proposals, if any, contained in the budget.

With regard to the expenditure side of our 1943 fiscal budget I am satisfied that each and every one of us is acutely aware of where and how our money is being spent, $53,000,000,000.00 for National Defense and $6,000,000,000.00 for ordinary expenditures.

The revenue side of our 1943 fiscal budget is another matter. Where are we going to get the necessary revenue? By what media will the deficit be met? In answer to this, at least in part, there are several alternatives by which the necessary funds, to meet our obligations can be raised, namely; taxes, borrowing, or the use of funds which are now being held in trust. Special legislation would be necessary to secure the use of the latter but the consensus of opinion is that the necessary amendments can be enacted whereby these funds can be made available for use by agencies other than those specifically named in the organic legislation of these trust funds.

The following tabulation of the receipts and expenditures of our government, in twenty year periods, from 1793 until the present time, gives a fairly clear picture of the growth and complexity of our fiscal problems and the necessity for constant watchfulness with regard to our budgetary system:

Fiscal Year	Receipts
1793	4,652,923.14
1813	14,340,709.95
1833	33,948,426.25
1853	61,587,031.68
1873	333,738,204.67
1893	385,819,628.78
1913*	724,111,229.84
1933	3,338,182,750.00
1943	16,187,200,000.00
	Expenditures
1793	3,846,929.20
1813	31,681,852.14
1833	23,017,551.98
1853	45,590,239.09
1873	279,748,850.34
1893	377,531,159.30
1913*	681,743,336.72
1933	3,505,754,727.00
1943	59,027,392,300.00

* The receipts and expenditures for 1913 and prior thereto do not include Postal Receipts or Postal Deficiencies.

 As estimated in President's message of January 5.

In conclusion, the Bureau of the Budget which is now part of the Executive Office of the President, and has been since the advent of Reorganization Plan No. I and Executive Order No. 8248, issued September 9, 1939, should be able to carry on its activities more efficiently than in the past especially with regard to its investigative and coordinative functions and by so doing achieve to a point of absolute perfection the objectives which the legislators had in mind when the Budget and Accounting Act became law.

DEFENSE BONDS ON SALE AT KROGERS

Employes May Now Buy Bonds on Deduction Plan

Employes of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co. now may purchase Defense bonds by means of a payroll deduction plan, Albert H. Morrill, Kroger president, announced today.

By special arrangement with the employe-sponsored credit union, any of the firm's 23,000 employes may authorize a weekly deduction of not less than one dollar to be applied toward the purchase of a $25 maturity value bond. The credit union has arranged to keep records and purchase their bonds when the required amounts have been accumulated.

Bonds of larger denomination also may be purchased by specifying correspondingly larger weekly deduction.

"Participation in the plan is entirely voluntary," Mr. Morrill explained. "Many of our employes have asked for some method which will facilitate their investment in national defense by buying bonds. By paying for them in weekly installments, many more Kroger people will be able to subscribe for Defense bonds."

REGISTRATION HOME ADDRESS IS ORDERED

Transient Address Will Not Be Accepted February 16

Col. E. M. Rosecrans, state selective service director, places emphasis on the fact men in the 20 to 44 age bracket who will register for the draft February 16 must designate their "home addresses."

Transient addresses, Rosecrans declared, may not be accepted.

"It is the intent of the law and the purpose of the selective service regulations that each man be registered at his home address and be subject to call from that local board," the colonel said. "That is a basic principal of democratic procedure, and I expect every selective service registrant in Michigan to adhere strictly to it."

Rosecrans pointed out, however, that a registrant with more than one place of residence may choose any of them as his home address without "interference or dictation by a registrar."

The colonel said he wanted it made "definitely clear" that persons already registered will not be required to reregister in the February registration.

Conservation Trade Mark

The emerald green silhouette map of Michigan on a white background, with block letters in black superimposed, has been adopted as the "trade mark" on signs marking all conservation department projects and areas —state parks, state forests, field administration headquarters, fire towers, equipment stations, fish hatcheries, public fishing sites, game areas, game refuges and public hunting grounds. The new uniform signs, made largely of plywood, will make their appearance about Michigan in numbers next spring.

LANSING LETTER

the Eastern Standard time was, of course, the legal time.

And now under Congressional order the clocks must be set one hour ahead. Tho state by an act of the legislature can go back to the normal Central time, or it can push its clocks ahead an hour. If the latter course is adopted Michigan will be two houra ahead of its old time. If the legislature votes to again make Central time official, the presidential order will leave us just where we are now.

Dark Mornings

During a couple of months in enrly summer Michigan folks go to work after sun-up under the present schedule. Most of the year they light up for breakfast, go to their offices, shops and stores in the dark before the dawn and start their day's routine of labor under artificial light.

Farmers are, naturnlly, the chief conscientious objectors to "fast" time. They are early risers normally and start their work at break of day while the dew is still heavy. They usually don't care for another hour of night injected into their working day. The extra hour of daylight in the evening only tends to lengthen their day's work.

Office workers and store employes find the long evenings fine for relaxation, recreation, fishing, picnics and golfing after their day's work is over. But mothers find it hard to feed their young and put them to bed by daylight.

War Measures Adopted

Michigan's Republican legislature made good its agreement to cooperate closely with Democratic Governor Van Wagoner in the matter of war legislation. Tho Governor's 10 war bills, dumped into the hopper at the opening of the special session, were speeded through both houses, with a minimum of delay. Practically everything Gov. Van Wagoner asked received unanimous approval.

At the end of the second day of the session, but one important bill was still in committee. That was the $5,000,000 war emergency appropriation bill, held in the Republican dominated Ways and Means committee by Chairman John Espie to determine the breakdown of items with earmarking as a possibility.

It had been previously decided that the big war-chest was not to go through as a blank check for the Governor, but will be administered by the evenly divided state administrative board.

A war measure, which in its original form would have established sweeping censorship over news publication by the State Council of Defense and given the Governor unusual removal powers, was quickly amended and modified to remove objectional features. Once the legislative committee, the Defense Council and administration representatives got together, there was no trouble reaching an understanding. The storm subsided before it got a fair start and the measure was approved by the legislature.

Law Protects Women

Women may work but their hours must still conform to the state law. John W. Gibson, Department of Labor and Industry chairman, has notified employers that the state laws cannot be set aside because of the exigencies of war time production. The 1908 statute, limiting working hours of women to an average nine-hour day and a 54 hour week, still stands.

"Even if it were desirable," Gibson said in a released statement, "I have no authority to abrogate a state statute by administrative order."

He had been asked concerning the matter by employers having government contracts.

Upsets Tradition

The Michigan state senate upset a tradition, more than a century old, when it voted in open session to confirm 19 appointments submitted by Gov. Van Wagoner. To abolish the executive session in which approval of appointments have heretofore always been considered, the senate voted 19 to 9, to revise its rules. The new rules provide that secret sessions may be held only when two-thirds of the body so vote. Transactions of such sessions will be printed in a secret journal not to be published until the close of the senate. Heretofore the senate went into executive session on a majority vote.

Republican Senator Joseph A. Baldwin of Albion was the champion of tradition-smashing change.

CHAPTER III

George looked along the deck. Joseph Neargood and Mrs. Gale were together aft. Captain Keen and John Gale and the mate were in the waist, close by. George turned abruptly to ask John Gale: "Where is Mary?"

"In the cabin!"

George went toward the companion and descended. Mary was sitting at the cabin table, with paper before her, a pen in her hand, writing. She looked up at him when he appeared. Her eyes stopped him for a moment. He stood unsteadily and when the ship lifted beneath them, tilting into the trough, sliding down, he came forward carefully to sit facing her with the table between them.

Mary Doneaster waited. Her eyes were serene and calm; but on her cheek color played faintly, like heat lightning from a distant storm. He tried to find the word he wished to say; and his dry lips moved a little without sound.

It was she who spoke first. She asked: "What is it, George?"

He tried to explain, as much to himself as to her. "I know I ought to stay here and take your father's place. I want to, and yet I'm afraid to. I'm afraid of failing." He said more quickly: "I didn't understand what it would be like, till I went ashore yesterday. I thought being a missionary meant being brave and strong and firm and stern; but I can see now it's more than that. I want to do the work; but I can't do it without you, Mary. I want to stay here with you to help me."

She asked, carefully grave: "You want me to be sort of an assistant? Is that it?"

"Well, I'd have to have someone. I can't even speak their language."

"Why don't you let yourself go, George?" she urged. "Tell me what you really want." He did not speak, and she saw that he could not. Her eyes deep and still, she asked at last: "You want to stay here and try to fill my father's place? Is that all, really?"

"Yes."

"Tell me, if you could do it alone, if you were sure you could, would you still want me? Or would you let me go on with the ship? Honestly?"

His face suddenly was convulsed. "No!" he cried. "I never want to let you go!" He was crimson, as if he had confessed something of which to be ashamed. He said awkwardly: "We couldn't stay alone here if we weren't married."

She nodded, a secret amusement in her eyes. "So, for our reputations' sake you think we ought to ask John Gale to marry us, and stay and work together? Is that what you want?"

"Yes.

"George," she urged smilingly. "Why did you decide you wanted to stay here? Honestly?"

Something for a moment rose in him, choking him. He came strongly to his feet; he cried in a sort of fury:

"Because I won't leave you here with Joseph Neargood!"

She nodded, seemed almost content, said gently: "Well, that will do for now, I think, George McAusland." Her eyes were laughing. "It isn't very much, perhaps! Most men would say more. But I think it's a lot for you to say. I'd lots rather be married to you than not. Shall I tell you why? It hasn't anything to do with duty at all."

She had come close to him.

"Or maybe you'd like to tell me why you don't want to leave me here with Joseph?" Her eyes were dancing, teasing him. "Tell me, George!"

He took a backward step, like one escaping; he stammered: "I—don't know!"

Mary Doncaster smiled again, as if at a secret of her own. "Well, maybe you'll find out by and by," she decided. She touched his hand. "George, if you do find out, promise to tell me, will you? It's a thing a girl likes to hear."

George and Mary, all their possessions in trunks and bags and boxes on the ground about them, stood on the ledges above the landing place to watch the Sunset put to sea.

But they did not wait to watch her out of sight. Willing hands had borne their gear away up the trail past the bathing pool toward Ephraim Doncaster's house; and when the ship yonder passed out of the roadstead George McAusland sneezed—that cold he had contracted when he fell overboard had lingered—and said awkwardly:

"Well, Mary, we'll want to settle ourselves before dark. Shall we go to the house?"

John Gale had married them that morning, on the after deck of the Sunset, with canoes in a circle under her stern for audience, and the sailors watching from forward. Mary noticed that Corkran was not among the men there; and she was a little hurt by his absence, but she asked no question, lest George too be distressed.

CHAPTER IV

When they came into the house, since Mary had not been ashore before, she looked around with brimming eyes, recognizing familiar objects everywhere. She crossed, softly as though she might disturb someone sleeping, to look into her father's room; and she called George to her.

"This was Father's," she said. "And this is Mother's room, next to his."

He saw the two beds close together, the flimsy wall between. "Where did you sleep?" he asked.

"Over here." She led him across to the other bedroom in the opposite end of the house; and they stood in the doorway together.

"I think you'd better take your father's room," he decided. "I'll take this one. Then you can have two rooms to yourself, won't he crowded."

She said in a soft surprise: "Won't you take Father's, and I'll be in Mother's, close beside you?"

He shook his head. "No. This arrangement will give us each some privacy, Mary."

She smiled faintly, amused and thinking she understood. "We won't have much privacy, George, at best. With no doors, no curtains, no shutters on the windows."

"We'll arrange something."

Now a girl came in carrying a gourd cut into the shape of a bowl, filled with a yellowish viscous stuff which she presented smilingly, placing it on the table set for meals. The girl was beautiful. There were two or three faint lines tattooed near her mouth and on her shoulder, and she wore blossoms in her hair. Mary told her husband:

"This is Ieni, George. Jarambo brought her to take care of us."

He looked dubious. "She's just a child, isn't she? Must we have anyone? Where's the kitchen, Mary? And what do we eat this with?"

Mary laughed. "Dip your finger in it, twist it around, and stick it in your mouth," she directed. "That's much the easiest way. It's too stringy and sticky for a fork or a spoon."

George nodded, and tried. "I don't care for the flavor," he decided. "I'd as soon eat glue!" Jarambo and Ieni stood beaming by. He looked toward the girl and said, lowering his voice as though by doing so he could avoid being understood: "Can we persuade her into a more civilized costume, Mary? What's that she has on?"

"They make the cloth by soaking some sort of bark—like flax—and beating it over a log. Tappy, they call it." She smiled. "But Ieni has on her prettiest frock, George, in our honor. Usually she won't be so dressed up!"

"Haven't you an old dress you can give her?"

"She wouldn't wear it."

"Try her and see."

"I will in the morning," Mary assented.

He took her old room, she her father's, with the length of the house between them. Mary lay long awake, drenched in the night sounds half forgotten that had once been so familiar. Once she heard George sneeze, and she called softly:

"All right, my dear? Warm enough?"

"Perfectly!"

In the morning he appeared in the heavy black suit he had worn on shipboard. The first shower of the day pelted on the thatch, thrummed among the palms, passed to leave a stifling humid heat behind. Mary was cool in white; in a dress she had worn in school which she now left unbuttoned at the throat, and without petticoats or other foundation. George said in a low tone: "Your dress, Mary."

"My dress?" She did not understand him.

"Button it," he said. "And—I think you have forgotten your petticoats."

She protested: "I've left them off, yes. You surely don't expect . . . George, you must realize how ridiculous you look, and how uncomfortable you will be in that heavy suit."

He said, almost pleadingly: "I'm a fool of course; but to keep my head here, I'm going to have to hold on to something, Mary. It's so easy to begin to live as these savages do, to lie around half-dressed, idle, useless, unless we hang on to our own ways of doing things." And he confessed: "If I were strong enough, I could let down my standards in some ways and still keep them in others; but I can't, Mary." He added, half laughing at himself: "I know wearing this suit is foolish, but—I guess it's a symbol or something."

She would find always in him this humble consciousness of his own weakness behind any outward arrogance of certainty he might put on. She surrendered, and went to dress as he wished her to. From her own room she heard his voice raised angrily, and called a question, and he said:

"We can't have the house full of these people staring at us all the time, Mary. I'm trying to send them away. And when you come out, bring something for Jennie to wear."

She called to him:

"Don't scold so, George. You just frighten them. They're ready to love you if you give them a chance. After that, they'll do anything for you; but you'll have to go easily at first."

Those first weeks after her return to the Island were for Mary pleasant enough. George maintained a reserve toward her which she waited for time to break down, but she had the delight of seeing him happy in these scenes she loved. He was full of questions, intensely interested in every aspect of the Island life, going to and fro along the many trails that led to the thatch-roofed houses of poles built on rock platforms like their own. There were houses near theirs, and along the shore, and by the beach at the end of the bay. The beach ended on the farther side at a low cliff not easily to be climbed, which limited their explorations; but one night George spoke of the fact that there was a considerable traffic of canoes across the bay.

"I notice men going over to the other side and landing there," he said. "But never any women. Why, Mary?"

She remembered the explanation from her childhood here. "Women never go in the canoes," she said. "Canoes are tabu for them. The men go over to the grove. I know Father never went over."

"Would they let me?"

She agreed to ask Jarambo. He was firm in saying no, but reticent in giving reasons. Mary told George: "I think they're entitled to some privacy, don't you? Just as we value ours?" He agreed not to force the issue.

But Mary was more curious than he. Jarambo's manner had puzzled her. She did not believe the Islanders had any secret temple consecrated to pagan rites, as George suspected; and she questioned Ieni.

What she heard was startling. Ieni said a white man with black hair lived across the bay, who had insisted that his presence there be concealed from George and Mary. The white man talked very loud and he had a talking bird. The white man had come down out of the mountains the day after the Sunset sailed, with the bird on his shoulder; and he now lived happily in a house above the cliff beyond the beach, and was loved and guarded tenderly. He and his bird.

Mary recognized Corkran. He must have swum ashore from the Sunset the night before the ship sailed, and Captain Keen had known the uselessness of trying to capture the deserter. She was disturbed, and angry too. Corkran's presence, and the manner of his life as Ieni described it, would make George unhappy.

But as a result of Ieni's story, Mary herself sometimes walked toward the beach alone, thinking she might encounter the sailor. So Mary had persuaded George to sleep for a while every afternoon, and sometimes she left him asleep and went abroad among these people who were her friends. It was on such an occasion that she saw the sailor again. Mary, emerging from the forest, saw Corkran on the sands, barefooted, in white pants and a ragged shirt, lying with his head in a girl's lap, watching the swimmers. Mary was near before he saw her. Then he came scrambling to his feet in some dismay and touched his forehead respectfully.

"Sorry, ma'am," said Corkran and looked past her toward the trail. "Is himself coming?"

"No, he's asleep."

"Don't be letting him know I'm here," he urged quickly. "It would bother him."

She nodded. "Yes, it would. Why did you desert the ship, Corkran?"

He flushed with embarrassment. "Ma'am, when I knew himself and you would stay here, says I to myself: 'It's no place for the likes of them. They just might be needing a good fighting man some day.' So that night when the mate that was watching to see we were good little boys and stayed where we belonged looked the other way for a minute, I slid overside like an eel, ma'am; and into the jungle I went till the ship was gone. I know himself would not like my being about. You'll never be telling him?"

"I'd rather he didn't know," she agreed. "But you'd better keep away from the beach. He comes here sometimes."

"Aye, that I will. It was a careless chance I took today." A friendly impudence was in his tone. I knew you had been told I was here. I seat that word, so you'd know there was one to call on if you ever needed anyone."

"I have my husband," she reminded him.

"Aye, ma'am, and big and strong he is inside of him, in his heart and his head, ma'am. But sometimes a fist saves trouble and argument, and I'm stronger in the fist than himself will ever be." He said acutely: "You know, that little man has a hard time with himself, but there's stuff in him. He'll surprise us all one day, and never a bit surprised will I be!"

"I have my husband," she reminded him.

She smiled, deeply pleased. "I think so too," she agreed. "I like him too."

"We'll take care of him between us, ma'am," Corkran assured her. "You with him, and me here if I'm needed. But don't tell him I'm here."

AT THE MOVIES

Hedy Lamarr, Robert Young, Ruth Hussey Score in "H. M. Pulham, Esq."

The eagerly-awaited filmization of John P. Marquand's novel, "H. M. Pulham, Esq.," which topped the country's best-seller lists for many months, comes to the Palace screen Saturday and Sunday, January 31, February 1, with Hedy Lamarr, Robert Young and Ruth Hussey in the major roles, and will prove absorbing film entertainment.

The screen has given even greater fluidity to the story of the young Bostonian aristocrat cast by destiny in a mould from which he cannot escape. After the World War he essays a career in New York, meets the woman who becomes the one great love of his life, then through circumstances returns to Boston to develop into a creature of habit, content with the woman his family had destined him to marry. When, twenty years later, he seeks to recapture the romance of his youth, he finds that it is too late. As in the novel, the story is told in retrospect, while the hero writes his autobiography for a college magazine.

"Murder Among Friends" Top Comedy-Mystery

"Doodling" is a sin—and its proved in a most amusing manner in the mystery-thriller "Murder Among Friends," which opens Wednesday, February 4 at the Palace Theater. Featuring Marjorie Weaver and John Hubbard at the head of a splendid cast, the murders come fast and furious—as do the laughs and thrills—but it is the "doodling" which finally trips the culprit.

It seems that the "doodler," who is also the murderer of five joint holders of a tontine insurance policy, doesn't realize he (or she) is a "doodler"—and as each victim's body is found, along side is a magazine with a moustache "doodled" on the face of an illustration. It's all very puzzling — and it makes for top-notch entertainment —for with it all go some grand gags and well worked out dialogue.

When most antiques were just junk. Quilt coverings worth only six cents a pound 50 years ago are now sold for as much as $20 a square foot. Read how a fortune may be kicking around in your own attic in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

Straight or whole life insurance policies are the most popular type among families of lower income, a survey among 2,000 families with average annual income of $1,413 showing nearly 80% of all policies owned by persons 14 years of age or older to be of this type. Only one-fifth were endowment policies and a negligible number were term or temporary insurance.

SO WAR NEEDS MAY BE MET

IN 1941, about $300,000,000 was spent by defense industries in Michigan for new plants, new machinery and equipment, in preparation for war-materials production. That is a big sum of money.

Nearly 10 per cent as large, the $28,250,000 spent by Michigan Bell for new construction was a record figure because of the same urgent defense needs. When industry expands for rearmament, it reaches for the telephone.

To meet the greatest demand for service in history, new telephone buildings, cables, and central office equipment were rushed into operation.

Telephone people had a big job in 1941, but surmounting that problem only served to condition them better to face the more difficult task in 1942. Increasing shortage of materials is hampering their efforts to meet civilian requests as readily as in the past, but they are confidently determined that every war need will be met.

REGISTER NEW CLASS FEB. 16TH

COVERS ALL MALE RESIDENT FROM 20 TO 40

Stato Officials Urge All Registrants to Regiater With Own Local Board

Selective service registration on February 16 will complete the registration of America's currently nuthorized military manpower, Col. E. M. Rosecrans, stnte director of selective service, has declared. The new registrntion affects every male resident in Michigan between the military ages of 20 and 45 years, with a few exceptions made by congress.

Registration places in Charlevoix county are to be estnblished at Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and St. James. Regular place of registration in each city will be the city hall, but provision has been made to allow employes of the East Jordan Iron Works and Michigan Tanning & Extract Co. to register at their plants.

Township supervisors will make arrangements to register sick and invalid and others unable to report at established place of registration in their areas. Registration at Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City will be under supervision of druft board members. Roland McCann and Earl Boyle will have charge on Beaver Island.

The requirement, Col. Rosecrans explained, is that all male persons not previously registered, who attained their twentieth birthday on or before December 31, 1941, and who have not attained their forty-fifth birthday on or before February 16, 1942, must register as of their home address between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. on February 16. In other words, all unregistered men who were born between February 17, 1897, and December 31, 1921 must register.

Men between 21 and 36 years of age who registered in 1940 and 1941 are not required to register again, the director stated.

While anyone who is unnvoidably away from his home on February 16 may register at the registration place most convenient on that day, Col. Rosecrans urged all Michigan registrants to make every effort to register with their own local bourds to avoid possible confusion in the future. Any person who must register while away from his home, he warned, should be careful to specify his home address so that his registration card may be forwarded promptly to his own local board and to ensure that he will be included in its potential manpower to fill calls for quotas.

Every man subject to registration who is an inmate of an asylum, jail, penitentiary, reformatory, or similar institution on February 16 is required to register on the day he leaves the institution.

The Masons strengthened their lead over the Odd Fellows in the winter cribbage series with a substantial victory in the fifth contest Monday night.

Team scores, with eight tnbles participating, gave the Masons 14,361 points to 14,154 for the Odd Fellows, a nnrgin of 237. Added to their previous advantage of 26 points, the Masons lead by 263 for the series.

Lyman Reinhart led the Masons with 960, while Bert Crandall was high for the Odd Fellows with 963.

The sixth contest is scheduled Monday evening, February 9, at the Masonic hall.

FEBRUARY MILITARY QUOTA CALLS FOR SIX

Three Charlevoix Men Among Thoso Reporting Feb. 9

Six Charlevoix county young men have been certified by the draft board to fill the couaty's February quota for selective military service.

Ordered to report to the draft board office Monday, February 9, for induction at Fort Custer, are the following:

Leonard Oliver, John Bacot and Keith Miles, of Charlevoix; Adam Pravdzik, of Boyne Falls; Russell Hall, of Boyne City; Ivan Ranney, of East Jordan.

HUNTERS' OWN GUNS CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS

Hunters' own guns and the guns of their companions are what sportsmen must beware of in the small game hunting season. Of the 19 fatalities in Michigan's 1941 small game season, eight were caused by the hunters' own guns and 10 were shot by guns in the hands of companions, according to conservation department records. In only one case was the fatal injury inflicted hy a person unknown.

VACATIONISTS MAKE USE OF STATE PARKS

Demand Increases Faster Than Construction Program

Michigan vacationers are using state forest campgrounds so intensively that construction has been unable to keep pace with the demand, say state forest officials of the conservation department in reporting an attendance increase of nearly 45 per cent in the last season.

Since 1931 when 6,500 signed the guest registers at the only five campgrounds available, the number of registrants increased to 46,828 in 1941 when 57 campgrounds were in use. Spot checks have shown the actual number of users to be about three times as large as the number that write their names and addresses in the register. So in spite of the more than 10-fold expansion of the last decade, foresters say there are still too many campers per campground, if the sites are to continue desirable because of their quiet and comparative privacy.

RED CROSS FUND DRIVE COMPLETE

CHARLEVOIX AND VICINITY SUBSCRIBED $1,270.48

District Well "Over Top" In War Fund Campaign; Chairmen Lauds Local Workers

The Red Cross war relief fund drive was completed this week in Charlevoix, with a total of $1,270.18 raised in this city and the surrounding townships of Charlevoix, Hayes, Marion and Norwood. The city's quota had been set at $700.

Credit is due the numerous individual who carried on solicitations throughout the city, and to all who gave generously of their time and effort to make this drive a complete success.

Solicitations in Charlevoix were under direction of Mrs. Robert Bridge, chairman. In charge of solicitors were Mrs. Clinton Cooper, 1st ward; Mrs. Glenn See, 2nd ward; Mrs. Harry Geheau, 3rd ward; Miss Olive Allen, business section; Mrs. E. D. Hawley, public school teachers. Norman Ance was local member of the county quota committee, who contacted clubs, lodges and other organizations.

Mrs. Bridge sent out approximately one hundred fifty letters to summer residents, and the response from this source was exceptionally gratifying.

A sizeable contribution was realized from various benefits given by local groups.

Many people were interested in a quilt donated by Mrs. Oscar Ward, which was won by Mrs. Joe Bissell. Mrs. Ward turned in $11 from sale of tickets for the quilt.

Charlevoix can be proud of the support it has given this worthy cause. It is understood that the county quota, originally set at $2,200, has been over-subscribed by a substantial amount.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR BOAT OWNERS

OWNER, CREW, MUST HAVE IDENTIFICATION CARDS

Photo and Finger Printing Among Requirements; Apply for Samo at Coast Guard Station

Under the authority of the captain of the port in all harbors of the United States, a requirement that all persons boarding vessels must have an official personal identification is being put into effect. All private yacht owners and personnel of commercial vessels, including dock guards, repairmen boarding ships, seamen engineers and shipyard workers will be required to carry the official identification card at all times.

Lieutenant J. A. Dirks, U. S. Coast Guard intelligence officer at the Cleveland, Ninth Naval District office, announced that a large number of cards have been issued since the new regulations went into effect but asks all persons concerned to be sure to have their cards before the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes.

The card is in no sense a pass such as is issued by dock and steamship companies to their employes. As a supplement to private restrictions now in effect, the plan provides the F. B. I. with a speedy check on the presence of aliens or unauthorized persons.

Applicants for the cards must present to the captain of the port or his duly authorized assistant the endorsements of their employers as well as personal data and proof of citizenship. Fingerprints are taken on an F. B. I. form and the duplicate photograph of one kept by the coast guard is affixed to the card. After approval by the coast guard officer the signature of the applicant is witnessed, the seal affixed, and the card issued. Anyone attempting to present an illegally obtained card would be caught, when challenged, by failure to match with the fingerprint and photograph record kept by coast guard officials.

The specific authority for the identification requirement is quoted: "Every person on board any vessel, foreign or domestic, within the territorial waters of the United States shall carry personal identification papers satisfactory to the captain of the port, consisting of a card to which is affixed the photograph of the bearer and containing such identifying data as name, signature, fingerprint, date and place of birth, nationality, alien registration number (in the case of resident aliens) height, weight, color of hair and eyes, such a card to be furnished by the captain of the port or the identification data shown thereon to be in a form acceptable to him."

SHOT AT RANDOM

By KEN USHER

I've often wondered where a nudist carries his handerchief.

Clipped the following from an exchange because it is so true to life: "What a queer bird the man am. He spends his life at tasks he detests in order to make money he doesn't want, in order to buy things he doesn't need, in order to impress people he doesn't like. And in the doing of these things, he comes finally to the sunset of his days spiritually unequipped and so lacking in n simple philosophy as to be utterly unable to enjoy the fruits of a lifetime of toil."

Let's hope that when the war is over and we again begin to manufacture automobiles someone will have invented one that grows its own fenders.

It's well to remember your wife's birthday, but forget which one it is.

If the groundhog didn't see his shadow here Monday it was because the sun blinded him. So I suppose, what with wartime restrictions on weather reports, we're lucky to learn there's going to be six weeks more of winter, because that's about as accurate a forecast as we can expect nowadays. A week from "Groundhog Day" is also important. That day the nation goes on daylight savings time. The sun, according to calculations, will rise at 7:53 a. m. and will set at 6:18 p. m. Which means that you're going to get up in the dark but will have an hour more of daylight in the afternoon.

I'm more than ordinarily interested in the story of John O'Donnell, a Davenport, Ia., newspaper man who donated his lips to the Red Cross. It is an unusual incident in the first place because customarily we hear about the fairer sex enticing folding money from the gullible male as the price of a kiss for the sweet sake of charity, and secondly, the proposition has interesting aspects. It seems the Iowa editor, hailed by

State capital highlights for warhusy readers:

Special session of the state legislature has been called by Governor Van Wagoner for Monday, February 9, to consider supplementing state payments for unemployment compensation. By February 15 the governor's office estimates that 315,000 persons will he out of work in Michigan because of the drastic halt to automobile production. Congress has been deliberating and debating. "We can't wait for Congress to act," the governar said as he issued the special call.

Daylight Savings Time will begin Monday (Feb. 9), advancing clocks another hour into morning darkness. Ten years ago Michigan adopted eastern standard time, although much of the state geographically lies within the central time area. The attorney general's office has indicated that legally the state must abide by the congressional action, unless the legislature does something about it next week.

Voluntary curfew at 7 p. m. for gasoline stations has been suggested by Lt. Col. Harold A. Furlong, administrator of the Michigan Council of Defense, "as a patriotic measure to cut operating expenses." The state council decided that it did not have power, even if it sought it, to regulate working hours of gasoline station attendants.

Politics in war efforts was denounced by Linwood I. Noyes, Ironwood newspaper publisher, before a state convention of newspaper editors two weeks ago. Decrying appointment of Red Cross chairmen and tire rationing chairmen for political reasons, Noyes urged editors to expose such conditions in their editorial columns. . . . Gov. Van Wagoner, addressing county supervisors at Lansing, said that 48 per cent of persons appointed to county defense coun-

DOING WITHOUT CARS

A Gallup poll shows 54 per cent of those asked saying they could get along without their cars if they had to. Seventy-three per cent of workers who normally drive to work "could get to their jobs without cars if necessary." This seems to mean that the public can take the change in stride, but it is likely that the questions were asked too soon for really practical answers to be given.

The first reaction is apt to be an airy, chins-up guess that of course they can get along. Three months experience of going without a car; standing in crowded street cars and busses to and from work, walking to market — and back again, carrying groceries—may make a difference in the point of view. It's not the first enthusiasm but the long haul that tests the real strength, courage and ingenuity.

Modern life is geared to the automobile. The distances of homes from schools, offices and markets have been determined by it. It's not going to be easy to do without it or even to cut its use sharply. But Americans whose forebearers conquered a wilderness will not be deterred by a little difficulty—nor even by a lot.

IT DOESN'T HELP THE JAPS

You may safely purchase goods, even though they carry the label "Made In Japan," secure in the knowledge that your purchase will not be aiding Japan.

Any goods you may find on Charlevoix shelves and counters bearing the enemy signature either have already been paid for by American importers or the money is frozen in this country. So none of the money you spend for Japanese made goods now will ever reach Tokyo.

On the other hand, your purchase of Japanese-made merchandise will be of assistance to local merchants and American importers. Every imported article you buy takes that much strain off American factories, most of which are needed for defense work. It also helps the local merchant clear his shelves of this type of merchandise.

Probably nothing would please Japan more than to have us Americans boycott Jap merchandise now in this country, and force American plants to use time and material needed in defense to replace them.

It's perfectly legitimate to hate our enemy but not to the point where it interferes with our own national welfare.

LETTERS FROM THE ARMY CAMPS

Fort Custer, Mich.
January 29, 1942

Dear Mr. Usher:

Just a few lines to let you know I am receiving the Courier regularly and I want to thank you for it.

I am in the medical department here and am an ambulance driver and first aid man. I have an army driver's license and can operate any army vehicle. I like the army just fine and I believe the medics is as fine a department as there is in the United States Army. My brother Cecil is here at Custer also and we are both in the same department and company.

It is nice weather down here now, and no snow here yet. We don't know how long we will be staying here, but there have been lots of rumors that we are being sent out soon. I believe they may be true, or at least some of them, because we have been having boxes made for packing equipment in, and also we have practiced loading into troop trains, so I don't think they have been having us do that for exercise do you?

I want to thank you again for the paper, and it sure seems good to lay down on your bunk at night and read the home town news. I'll close for now and hope this finds you well and may this year of '42 be a successful one for you.

Yours sincerely,
Pvt. Willard Drost

AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

During the past few years of the operation of the AAA plan, the farmers have built up a record breaking surplus of corn and wheat, enough, in fact, to fill our requirements for the year without further production. However, as we now have to feed our allies as well as ourselves, this surplus will be used and normal acreage in these crops and increases in others will be kept up, so that there will not be any shortage of food for all people.

President Roosevelt, in a recent speech, said "at present we will not have to curtail the normal articles of food. There is enough food for all of us and enough left over to send to those who are fighting on the same side with us."

Farmers should not be over-confident. Reaching the 1942 production goals will be the biggest job farmers have ever had to do, and the probability that some of the goals may be increased still more will make the job still harder. However, at a meeting of the county AAA committee last week, Walter H. Henley, the chairman, expressed the belief that the farmers of Charlevoix county will come across 100% during the coming season in spite of threatened labor shortage and other handicaps.

WASHINGTON HIGHLIGHTS
By E. J. Madill

As the United States enters the third month of its participation in the war the changes which have taken place in Washington, D. C. are amazing. In the short time since the formal acknowledgement on December 8, well organized units of air-raid wardens, fire fighters, demolition squads, first-aid centers, fire watchers etc., have been assembled. Practically all units are fully trained and ready for action at a moments notice.

The air-raid alarm system has been greatly improved with the addition of larger electric sirens, supplemented by air and steam operated horns. Bomb proof shelters are being constructed in government buildings and periodic "alerts" are being held. The treasury building is being equipped with a public address system operated from a central control panel for use in directing evacuation of various sections of the building in the event of an emergency.

With regard to the civilian population, the closest cooperation with authorities is necessary. It is the duty of every home-owner to equip his residence with boxes of sand, shovels and hose with fine spray attachments, for use in combating incendiary bombs.

A bill (Public Law 373) passed December 26, 1941 empowers the commissioners of the District of Columbia "to prescribe reasonable penalties for violation of any regulations promulgated pursuant to this act, not exceeding a fine of $300, or ninety days imprisonment, or both."

Most of the features of this act are designed to deal with violations of law, such as, violations, during a black-out, against persons or property.

All water reservoirs are being guarded by troops twenty-four hours a day as well as the White House and various other public buildings. All government departments and independent agencies have increased their working hours from 39 to 44 hours a week and a few exceptions have increased theirs to 48.

As time passes more news and information will no doubt be available. At the present time all this preparation, to some people, is a great novelty and, in a few scattered instances, the fallacy "it can't happen here" is still heard.

Twenty-five years ago the National Tuberculosis Association began a pioneer effort with the Modern Health Crusade, a child health education movement, for the double purpose of endeavoring to attack tuberculosis in childhood, and of stimulating the public schools of the country to establish health service and health education. How well this and similar movements have succeeded is evidenced by the fact that most of the twenty-five million school children in this country are now receiving systematic health instruction as a routine part of their school curriculum.

A post card going out to 10,000 Michigan residents this week carries a picture of a chest X-ray examination for tuberculosis. Under the picture are the words, "Early discovery and early hospital care will insure early recovery." This card is the last reminder to persons who have not yet paid for tuberculosis Christmas seals received last November.

The Tuberculosis Committee of the American Student Health association reports that of the 854 colleges queried 304 had some program of tuberculosis control; ten years ago there were only six such programs. Tuberculosis is still the leading cause of death in persons of college age.

Judges for Michigan high school papers entering the community health project were scheduled to meet January 28 in Lansing. The best paper will be sent on to the National contest which is jointly sponsored by the National Tuberculosis Association and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. Michigan judges include A. A. Applegate, Michigan State College journalism and publications; Gene Alleman, Michigan Press Association; and Miss Ida Houston, Department of Public Instruction.

CHARLEVOIX CO. U.S.D.A. WAR BOARD ORGANIZED

Walter H. Henley, AAA Chairman, Is Head of Group

Because the United States is now engaged in an "all-out" war for the duration, thereby placing much greater responsibility upon all farmers, farm leaders and farm agencies, the name of state and county agricultural defense boards of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have been changed to state and county U.S.D.A. war boards by order of Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard.

The County U.S.D.A. War Board will function as the representative of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Its primary duties will include further expansion of the "Food for Freedom" production programs, the handling of problems arising out of war priorities on materials needed in agriculture; shortages, such as those of labor, materials and machinery; the gathering of specified agricultural information of vital importance to the war-time effort, and cooperation with other defense agencies and programs.

The membership of the Charlevoix County U.S.D.A. War Board is composed of Walter H. Henley, county AAA chairman, who serves as chairman of the war board; B. C. Mellencamp, county agricultural agent; Robert Reis, farm security representative; Harold S. Lees, rural electrification representative; and Charles D. Shepard, representing the farm credit administration.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY CAMPAIGN UNDER WAY

County-Wide Effort Pointed to Event Sunday, February 15

Beginning this week and continuing the next week, there will be conducted an extensive home-to-home visitation by the leaders of the various churches of the Charlevoix County Council of Churches and Christian Education.

Boyne City and East Jordan are carrying on the work in their respective portions of the county. As for Charlevoix and its environs, each church has made itself responsible for certain areas. Teams from these churches will endeavor to contact each home, regardless of creed, and bring before them their need for attending some church. They will be urged to attend some church of their choice not only February 15th, which is "Go to Church Sunday" in this county, but to begin doing so at that date, if they have not done so before.

The world situation reveals the antagonism of some nations towards Christianity and that for which it stands. Today, as never before, we people of this community need to realize the value of the church, its worship services, and that part it has for the life of each one of us. Let us utilize the privilege of Divine Worship by attending some church on Sunday.

SMOKERS CAUSE MAJORITY FOREST FIRES IN STATE

With 706 forest fires to their discredit last season, tobacco smokers once more are listed by the conservation department as chief culprit among the causes of forest fires that in 1941 caused $26,820 worth of direct damage and cost $36,600 to suppress.

THE HOME FRONT

This war is going to be won on the home front. The home front is all-important in total war. The home front saved Britain after Dunkerque, it was to the home front—to the betrayed and deluded people of Germany—that Hitler addressed himself with between-the-lines hysteria last week end.

We Americans are all-out for victory on this front. We're all of us determined to keep the raw materials for victory flowing into our industrial plants and the finished weapons of war streaming from those plants to the fighting zones until Adolf is in the ashcan, and Japan on the junkheap, and the poor, misguided Italians are ready to dunk Il Duce in the Tiber.

Of course, every victory has its price. Right now we can begin to see clearly what victory is going to cost the home front, and it's plenty, although a small sum to pay for such values as liberty, and the right to pursue happiness and work for a decent sort of world.

Victory is going to cost some manufacturers their business for the duration, as metals are diverted from—let's say new pots and pans—to guns and tanks. Victory is going to mean virtual conscription of hundreds of industries, grief to management and distress to workers as they shift from the uses of peace to the uses of war.

In the home itself, the price of victory will include increasingly drastic rationing. Sugar and tires were just starters. We can look forward to a time when a new radio may be just as hard to come by as a new car. Scarcity of materials needed for army and navy and lend-lease is going to combine with scarcity of industrial facilities—as more and more factories are drafted into the war effort—to change our lives tremendously. The needs of army and navy are going to affect the styling of our clothes, as well as our diets. We know we may count on the new price control act to operate, along with rationing, in the direction of fair prices. But we also know that the farm price provisions of the act may lead to an increase in the cost of foodstuffs.

Almost all the trends developed during the past week have direct bearing on the home. There's a War Production Board survey now going on which taken with WPB's warning of stringent rationing to come, points the direction in which we're headed. WPB is questioning 10,000 manufacturers to find out just how much minimum civilian production they must maintain along with maximum military production.

Such things foreshadow change, and we will have—change in the familiar contents of the kitchen shelves, in the contents of our closets and bureau drawers, in our living rooms.

We're going to see a lot less of the tin can, which is going through this war primarily as a container of meat and vegetables. Already WPB has halved the amount of tin which may be used in cans for baking powder, beer, biscuits, candy, cereals, flour, chocolate and cocoa, dog food, spices, condiments, petroleum products, tobacco.

There's been a lot of beer poured into tins. In 1941 beer cans consumed 1,600 tons of scarce tin—more than was used to can any vegetable except tomatoes . . . along with the cans, WPB is drafting a part of their contents, plans an order withholding a percentage of the 1942 fruit and vegetable pack as a reserve for the armed forces and lend-lease . . . sales of sugar may be limited to three-quarters of a pound per person per week . . . that's enough . . . there'll probably be enough of the commoner spices, too—except cinnamon . . . we've more than two years supply of East Indian pepper in the warehouses . . . WPB found it possible to relax restrictions on fats and oils . . . a break for makers and users of salad oils, shortening, lard, soaps and paint.

Women's styles probably will be altered by the need to conserve all kinds of cloth, chances are we're in for a period of slim silhouettes and short skirts. But it looks as though the foundations are safe, anyway . . . WPB's rubber branch is going to make a limited amount of crude rubber available for foundation garments, girdles, corsets . . . manufacturers will conserve by design changes, partial substitutions.

As for coats and dresses, members of the women's coat and suit industry have assured WPB that women will be well-styled and warmly clad whatever amount of wool the government gives us . . . plan is to blend used and reworked wool with cotton, rayon, and virgin wool . . . there'll be more rayon stockings . . . silk stocks are virtually used up, most of the nylon supply will soon be needed for military purposes.

Women and the work of war—(1) WPB doesn't want a broad wave of knitting that will consume millions of pounds of wool needed for more essential purposes. It does want women to knit sweaters when commanding officers have asked for them. To be sure, ask the Red Cross. (2) WPB labor director Sidney Hillman says more than a million women will be needed for work in war industry. (3) America's more than 3,000 women pilots were called "indispensable" to the Civil Air Patrol by its national commander . . . the air patrol, organized by the office of civilian defense, invites college flyers and aviation followers to join up . . . training courses are being prepared . . . WPB won't grant priorities for steel to be used in air raid shelters, steel offers better protection when it's in guns or ships.

Having cut the output of radios and radio-phonographs by more than 40 per cent—and there probably are still further cuts ahead—WPB moved to reduce production of "non-essential" incandescent lamps by 50 per cent . . . the price administrator's office has asked makers of electrical hearing aids not to raise prices . . . OPA has begun a checkup of dealers in new tires and tubes throughout the country to find out who has been breaking rationing regulations . . . WPB's Industrial Conservation Bureau has launched a drive on auto boneyards . . . the goal—five or six million old cars in six months for scrap metal . . . more than 15,000 retail merchants throughout the country are aiding the drive to salvage materials for war and WPB is receiving new pledges at the rate of thousands each day . . . the country's entire supply of aluminum has now been marshalled for war.

"We'll not see each other again," she said.

"Only if you send for me."

George for some reason found it hard to learn the island tongue, so he could not yet preach to the Islanders. Mary sometimes thought he was homesick, because he often talked about his boyhood in Maine; and he liked to ask her about her years at school in New Bedford, about her uncle who was mate aboard the whaler, and her cousin, young Tommy Hanline.

There were other occasions when George asked her questions about the Venturer, and about the men aboard her, and especially about Richard Corr. As though the secret thought in George's mind took shape in hers, she sometimes wondered whether she would have fallen in love with Richard if she had been older, if he had ever wooed her, if they had met again before she married George. Now of course it would never happen; but she smiled sometimes, remembering the dreams she had used to dream when she was a child and Richard already a man.

She understood as the days passed that George both looked forward to the whaler's coming and dreaded it. When one day Jarambo came in some excitement to call them to see a distant sail, Mary asked quickly whether it was the Venturer. Jarambo said it was not.

At dark that night, the schooner was still distant, but at dawn she made in toward the roads. Mary saw that George was uneasy at the sight of this invader. They watched together, standing on the rocks above the landing place; and when the schooner approached the anchorage, Jarambo and the others prepared to launch canoes.

But George called them back. "Tell them only Jarambo is to go, Mary," he directed. "Have Jarambo tell the people aboard the schooner not to land here."

Mary urged: "Canoes always go off to any ship that comes in, George, and people come ashore."

We don't want sailors here on Gilead," he insisted.

She knew the message would be a useless one; but she told Jarambo to deliver it. He went off alone and they saw a white man speak to him from the deck of the schooner; and George commented scornfully: "That man's half naked, like a native!" Then the white man yonder dropped down into the canoe, and George said in deep resentment: "He's coming. Go to the house, Mary. I'll meet him here, get rid of him."

"Why, don't be silly! I'll stay and welcome him with you."

He said: "No, go to the house. If he sees you, he'll want to stay."

Mary was absurdly pleased. She smiled.

After a while she heard them coming near, and a strong young voice, laughing, said:

"You're damned mysterious! What have you got here, a gold mine? Man, these are hospitable seas. We make all comers welcome. You ought to learn the custom of the country."

She soon saw a young man in soiled white trousers, barefoot, naked to the waist, his skin bronzed by sun, fine golden hair curled tight on his chest, eyes blue as the sky in the brown of his countenance. He wore the radiance of bounding health; and when he saw her he stopped and cried delightedly:

"Oh, ho! No wonder you wanted no callers, Parson!"

Then he came forward by her husband's side; and George said grudgingly: "Mrs. McAusland, this is Mr. Aulgur."

The young man grasped her hand. "Fritz Aulgur," he corrected. "Your husband tried to warn me off; but now that I've seen you, you're going to have a lot of company here."

CHAPTER V

She said uneasily, and watching George: "Won't you come in?" She asked curiously: "Why will there be others coming?"

"Pearls!" he told her. His eyes were bold. "Not but what there'd be a rush anyway if they knew you were here, Mrs. McAusland." She felt George tight with rage beside her. "Pearls!" Fritz repeated. "Black Laureace found shell in the lagoon across the Island, months ago. The typhoon caught him, ripped his masts out; and I picked him off what was left of his schooner. He had a broken head and died of it; but I pieced together things he said with the prickings on his chart, and figured where he'd been and what he'd found. His halfbreed supercargo caught me studying the chart and tried to knife me as we were making into harbor. He missed his try and dove overboard and got away. I tried to pot him in the dark, but no go. He'll be back, with his friends, as soon as he can raise the wind; but I came along for a look-see."

He stayed an hour, did most of the talking.

He had known Mary's father, had touched here once four or five years ago. "I get around," he said. "I'm apt to drop in almost everywhere, give me time."

Mary asked him whether in his travels he had seen the Venturer. He had, three months before. "In Honolulu," he said. "She's been all over the lot, was just about full up."

She had next day a message from Corkran, a question; and when George was asleep in the afternoon she walked toward the beach, sure the sailor would be there to meet her. He was, and he asked: "Now, who was the fine young man who visited you, yesterday?"

Mary told him, and he listened with a gravity that disturbed her. "Honey fetches the wasps," he commented soberly when she finished. "There'll be more like him along, or maybe worse. How did himself take it? He was red behind the ears, I'm thinking?"

"I'm afraid so."

"Aye, like a boy looking on at a game he don't know how to play. Himself takes life the hard, tough way." He looked at her with a curious gentleness. "I thought he'd know better by now." She wondered why she found his understanding so full of comfort. He was like her own thoughts. "Well, ma'am," he said, "anytime you need me, I'm here, standing by."

She went back to the house surprisingly strengthened.

Mary and George almost forgot Aulgur during the days that followed. Something more imminent and dreadful rose like a cloud to shadow their lives. George seemed now completely healed of the cold which he had caught when he fell overboard; but within a few weeks after they landed on the island, there were coughs and colds and sneezings all around them. Ioni died, and others too. Mary was deeply distressed; but George professed not to be surprised.

"It's always been the same," he insisted. "In the Sandwich Islands the natives have been dying off ever since the first ships touched there. There aren't many births, you know, and a lot of babies are strangled as soon as they're born. Or thrown over the cliffs."

"But they love the children," she urged jealously. "Almost too much. Not only their own children, but all of them. Don't you notice that children are never punished or disciplined here, George?"

"Yes. They should be, too. Some of them need it."

She warned him quickly: "Don't try it. I remember Father saying that they would never forgive that. I'm almost sure there've been some massacres and bad trouble where white people struck a child or something. They'd never forgive us if we were unkind to the children."

He smiled faintly. "I've no intention of doing anything of the sort."

He returned to the point. "But the thing is, these Islanders have been dying off for generations. Plagues have killed them off."

"Nobody was ever sick here when I was little. I remember Father was always proud of it."

"They need to learn how to take care of themselves, that's all. We'll have to teach them to build proper houses, to live properly."

But the remedy was not so simple as he thought. After Fritz Aulgur's first visit, the epidemic suddenly extended its attack. George labored over the sick with an ardor that seemed visibly to drag the flesh off his bones. He became thin and gaunt with his own efforts.

He was a methodical man. He kept a diary, recording every day's events. One day he said to her: "Mary, thirty-two people have died since we came, in less than four months' time."

She saw that he was shaken in his certainties, and his nerves were raw; and she sought to strengthen him in many ways. He began to long for the coming of the Venturer, thought Captain Corr would surely have medicines aboard.

They forgot the pearls in the lagoon across the Island, forgot Fritz about three weeks after he sailed out of the roads, Fritz returned, and —he stayed two days. Despite George's protests, he came often ashore. He showed them the pearls he had already found, warm with life as though they had a pulse of their own, so that Mary caught her breath at sight of them; and Fritz saw how she was stirred, and he told her that a pearl needed to be worn to acquire beauty.

She liked Fritz. By contrast with her husband's somber garments, the golden brown on this young man's bare chest and shoulders was warm and beautiful. Against her husband's austere denial of the flesh, this Fritz Aulgur by his frank acceptance of it seemed to shine. She asked curiously:

"How long have you been living so, sailing around alone? Aren't you lonesome, sometimes?"

He chuckled. "Lonesome? Now, it would need a woman to think that, always so sure a man must have some woman forever by him." His eyes clouded, seeming to look past her; and he shook his head. "No, the sea's company. The sea and the wind. Yes, they're company enough for a man. Too much for some men, maybe, like a heavy wine. If you've seen many men in their liquor—and how could you ever, to be sure?—you'll know what I mean."

George made a resentful sound; but Mary urged, deeply interested: "No, I haven't, of course. So—what do you mean?"

Fritz smiled. "Why, only that some men are better drunk than sober, and some are better sober than drunk. It's the same with the sea. One man will be made by it, and another spoiled. Liquor, and the wrong woman, and a long voyage will each strip the trimmings off a man. I've seen more than one that was fine to look at start off on a long cruise with his head high, and come home . . ." He hesitated, quoted then: " 'Lean, rent, and beggar'd by the strumpet wind!' " And he chuckled and said: "Only the man that wrote that did not mean the wind by itself. It was the sea he meant. A woman—even a bad one—is mild and easy enough till something stirs her up; and when she's roused, it's the woman who's dangerous, not the thing that roused her. It's the strumpet sea that tears a man and strips him and peels him down till you can see what's in him. The wind no more than rouses up the strumpet sea."

Mary nodded thoughtfully; but George spoke, in angry interruption. "You like the taste of an ugly word, Aulgur, to keep repeating it."

Fritz said amiably: "It's a good word all the same, Parson. It means what it says." Nevertheless he tempered his remarks thereafter; and as though he began to be sorry for George, he treated him from that hour with gentleness. Only when on the third day, the storm having passed, he was about to depart, George woke a moment's flare of anger in him. Aulgur wished to give Mary one of his pearls. "For your hospitality," he said. "With my thanks! Wear it. A pearl needs wearing, to make it completely beautiful."

He held it toward her in his palm; but before she could move, George by her side struck down that open hand with a violent gesture. The pearl did not fall, because Fritz closed his fingers on it; and he looked at George with narrowed eyes. He said through teeth that were white and even and firm:

"Don't do that again, my friend. Parson or no parson!"

George retorted: "Then don't you insult Mrs. McAusland."

"Food for Freedom" Meetings Are Scheduled Week of Feb. 9

All farmers and their families are invited to attend the nearest meeting in a series of discussions to be held during the week of February 9th. You should be interested in discussing the part that Charlevoix county farmers must play in the food for freedom efforts. Certainly agriculture has a definite responsibility in winning the war for our future peace and security. These discussions have been planned by the U.S.D.A. War Board, which represents all agricultural agencies operating in this county. In addition to the AAA and extension representative who will conduct the meeting it is hoped to have a member of the County Defense council present at all meetings.

We want to present the civilian defense progress and the various ways in which we can all help in this present emergency. The AAA program likewise will have some information that will affect the farmers intentions this year. The shortage of farm labor, the difficulties in obtaining the sufficient new machinery and repair parts, the development of the Victory Garden program, the feed situation and numerous other topics of vital interest will be brought to your attention. In other words we want to have this opportunity of discussing with you all of these activities that influences your farm program this summer. Likewise, we want everyone in the county to know the opportunities for serving our country in this hour of need. These meetings will be short and snappy. Bring the members of your family as the farm women are only too anxious to know the latest developments and thus render their aid.

The following schedule will be followed for the week of February 9th with each forenoon meeting starting at 10:15 and each afternoon meeting at 2:00. The following week another schedule will be announced for the farmers in the east end of the county.

Tuesday, February 10th: Morning, Marion Center Grange; afternoon, Barnard.

Wednesday, February 11: Morning, Maple Grove Grange; afternoon, Peninsula.

Thursday, February 12: Morning, Rock Elm Grange; afternoon, South Arm Grange.

Cicero once said "Any man may make a mistake; none but a fool will persist in it." At Pearl Harbor we suffered the greatest defeat in the history of our nation or any other nation. Yet Pearl Harbor may prove to be a fundamental reason for our ultimate victory, if we will fully benefit by the lessons learned at Pearl Harbor.

The Roberts Report clearly implies that one of the fundamental causes for the disaster was the lack of unity of command. The lack of unity of command made itself disastrously felt how? It made itself felt by reason of the fact that neither the army nor the navy commander kept his air patrols in the air. Aircraft is the only adequate defense against aircraft. The army commander said he assumed the navy patrol was functioning far at sea. The naval commander said he assumed the army in-shore patrol was at work. Neither took the trouble to inform himself of what the other's subordinate air force was doing. The result — a colossal naval defeat and a colossal army defeat by aircraft.

Washington hails the announcements of last week that unified command has now been provided at Pearl Harbor, Panama, the Caribean and elsewhere in our far-flung military commands. Washington expects this move will be highly beneficial.

But Pearl Harbor gives other lessons which we should heed. Pearl Harbor teaches us that if we are ultimately to win this war, we must change our way of thinking. The time of our ultimate victory is directly dependent on the speed with which we change our manner of thinking. We have not yet in our highest military minds changed our way of thinking sufficiently to recognize the full import of aviation in the war of today and in the wars of tomorrow.

Let us remember clearly that the aircraft which the Japanese used at Hawaii, and which they have used subsequently in the Malay Peninsula and in the Far East is not, strictly speaking, modern aircraft. It has been clearly proven in all of the Far Eastern warfare to date that the Japanese aircraft and the Japanese pilots are inferior; and they have suffered tremendous losses in planes and personnel in their contacts with the American, Dutch, British and even Chinese pilots.

But Pearl Harbor and the Far East prove to us that the Japanese have been successful principally because they have been able to carry out that famous maxim of a famous southern Civil War general who said—"to win a war is to get there 'fustus' with the 'mostest' men." In other words the Japanese have been victorious today simply because they have had a preponderance of aircraft and because they have maintained superiority in the skies.

This war to date in every instance has proven that victory goes to him who has command of the skies. And, furthermore, in every instance these victories have been achieved by an independent air force operating under an independent air command. Many of us in Washington are deeply concerned because our military and naval high commands steadfastly refuse to permit an independent air command in our armed forces, but instead steadfastly hold to their outworn traditional belief that aircraft must remain as an auxiliary arm of the army and navy; and as long as airpower must remain subordinate to the other two, we are in a fair way to take a bad licking.

Every victory in this war has been directly due to mastery of the air at the time and that mastery has been achieved by an independent air command. Why then should we be bound by the traditions of the past, and subordinate our air power?

Aviation is a specialty and its techniques and tactics should be worked out by those who are primarily air minded. It is only from those minds that innovations in air techniques and air strategy develop. This has been recognized in every nation except our own. We are the greatest mechanically minded nation on earth and when we fully recognize the possibilities of aviation, and when we recognize the full import of the fact that we must completely unshackle the aviation brains of this nation, then we will out-think and out-plan our enemies and in our turn will spring intellectual and technological surprises on the world.

Navies are no longer able to fulfill one of their primary functions, namely, to take the offensive initiative against enemy shores. The greatest English battleships uflont dare not approach an Axis shore, protected by land-based aircraft. We have but to recall the sinkings of the Repulse and Prince of Wales by the inferior Japanese aircraft to prove this point. We have but to recall that it is the Royal Air Force, not the British fleet, which has been called upon to bomb Hitler's submarine bases.

However, apropos of our naval thinking is the fact that even while the Harruna, the Repulse, the Prince of Wales, and the Arizona—and possibly several more American battleships—were resting on the bottom of the Pacific, there was still on our news-stands an article by Frank Knox, our secretary of the navy, ridiculing those who suggest that the "battleship has been outmoded by the airplane," and in fact in an earlier article he had specified that "in nearly two years of war, no modern battleship has been sunk by a plane." How then can we expect Mr. Knox to fully recognize and give full credit to the possibilities of aircraft? How then can we expect him to recognize the truth of the statement made by Major De Seversky, one of our nation's outstanding aviation authorities that —"the nation, or combination of nations, which dominates the air over our planet will rule the world, just as in the past the powers which controlled the seas ruled the world. No victory on the surface is permanent unless it is guaranteed by airpower"? And I agree with Major De Seversky when he states further — "Those who do not grasp this new reality are disqualified by definition to lead a modern war."

Had we had an independent air command at Pearl Harbor, aircraft would have been in the air and even such an admittedly few modern aircraft as we had at Hawaii would have, undoubtedly, either prevented the Japanese from over reaching their destination or at least would have tremendously minimized the effectiveness of their disastrous attack.

Office supplies of any description may be obtained quickly through the Charlevoix Courier.—Adv. 29

cils were Democrats, 52 per cent were Republicans or independents. He added: "The state defense council is overwhelming Republican."

Vincent Sheean, newspaper correspondent recently returned from the Orient, shocked a capital city audience the other night by predicting (a) eventual loss of Singapore and Dutch East Indies; (b) attempted invasion of the Pacific west coast by the Japanese; (c) a minimum of three more years of war; and (d) ultimate triumph of the democracies following great sacrifice of men and material . . . Mid-West is not yet aware of the war perils, he warned.

Blackout of Michigan communities must not be conducted unless permission is granted by the Michigan Council of Defense and the Army Air Corps, the state council emphasizes in a warning to local councils. Reasons: "General misconception" of nature of blackouts.

Designation of military units with names of servicemen will be missing from news items of Michigan newspapers. Reason: Michigan editors are cooperating voluntarily to withhold information which might prove helpful to the enemy. By identifying one man accurately, spies can ascertain the whereabouts of entire divisions, sometimes with fatal results.

"Tempest in a tea-pot", a headline battle that flared here several weeks ago, was the scare about state censorship of all civilian news. Actual facts:

The Michigan Council of Defense had gone on record twice in the past seven months in opposition to censorship, other than of a voluntary kind. No censorship had been ever contemplated at Lansing. Careless phrasing of a legislative bill permitted the sensational interpretation; writers in righteous wrath promptly revealed "plot." No one was more surprised at the news than members of the state defense council.

Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly, prominently mentioned as a Republican nominee for governor, was "put on the spot" by M. A. ("Mike") Gorman, editor, Flint Journal, at a banquet at Michigan State college the other night. Gorman toasted: "Mr. Kelly has a big job ahead of him in the next few months. He'll have to make up his mind!" Kelly laughed, blushed, kept mum.

Senator Prentiss M. Brown, St. Ignace, up for re-election in 1942, was chin-high in price control negotiations at Washington as chairman of the senate sub-committee in charge of it. Brown who opposed farm lobby efforts to raise prices, knows his dilemna. Nobody will like the act. One way to become unpopular overnight would be to accept responsibility of price administrator for Michigan. And yet, someone must do the job.

Deer population in Michigan has declined sharply in recent years. Reasons, as ascribed by the state department of conservation: Overbrowsing in deer yards during winter months, starvation due to lack of winter food, and the 1941 coup doe law (held illegal). More flexible control by the conservation commission would be helpful, thus permitting shooting in overpopulated areas and restricted shooting in other zones, according to conservation officials. Because of legislative touchiness, no such request is contemplated, however.

One of Michigan's hardest-working public officials is Leo V. Card, commissioner of agriculture and dirt-farmer. Card's official hours are almost endless. As a mediator in the Detroit milk negotiations, he recently spent most of the week in the metropolitan area, while directing the state department day and night by telephone and hurried commuting trips. Lawrence O'Neill, upper peninsula born deputy commissioner, recently pleaded with Curd to spare himself of such physical efforts. Remembered at Lansing is the unexpected death of the late Elmer A. Besmer, commissioner of agriculture, from a heart attack.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

Peppers as House Plants

The miniature ornamental peppers are extremely easy to grow from seed. If started early in March in flats in the house and later planted out in rows about a foot apart in good soil in the garden, they will bear large quantities of peppers before frost. The plants should be pinched back to induce branching and watered when necessary.

They may also be lifted carefully in the fall with a generous ball of dirt and potted up to continue developing their fruits. The white blooms and red peppers contrasting with the vivid crisp green foliage present a very pleasing combination. This is particularly true of the decidedly miniature Tom Thumb or the Little Gem pepper.

The variegated-leaved Capsicum frutescens (C. annuum) is more unusual and not as common as some of the other varieties. It makes a truly beautiful house-plant and is beloved by those who like the combination of green and cream foliage. The stems throughout the plant repeat the dark purple of the fruit which resemble in size and shape those of the Christmas pepper. Later the fruit turns scarlet. The blossoms which come first are lavender and five-lobed, as is characteristic of all peppers. Even without flowers or fruit this plant is beautiful.

This variety seems to endure the dry heat of living rooms better than some of the others. Like all peppers, it likes a great deal of water with an occasional spraying of its leaves.

AT THE MOVIES

"The Maltese Falcon" to Show at Palace Theater

The Palace Theater's new feature attraction, starting on Saturday, February 7, will be "The Maltese Falcon," starring Humphrey Bogart. Adapted for the screen from the Dashiell Hammett novel, the film is a well-concocted mystery drama with a liberal dash of comedy and romance.

Besides Bogart, there is charming Mary Astor in the romantic lead, Gladys George and Lee Patrick to give her some competition with the hero, Peter Lorre, in one of his most sinister roles, Sydney Greenstreet, well-known stage actor, from the cast of the Lunt-Fontnine play, "There Shall Be No Night," Elisha Cook Jr., Jerome Cowan, Barton MacLane and others.

Hollywood's New Romantic Couple

Robert Sterling and Jean Rogers are Hollywood's latest romantic team. They play a young intern and his fiancee, a trained nurse, in "Dr. Kildare's Victory," Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's newest Kildare picture, coming Wednesday, February 11, to the Palace Theater.

Their romance is encouraged and their wedding facilitated in the story by Lew Ayres, playing Dr. Kildare, and Lionel Barrymore, playing the crusty Dr. Gillespie.

Major W. S. Van Dyke II directed the picture, which features Ann Ayars, the director's "discovery," in the feminine lead.

What do you expect of a Bank? What are your needs? What can we do for you, more than we are already doing? Will you come in and talk it over?

We will be glad to welcome you. We want to know how to better meet your needs. We are thinking about this every day. Are you? We would be only too glad to talk over community and business matters with you. We already have a good Bank, but are trying in every way to make it better.

a rival sports editor as the "cornbelt's most kissable," admitted it and accepted an offer to ruffle his kisses at a dime a pucker. In enumerating his more admirable points he said: "I'm younger than Barrymore, got more hair than Boyer and not so tall as Jimmy Stewart, so the gals can reach me without stretching." The kiss ruffle took place between halves of a special Red Cross benefit basketball game. O'Donnell, one of the referees, worked the game with no compensation but the kisses. Mrs. O'Donnell officiated the kissing match. She was the referee—and timer! Come to think about it, I have all of O'Donnell's qualifications with possibly the exception of the hair, and—well, maybe there'll be another Red Cross drive soon.

The man who is occasionally voted down on an idea that turns out to be good should remember that he is often saved embarrassment by being voted down on ideas that turn out to be bad.

Nurse: "You wish to see the young man injured in the motor accident? You were the lady he was with?

Girl: "Yes, I thought it would be only fair to give him the kiss he was trying to get."

The best inheritance that a father can leave a son is the training and knowledge necessary to earn a living.

Smelt fishing tops the list of sportsman's activities at the present time. A smelt village is located on Lake Charlevoix off the Ferry avenue bathing pier, site of productive smelt grounds several years ago. Good catches are being made both night and daytime, it is understood. Whitefish grounds off the Belvedere pier are also providing regular catches, we hear, and now that Monday night's zero temperature has given Round lake another covering of ice, perch fishing should have another inning.

Deer have been reported in this vicinity of late in the largest numbers ever before heard of. Mrs. Emma Sutton telephoned she saw six crossing her farm. Frank Richardson reported seeing eight at his place south of Norwood. Ist Alward a herd of 14 south of Atwood, and the Pere Marquette Railway t'o. train crew a group of nine at the Waller crossing north of town. That's a good indication for next year.

And speaking about the telephone reminds me of the story of the unsuspecting husband who answered the telephone thusly: "I don't know, call the weather bureau," and then hung up. "Who was that?" asked his wife. "Some sailor, I guess. He asked if the coast was clear."

STATE-OWNED LANDS FURNISHING FREE MATERIALS

State-owned lands last year yielded more than $75,000 worth of materials for state highways and county roads and for the use of cities, villages and other governmental agencies which obtain them without cost, the conservation department's lands division reports.

MORE FOREST FIRES IN '41 BUT SMALLER LOSS

Conservation Department of This District Puts Out 211 Blazes

According to Robert J. Furlong, district supervisor of the department of conservation, there were more forest fires in this district in 1941 than in 1940 but less acreage was burned in the past year. This district is comprised of the counties of Emmet, Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Otsego.

The total number of fires, 211, as compared to 68 in 1940, shows the effect of the prolonged dry weather experienced in the past season. The acreage lost however shows very efficient work on the part of the fire fighting personnel as only 758 acres were lost as compared to 915 in 1940. Of this acreage lost, 511 acres in 93 fires can be traced to carelessness by smokers, while 41 fires originated from railroads and 26 by brush burning.

A break-down by counties is as follows: Antrim, 39 fires, 99.39 acres burned; Charlevoix, 28 fires, 25.51 acres; Cheboygan, 50 fires, 207.37 acres; Emmet, 42 fires, 65.12 acres; Otsego, 52 fires; 360.65 acres.

The total cost of suppression for the district was $2,252.06 or $2.97 per acre.

Much of the area burned was of no commercial value from a timber standpoint. There being 644.30 acres of denuded forest land and non-forest land burned out of the total of 758 acres.

KIWANIS NOTES

Miss Olive Allen, who is in charge of the local branch of Western Union, reviewed the history and highlights of that great organization before club members and guests at the regular meeting held, Tuesday evening, at the I.O.O.F. hall.

Graphic description of the growth and service of this part of our modern civilization, with its 60,000 employees, 15,000 messengers, 20,000 offices, additional thousands of agencies; 218,000 miles of pole lines, which carry nearly two million miles of wire; and the story of the growth of the army of trained workers, who keep the lines ready for service in any emergency, was unfolded by the speaker.

Few, if any present, had ever heard of instruments that make the sending of 120 messages simultaneously over four wires; or of the giant plow, with its 43,000 pound cable, built to withstand a strain of 65,000 pounds, which is used to plow under the cables on the floor of the ocean two thousand feet below the surface.

A story gave a new definition of night letters, and is: "Mama, what are prayers?" "Prayers, darling, are little messages to heaven." "Oh. And we send them at night, like Western Union, to get the cheap rate."

The meeting closed with "Happy Birthday" for Kiwanian Floyd Ikens, who has one February 4th. (No. We did not say which one.)

Guests were: Mrs. Harry E. Bingham, first lady of Charlevoix Kiwanis; Gladwin H. Lewis, Traverse City, past District Governor of Michigan Kiwanis; Cliff McKibbin, Charlevoix; W. S. Bake and L. J. Tefft, Detroit.

PRODUCTION OF FISH INCREASE DURING 1941

Lake Superior Showed Biggest Gain for Great Lakes

In support of the national Fishery Council's sharp denial of rumors of a shortage of fish on the market, the Michigan department of conservation cites the 1941 production of the state's commercial fishermen, which at 26,766,085 pounds is 723,761 pounds above the 1940 production.

In 1941 Lake Superior fishermen made the greatest gains producing 1,289,601 pounds more than in the year before and 2,322,864 pounds more than in 1939. Biggest decline was in Saginaw Bay, where fishermen brot in 906,539 pounds less than in 1940. The decline was in the take of herring, which was off more than 900,000 pounds while the take of walleyes showed a slight increase. Total Saginaw Bay take in 1941 was about 4,000,000 pounds under the 1939 production.

In Michigan Great Lakes waters as a whole, the haul of lake trout was up 205,409 pounds, the harvest of lake whitefish rose 166,865 pounds, and smelt moved from ninth place in 1939 to third place in 1941 in total poundage. Increases also were registered in carp, catfish and chub fisheries. The lake herring total showed the greatest decline of the year, dropping 265,051 pounds.

By lakes, the 1941 catch in Michigan Great Lakes waters (with 1940 comparisons) is, in pounds: Lake Michigan, 9,183,478 (down 15,648); Lake Superior, 8,079,167 (up 1,289,601); Lake Huron, 2,902,034 (up 277,940); Saginaw Bay, 5,480,769 (down 906,639); Lake Erie, 1,120,637 (up 78,407).

By species, the 1941 catch in pounds is divided as follows: lake herring, 8,499,608 (down 265,051); lake trout, 5,767,510 (up 205,409); smelt, 3,036,244 (up 617,559); white and redhorse suckers, 2,191,795 (down 333,909); yellow pike, 1,692,542 (down 211,111); lake whitefish, 1,643,198 (up 166,865); carp, 1,456,891 (up 255,174); yellow perch, 811,301 (down 52,758); chubs, 168,542 (up 15,741); catfish, 133,202 (up 158,790); longnosed suckers, 248,375; sheepshead, 170,990; Menominee whitefish, 118,170; bullheads, 81,550; sangers, 48,971; white bass, 33,237; rock bass, 14,399; blue pike, 7,723; burbot, 6,721; bowfins 4,324; goldfish, 441; gizzard shad, 279; Great Lakes shiners, 72.

LAKE TROUT MAY BE SOLD BY FISHERMEN

Anglers Need Commercial License to Sell Other Species

Lake trout caught through the ice on Great Lakes waters are the only game fish that persons without commercial fishing licenses may sell in Michigan, the conservation department is reminding winter fishermen who in recent years may have sold perch and walleyes as well.

A change in the wording of Act 165 of the public acts of 1929 (as amended) from "taken in accordance with the commercial fishing laws" to "taken under a commercial fishing license," made in 1941, clarifies the statute so that the ban on the sale of game fish can be enforced. Lake trout taken through the ice of Great Lakes waters are the only exception.

Minimum commercial fishing license under which perch and walleyes may be taken and sold costs $10.

4-H CLUBBERS POINT FOR WARTIME GOALS

Increase Production of Livestock and Farm Produce

Michigan's wartime effort, bolstered by the good citizenship of the 65,000 boys and girls enrolled in 4-H club work, takes on a more vigilant pace in 1942 plans.

Already under way is a series of 4-H leadership meetings, county by county, to put greater emphasis on farm gardens, dairy, pig and poultry production, health, meal planning and food preservation.

To each of these county meetings which are scheduled through March 13, the invitation has gone out to members of existing county 4-H club councils, teachers, parents and sponsoring organizations. Even more voluntary local leaders are sought to add to the 7,600 now serving the 4-H movement.

"The need for additional leadership is natural" explains A. G. Kettunen, state leader on the Michigan State college staff. "We will adjust the program to meet war needs and yet retain as many of the normal club activities as possible."

In World War I, Michigan's 4-H membership gave spontaneous answer to demand for war garden production. The demonstration of service a quarter century ago is considered a good guide to the response expected in the present program. Nationally, the 4-H movement involves 1,500,000 boys and girls.

Rural and village youths between the ages of 10 to 21 are eligible to participate. Enrollment of new members likely will expand membership in Michigan to a new all-time peak.

EAST JORDAN LEADS IN WEEK'S BOND SALE

Pulls Close to Boyne City in Selling Competition

With last week's sale of Defense bonds, East Jordan pulled close up behind Boyne City in the county race. The sum of $8,850 in bonds was sold in East Jordan, and stamp sales were $105.

Charlevoix's $3,375 in bonds keeps this city in the lead in that division. Stamps amounted to $153.25. In Boyne City, bond sales were $2,800, stamp sales were $260.

Totals to date are: Charlevoix, bonds, $35,625; stamps, $1,191.75; Boyne City, bonds, $29,249; stamps, $3,683.45; East Jordan, bonds, $28,975, stamps, $707.75.

INFORMATION REGARDING INCOME TAX

Many farmers will be liable for filing income tax returns and payment of tax for the first time this year. The term "farmers" includes livestock raisers, fruit and truck growers, and operators of plantations and ranches.

Farmers may maintain their records and file their returns of income on either the cash receipts and disbursements basis or on the accrual basis of accounting. A consistent method must, however, be employed. If a cash basis is used, Form 1040F, "Schedule of Farm Income and Expenses," is required to be filled out and filed in conjunction with Form 1040.

Deductions from gross income may be made by farmers as necessary expenses, all amounts expended (other than those constituting capital expenditures) in carrying on the business of farming. Deductions for expenses include such items as cost of feeding and raising livestock (except the value of farm produce grown upon the farm and the labor of the taxpayer); cost of seed, minor repairs to farm buildings (other than the dwelling of the farmer); small tools used up in the course of a year or two; fuel and oil used for farm work; repairs and maintenance of farm machinery; hired laborers and hired machines, and cost of commercial fertilizers the benefit of which is of short duration.

The cost of farm machinery, equipment and farm buildings; amounts expended in the development of farms, orchards and ranches, as well as the amounts expended in the restoration of soil fertility preparatory to actual production of crops and the cost of liming soil to increase productiveness over a period of years, are capital expenditures.

Losses incurred in the operation of farms as business enterprises are deductible from gross income. If livestock has been purchased for any purpose, and afterwards dies from disease, exposure or injury, or is killed by order of the authorities of a state or the United States, the actual purchase price of such livestock, less any depreciation allowable as a deduction in respect of such perished livestock, may be deducted as a loss if the loss is not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

If gross income is ascertained by the use of inventories, no deduction can be taken separately for livestock or products lost during the year.

Perils of Syphilis

Addressing the recent meeting of the American Pharmaceutical association, Dr. Walter Clark of the American Social Hygiene association declared that, despite a vigorous campaign of education at least one person in 20 is suffering from active syphilis. Venereal diseases still greatly exceed the prevalance rates of tuberculosis and infantile paralysis.

Dr. Clark pointed out that mortality statistics for the United States indicate slightly less than 12,000 deaths annually from syphilis but that this figure is wholly misleading. Most of the deaths caused by the disease are recorded under some other classification. Locomotor ataxia and general paralysis of the insane are manifestations of syphilis and at least 10 per cent of the deaths resulting from disease of the heart and blood vessels may be truly attributed to the same cause. Probably as high a mortality from disorders of the nervous system, the kidneys, liver, stomach and other vital organs are chargeable to syphilis.

Thus, in Dr. Clark's opinion, the true death rate of syphilis approximates 100,000 and is considerably higher than that if stillbirths, caused by infected mothers, are added to the total.

Syphilis is deservedly ranked among the great killers, comparable to heart disease cancer, pneumonia and tuberculosis. Yet, unlike its companions, it is easily conquered by medical science, supported by aroused public sentiment. Congenital syphilis can be cured and even after infection of the child has occurred, cure may be achieved.

These are positive statements of fact. Yet, a survey made by the American Social Hygiene Association indicates that unethical and unqualified practices in diagnosis and treatment of venereal diseases are more prevalent now than they were five years ago. Apparently, the nation-wide campaign of education has but assisted in lining the pockets of charlatans, quacks and purveyors of "remedies."

In no uncertain language, Dr. Clark told the pharmacists that an adequate diagnosis could be made only by a skilled physician. He urged the druggists to discourage self-medication and to refer all applicants to a doctor.

"Modern treatment can render these diseases non-infectious, can cure most cases and alleviate suffering in all cases," he said. "So-called 'patient remedies' for the self-treatment of syphilis or gonorrhea should not be sold even if they are demanded. The pharmacist knows that these 'remedies' are worthless and that they may cause the applicant to waste not only his money but also an opportunity for an early cure. Further, such 'remedies' do not stop the spread of the infection and the patient may unwittingly give the disease to others."

TB CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE HITS NEW HIGH

Contributions in Michigan Reach Record Total of $288,440

The 1941 tuberculosis Christmas seal in Michigan has broken all past records it was revealed today when the Michigan Tuhereulosis association prepared its quarterly report for board members. Tho sale has reached $268,440 and if past experience holds true, many individuals will yet send in checks for their seals.

"This sum sounds like a great deal of money," said Theo. J. Werle, executive secretary of the Michigun Tuberculosis association, "yet it is about five per cent of the amount spent from Michigan taxes annually to treat persons who have tuberculosis. The Christmas seal is the proverbial ounce of prevention. Even without counting the suffering and loss of lives, tuberculosis is certninly cheaper to prevent than cure."

Before this Christmas seal sale the record in Michigan was held by the 1928 sale which reached $252,180.

TAKE STEPS CONTROL DOGS HERE

HEALTH OFFICER INVOKES QUARANTINE IN CITY

Council Passes Regulating Ordinance To Control Possible Spread of Epidemic

The city council Monday night took drastic steps to control dogs in event of spread of a rabies epidemic in Emmet county and scattered cases in the east portion of Charlevoix county.

Following the council's action, Dr. Gilbert B. Saltonstall, city health officer, Tuesday invoked a quarantine on dogs until further notice, providing immediate steps for control of dogs in the city.

The council passed an ordinance which provides for restraining dogs during the period of emergency. Dog owners face a fine or possible imprisonment or loss of their dogs if they fail to observe the quarantine. Full text of the ordinance and the quarantine order appear elsewhere in this issue.

In the meantime, Proseeuting Attorney Norman Ance is preparing proper forms and meana for various township boards of the county to establish similar restrictions. Boyne City, it ia understood, has taken measures amounting to a quarantine on dogs and is expected at a special council meeting this week to pass a regulating ordinance. East Jordan is expected to take aimilar steps.

UNION SERVICE FRIDAY, WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

Custom First Observed in 1887 by Presbyterian Women

World Day of Prayer will be observed Friday, February 20th, with union services at the Congregational church at 2:30 o'clock that afternoon.

As far back as 1887, Presbyterian women of the United States observed a day of prayer for home missions. Interest in such an observance increased until in 1920, both in Cnnada and this country, church women of all denominations selected the first Friday in Lent as a day of prayer for missions, home and foreign.

In numberless places around the world the thought of a day of prayer spread until, at the request of many far-away friends, a World Dny of Prayer was first observed in 1927. In 1936, Christians of more than fifty countries kept the day together.

The local committee urges Christian people of this community to come together at the Congregational church on Friday, February 20, to join in seeking the mind of Christ about the tragic world in which we live.

COUNTY ROAD EMPLOYEES STRIKE

THREE GARAGES PICKETED SINCE LAST SATURDAY

Equipment Is Used for Required Maintenance; Road Commission Refuses Union Recognition

While a county-wide strike of Charlevoix county road commission employes has been in effect since Saturday, normal maintenance operations are being carried on.

Trucks, idle since the strike was called because weather conditions did not require their use, were moved out of the Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City garages Tuesday and Wednesday by regular employes without interference from picketing strikers and sympathizers. Either Sheriff Floyd W. Ikens or his deputies were present in each instance. State Police in squad cars Tuesday patroled highways upon which the trucks were operated.

Saturday's strike was the culmination of long-standing differences between the commission and employes.

William F. Tindall, commission chairman, stated that equipment would continue to be used when weather required and at auch time regular employea willing to work would be given an opportunity to do so, those unwilling replaced as necessity required.

SMALL GAME REPORT DEADLINE FEB. 15TH

Sportsmen Reminded of Duty to File Report of Kill

Like federal income tax papers, Michigan'a hunters and trappers havo an extra day'a grace this year for the filing of their game reports, because February 15, like the tax deadline a month later, falls on Sunday.

Unlike the tax reports, the game-kill cards—stubs of hunting licenscs — cost only the penny stamp required for mailing them.

Each card lists the kind and quantity of game bagged by the hunter, and the county in which it was shot. Run through tabulating machines by the tens of thousands, the cards furnish an index of hunting pressure and kill. Together with the conservation department's own investigations, they supply information for recommendations to the conservation commisslon and the legislature on changes in season dates, bag limits, and other regulations.

RAYDERS DEFEAT PETOSKEY QUINT

SCORED 30 TO 20 VICTORY THERE MONDAY NIGHT

Play at Grayling Friday Night; Meet East Jordan Here Tuesday, Feb. 17

Charlevoix's Red Rayders hung up their fourth consecutive hasketball victory Monday night with a 30 to 20 win over Petoskey's class B Northmen at Petoskey. In an earlier contest here, Petoskey won 30 to 18.

Crippled by the loss of Harbaugh from injuries and of Winnell and Potts through ineligibility at the semester, Petoskey was no match for the Rayders.

Goals by Carey, Mitchell and Rowe gave Charlevoix an 8 to 1 lead at the quarter. Petoskey's 9 points to Charlevoix's 3 narrowed the margin 11 to 10 at the half, but the second quarter rally was Petoskey's strongest bid for victory. Charlevoix out-scored Petoskey 14 points to 3 in the third period to sew the game up and coasted through although making only 5 pounts to Petoskey's 7 in the final stanza.

Monday night's victory was the first for a Charlevoix tesm over Petoskey in several years.

While Carey scored 11 points to lead the Rayder attack, scoring was well divided. Mitchell and Swanson contributed 6 points each, Stewart 5 and Rowe 2. Cooper was high for Petoskey with 6.

Charlevoix reserves did not fare to well, losing by a 27 to 23 score to the Petoskey second-stringers. Petoskey led throughout the contest, 8 to 8 at the quarter, 16 to 12 a the half, 25 to 16 at third intermission.

The Rayders play at Grayling on Friday evening of this week and next Tuesday evening meet East Jordan in the second of two contests played between the teams on Charlevoix's court.

SPECIAL CHURCH SERVICES SUNDAY

FEBRUARY 15-18 DESIGNATED "GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY"

County Council of Churches and Christian Education Sponsor County-Wide Observance

Churches of the county are uniting next Sunday in the observance of "Go to Church Sunday." The Charlevoix County Council of Churches and Christian Education, the sponsoring organization, selected this pre-Lenten date, February 15, believing it a fitting time to emphasize the work of the church and to urge church attendance.

Lenten services in our churches throughont the following six weeks should be especially helpful. During these days of war and oppression over most of the world, the privilege of freedom of worship is greatly appreciated. It is a time when the Christian church can prove of inestimable value to sorrowing, war-weary people.

Charlevoix churches belonging to the county council, in an advertisement on page four of this issue, urge everyone in this territory to attend the church of their choice next Sunday. Sermon subjects of the co-operating churches are listed below but the invitation is made in behalf of all churches in the community, regardless of creed.

The Church of God will have a guest speaker, Rev. Byron F. Chew, returned missionary from the West Indies, who will speak in the morning at 11 and again in the evening at 7:30, telling of his experience in those islands. The Baptist pastor, Rev. W. L. Cruthers, will speak on "Mutual Confession" at 11 a. m., also preaching at 7:30 in the evening. Rev. Donald R. Evans of the Congregational church will speak in the Charlevoix church at 11 a. m. and at Ironton at 1:30 on the subject "The Proud Company of Self Respect." Rev. Leigh H. Hagle of the Methodist church will speak at 11 a. m. on the subject "The Christ We Crown," and Rev. Harold C. Bingenoldus will speak on "The Power of Faith" at 1:30 p. m. at the South Barnard Reformed church.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By KEN USHER

I'm a great believer in conservatism and avoidance of waste, but easual observation of what stylists say aro going to be next summer'a bathing suits for ladies convinces me that bathing suit manufacturers are leaders in this movement.

Seems the change from Eastern Daylight savings time to Super-Duper Eastern Daylight Savings time caught most of us asleep. Set my own clock ahead Saturday to get in a little practice before Monday but discovered it's hard to teach an old dog new tricks. And speaking about the dog reminds me about how he reacted to the new order of things. Being a wise mutt and knowing the only thing that could get me out before sunrise was either a hunting or fishing trip, he figured my prowling around before daylight meant a hunting expedition, so howled his glee so loud it woke all the neighbors up and my section of town complied — unwillingly or otherwise. This may not be true, but I heard three farmers out south of town had to have treatment for injuries received when kicked by cows they attempted to milk before the animals had woke up. Otherwise it appears the changeover was accomplished without much fuss.

Orchids to the city council and "Doc" Saltonstall for their prompt action in providing Charlevoix protection from the rabies menace developed in Emmet county and the east section of our own county. They say "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of eure" and this instance is no exception.

In an exchange newspaper I saw the following item: "When trouble'a so high you can't climb over it, so wide you can't walk around it, so deep you can't dig under it, doggoned if the nnly way to beat it isn't to wade right through it." And that, in my opinion, is what the Charlevoix county road commission and Charlevoix cnunty law enforcement officials have done with the CIO-agitated road workers' strike. I'm mighty proud to

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Michigan's "news story of 1942" when recorded by historians, will probably be the unparalleled scrapping of the automoblle industry and the latter's complete conversaion to production of munitiona.

Its import staggers the imagination.

Developed for 35 years intn one of America's leading industries—one accredited by economists with leading the nation out of the world war depression — the automobile industry does not exist today. Assembly lines are being torn out. Space is needed for war orders.

Try to Comprehend this: War work of the Ford Motor company will require TWICE as many employees as were needed for making of automobiles and trucks.

Instead of 100,000 workers, Ford must have 200,000!

Chrysler's government contracts for army tanks today are TEN TIMES GREATER than the original order from Washington, large as it was.

General Motors is DOUBLING its dollar volume.

A labor shortage, such as Michigan has never experienced, is regarded as inevitable.

Military needs will take tens of thousands of men under 44. Married men with family depeadents—a wife with or without children—and single men supporting parents or other relatives face the prospect of ultimate military service.

Government aid for dependents will be supplied.

Furthermore, thousands of women will probahly work in war factories before Victory is achieved.

Transportation of workers to Michigan war plants is a major problem. Conversina of automobile carriers into buses is proposed in Detroit. New highwny and parking facilities are being studied. It's one of the numerous new headaches plaguing war planaers.

COMMUNICATION

Following is a letter received by Miss Olive Allen from her brother, L. G. Allen of Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii, telling of conditions in that city at the outbreak of war.

"Bob" and "Bill," referred to in the letter, are Bob Pearl, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Pearl, with the U. S. Navy at Pearl Harbor, and Bill Eccleston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Eccleston, with the Army Air Corps at Hickam Field. "Metta" is Mrs. Allen, who was formerly Miss Metta Sanford and resided in Eveline township.

3741 Mahiaa, Honolulu, T. H.
January 3, 1942.

Dear Sis:

I figure using Corona will make it easier on you and the censor. Excuse my tardiness in writing but spare time just ain't lately, what with trying to get the place blacked out and the end of the year bookkeeping to do getting ready for the tax collector. Will try and give you a history of what happened as far as it affected us.

The Saturday night before the trouble Bob spent with us. Bill was also expected but did not come. Sunday morning Roy up early and to stables. Metta got his breakfast and went back to bed. Fred was out playing when a neighbor came over and said Pearl Harbor was being bombed. We turned on the radio and heard music and a few minutes later they said the raid was the "real McCoy." We made coffee and toast and called Bob. Orders came over radio for all service men to report to their stations. Bob swallowed some chow and started out. The orders came for all civilians to keep themselves and their cars off the streets by military order. Also not to use the telephone. Finally the radio stations went off. Finally we found the police calls were coming in on our set and we got some news that way. I could see "blackout" coming so started hunting around. Found some big cardboard boxes that mattresses had come in. Nailed these up over the dining room windows and a piece of three-ply over the bath room window. We were the only ones blacked out that night and so our dining room was the neighborhood center. It was a few days before we got the kitchen fixed so had to cook supper before dark. Finally we changed working hours. Took one-half hour lunch and quit 3:30 so have more time to work after getting home.

Bill phoned about Tuesday or Wednesday that he was O. K. Then we did not know what to do. We were sure Bob was O. K. but did not know. If we wired you that we and Bill were O. K. Bob's folks would be worried. We finally got a note from Bob and then it was useless to wire. The lines at the cable stations were blocks long and no information as to when messages would go out and we were advised to use the air mail, which we did. We never heard from Bill again until he blew in last Tuesday. I went to work the Monday after the trouble and worked regularly since. Metta working more than ever as we generally have 7 or 8 for supper. Last night there were only the four of us for the first time. Tonight there were eight. Sure makes the grocery bill go up. Then Metta has been making blackout curtains and a million pounds of candy for the army and navy.

We, of course, went under martial law the first thing and they have placed lots of restrictions on us but nothing harsh or unnecessary. No booze—and that means NO BOOZE. The provost martial plays for keeps. Not like prohibition days. No speeding. A few tried it. Result—fine $5 to $25 and driving license taken away two to five years. Nobody speeds. Nobody allowed on streets after dark unless they have the authority. Private cars issued two five-gallon gasoline cards per month, but people who can show they really need more can have their allowance increased. However nobody gets any for joy riding. I figure if I ride the busses and only use the car for shopping, I can keep the tank filled for Bill and Bob and their friends to use when they come out on leave—to go swimming, etc. I understand it is a navy order that every man in port has to leave his ship and get out of the navy yard every fourth day. Bill did not seem to know when he would get leave again. They both look fine.

The schools are closed but they are talking of opening them some time in the future. I sometimes wish the schools could be put under military control—they might be interested in exposing the kids to information. It used to appear sometimes as if the "bored of idiocashun" was afraid the kids would learn something. Arithmetic, history, physiology, etc., were treated as educational secrets which could not be divulged.

As to money you better leave it in the bank. Every cent we have is here in Honolulu and while we are not worried there is a possibility we might have to get out and an evacuee who has a dollar in his pocket is better off than one who is broke—and also more welcome.

As to what went on here as far as the war is concerned, you know as much or more than we do. We had no newspapers for a day or two and the rumors were so thick and contradictory that nobody believed what he said himself.

It is funny to look back now and see how little truth there was in any of it. One woman told us she saw every oil tank go up, one after another in huge flashes of fire. As far as I can find out not a one exploded. There is one battlewagon I am anxious to see. Five different men told me they saw it sink. One man saw a suicide plane dive into it with a torpedo and the plane, ship and all blew sky high. Nine other men have told me they have seen the same ship cruising around since, and I am curious to see a boat sailing around that is 5/9ths sunk. On the police calls there were funny ones came in. One man was signalling from the top of a pole, turned out to be a man repairing a transformer. One party said a man was flashing a light from a church steeple. It was the bright evening star. A big white rock in Kalihi valley was reported every 35 minutes to be a parachutist. But in spite of it all nobody got panicky. Guess there was less hysteria here during the real thing than there was around New York when Orson Welles made his famous Martian broadcast.

Practically all civilian construction has stopped and the army has put priorities on many things but I understand if anybody really needs a thing and has patience, he can get it. I had some scraps of lumber, etc., from the building and have been using it sparingly. If I need a 6-inch board four feet long and find an 8-inch board four feet, six inches long, I turn the pile over again looking for a smaller one before I cut it. Fred sizes up the job we are going to do and tells his mother, "It'll take us about 18 minutes to put it up, but it'll probably take dad half a day to sort out the junk to do it."

We all try to make the best of it and get what kick we can out of it and not kick. If everybody keeps working and co-operating and doing all they can we know darn well it is only a matter of time until we sink the rising sun and perhaps knock some humanitarianism into all the little sons of ( )—(to be filled in according to your own desires).

We hope and expect to stay here, but the time might come when Metta and boys might have to leave. If the schools open they are going to fight hard to stay. As for me, I won't get out until the Japs chase me out.

Aloha, Thumbs up, and a big V ...- Lew.

There are no government-imposed priorities, but we and other banks are voluntarily giving first call to the needs of national defense. This does not mean that other borrowers do not find a ready welcome and prompt service here. The normal non-defense phases of life must go on, and bank credit is essential to many of them. Due to a snow blockade, no trains passed through Charlevoix from Saturday afternoon until Tuesday afternoon. There was some speculation as to whether or not the report was true that the Germans had captured the P. M. with intention of using the rust on the rails as coloring matter for khaki uniforms.

Monday evening at eight o'clock Miss Mildred Eckinger and Roy I. MacArthur, of Flint, were married at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Ola Esler and Ernest Kibbe attended them. The couple will reside in Flint.

We read in the daily papers that Henry Ford has offered his vast plants to the government for the making of munitions at his own expense. One battleship a day or a dozen submarines will be nothing to Henry when he gets started.

Mayor and Mrs. Andy Ross, who have been away for about two months visiting their daughter in Ohio, returned home Tuesday.

Marion: Mrs. Walter Black had a carpet rag bee on Wednesday.

Ellsworth — from Central Lake paper of April 9, 1896: Henry Carman's family moved to Norwood this week, where Mr. Carman works in a mill . . . A revenue officer was in town last week looking for Oleo Syles . . . (Who folded his still and silently slunk away.)

At Traverse City the city clerk and city auditor got into a row and in the mix-up the auditor's leg was broken. (Shortly after this woman's suffrage came along and brought a gentle feminine influence into the rough political atmosphere.

From the Classified column: Wanted — A woman between 80 and 90 years of age to deliver mail on R. F. D. No. 3. (Don't know the story behind this peculiar ad, but it must have been a good one—sounds like the Boys with Aching Feet were having a little friendly difficulty.)

Charlevoix walked away with a lot of regional championships at the annual Petoskey winter carnival last week. Fred Hardy took the regional ski championship . . . Fox hounds owned by Plenny Genett, Mont Withers and John Slezak took the first three places in the fox chase . . . Stanley Withers and John Zeitler took second and fourth places in the junior regional ski tournament . . . Bruce Withers, Archie Livingston Jr., Drew Young, David Livingston, Robert Livingston, William Bergmann, and George Bergmann took skating honors in races, while George Horniman and George Smith placed in fancy skating events . . . One day last week there was a bad wreck on M-66 near here in which a couple of people were injured. The people were not known here and were taken to Charlevoix for medical aid. * LANSING LETTER *

Michigan dairymen are asked to increase milk production 10 per cent. Uncle Sam wants Michigan's 950,000 cows to produce an average of 520 MORE pounds of milk per animal than the 5,200 pounds averaged in 1941. To do this each cow will require 1,000 pounds additional hay and 500 pounds more of cereal grain. Sooo bossy!

Layoff of 315,000 automobile workers and the financial burden of providing unemployment compensation were responsible for the second special session of the state legislature at Lansing this week.

Michigan's law permits maximum compensation of $288 per jobless worker. $16 for 18 weeks.

President Roosevelt has proposed that Congress supplement these payments to allow a total of $624 at the rate of $24 for 26 weeks. Since automobile plants are being converted by the government to war needs, the White House feels that the government should share the extra burden of unemployment compensation, ordinarily shouldered by employers.

Election year factors are seen in the action of the state administrative board (bi-partisan in control) to send Governor Van Wagoner and Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly to Washington for a hi-partisan recommendation.

Kelly comes from Detroit, hub of the motor industry.

VanWagoner's political strength has been in metropolitan centers rather than upstate, as the election polls show.

Michigan employers have been paying the highest rate of tax in the nation, 3 per cent as against 2.7 per cent maximum paid by practically all other states, according to the Michigan Manufacturers' association.

That accounts, in part, for our $140,000,000 reserve fund.

Ten states pay more than Michigan in maximum unemployment payments; only three states pay more than Michigan in minimum payments.

Federalizing of the employment security system, as suggested in Washington, is seen as a threat at employer-earned experience rating by which a lower levy is possible through stabilized work.

Administrators of many of the state unemployment compensation laws are opposing federalization. The Southern Governors' Conference went on record (1) that the complete administration of state employment services be restored to the respective states as soon as the present emergency has passed, and (2) that nothing in the present emergency would justify the federal government in taking over the administration of unemployment compensation.

Governor Van Wagoner admitted the other day that he was the "only governor" who apparently was not opposed to federalized control.

Old-fashioned vacations, as contrasted to modern gypsy outings, may become the 1942 vogue in Michigan.

Chief reason: Tire rationing.

That's the forecast from the East Michigan Tourist association which concludes that people are going to stay "put" for vacation duration, preferring a cottage or hotel to days of restless motor travel.

Our advisor, Frank Davis, adds: "We have already seen evidence of doubling up in automobiles and an increased amount of bus and railroad travel."

George A. Osborn, editor of the Sault Ste. Marie Evening News, offers several reasons why Michigan should have a fair tourist season in 1942:

(1) A survey of automobiles using the Straits ferry last summer disclosed a majority of cars were less than one year old. Tires should be in good condition.

(2) British have found that vacations were more necessary than before due to increased pressure of war work at long hours.

Less gasoline tax revenue is anticipated, however, by Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy.

In 1941 the gasoline levy produced $32,000,000.

Effect of tax cut: Road construction will be limited to defense needs.

Michigan's state government owns and maintains a fleet of 737 automobiles and 1,318 trucks. When 15 staff members of the state liquor commission used 11 cars recently to go to Detroit for a routine hearing, Governor Van Wagoner proposed a pooling of state-owned cars under which one car might do the transportation work of three or four.

"It's inefficient to wear out rubber carrying fewer persons than the car will hold," he said. The same rule of economy should apply to civilians, the governor added.

"War time," inaugurated last Monday (Feb. 9.), received the official blessing of the state administrative board last week. Reason: Detroit power companies estimated additional daylight would save between 2 and 3 per cent of their annual power production.

Ben Koenig, coordinator of the Grand Traverse county defense council, returned to Traverse City from a week-end trip "down state" fully determined to rush preparedness plans for enemy air raids.

"Perhaps it would not be policy to mention the location of the area I visited," he related, "but mid raid instructions in all prominent places indicated that they fully expect to be bombed. These air raid warnings were significant enough, but when I saw 175 hospital beds all made up and reserved for air raid casualties I realized how serious the danger actually is."

Michigan Food distributors, retailers and wholesalers, were recently recognized officially by the Michigan Council of Defense thru appointment by Governor Van Wagoner of the Michigan Food Council as a sub-committee to the council's consumer committee.

Willis Keasey, Michigan Retail Grocers association, is president of the state food group, while W. F. Doyle of the Michigan Chain Stores bureau is vice-president. Among the members are Leo V. Card, commissioner of agriculture, and W. G. Armstrong, master of the State Grange.

REGISTRATION FOR DEFENSE CONTINUES

Conservation of Material is of Primary Importance

Those who have not yet registered for civilian defense may obtain questionnaires at the office of the city clerk. All who have not registered are urged to do so, in order to speed efficient organization of defense plans in Charlevoix.

Although regulation air-raid precaution plans will no doubt be worked out for possible future use, the biggest defense job here at present consists of conserving food, paper, metal, clothing and other things which due to military needs may not be available in quantities for civilian needs. The several tons of waste paper collected in a few weeks by Charlevoix Boy Scouts are an indication of the amount of other materials that can be saved by proper care. Home vegetable gardens will also play an important part in the plan for conserving food.

Examination of 33 squirrel nest boxes at Rose Lake wildlife experiment station disclosed eight containing colonies of bees. One box held 15 pounds of comb honey.

HOME NURSING COURSE TO BE LAUNCHED SOON

Registration Monday Night at City Council Room

Registration for home nursing classes will take place at the city council room at the city hall next Monday night, February 16, at 7:30.

Mrs. C. M. Blee, county chairman for Red Cross home nursing courses, and Mrs. D. C. Nettleton, who is to instruct classes in Charlevoix, will be in charge of registration. Everyone interested in the course is urged to register so that classes may be organized. Definite plans for time and place of classes will be announced at the time of registration.

To safeguard the health of America's families, the Red Cross has launched a program to teach 500,000 women, and even men, the fundamentals of home nursing. It is the Red Cross' answer to the problem of mounting health hazards and the shortage of civilian nurses which may at any time obligate the woman or man of the house to assist in caring for the sick.

Young Mothers Club to Buy Kindergarten Equipment

Plans were completed Tuesday night by the Young Mothers club, meeting with Mrs. Fay Davis, for a benefit bridge party to be given next Tuesday, February 17, at 8 o'clock at the Knights of Pythias lodge hall.

Proceeds of the party will be used to buy play equipment for the kindergarten room at Charlevoix public school, as toys now used by the small children are badly in need of replacement.

Tickets for the party may be purchased from any member of the club, or may be obtained by calling Mrs. Alfred Gill Jr., chairman of the ticket committee, phone 322.

Prizes are to be awarded for both contract and auction bridge, and grand prizes for highest total scores at both benefit parties given by the group will be awarded at Tuesday night's party.

OPEN HOUSE AT LOCAL BANKS LAST THURSDAY

Banking Facilities Inspected by Many Visitors

Many local people took advantage of "open house" held last Thursday evening by the Charlevoix State Savings Bank and Charlevoix County State Bank, to visit the two institutions and become better acquainted with services offered by them.

Banking facilities and equipment were demonstrated and explained to visitors at both banks. Callers at the County bank received Defense stamp albums, each containing a 10c stamp.

Six high school papers will represent Michigan in the national community health project sponsored by the Michigan Tuberculosis association and the Columbia Scholastic Press association. Papers so honored are from the following schools: Lansing's Eastern high school, Alpena high school, Rudyard high school Brimley high school, Ubly high school, and Sand Creek high school.

Large cities still present the greatest tuberculosis problem. In 1940 the tuberculosis death rate in 46 of the largest cities in the United States, ran 26 per cent higher than the average for the country as a whole.

COUNTY ROAD EMPLOYES STRIKE

Tuesday afternoon a committee of road workers comprised of Jeff Novotny, of Charlevoix, Dick Farmer, of East Jordan, and Leslie Maves, of Boyne City, met with the commission. They presented demands including seniority covering hiring and discharging, re-employment of all men layed off having one year of service or more, grievance procedure, 54-hour week of six 9-hour days with time and one-half for overtime, one day per month sick leave with pay, paid vacation of one day per month accumulative for two years on option of the worker. The commission agreed to provisions for grievance procedure, offered sick, accident and hospitalization insurance in lieu of paid sick leave and refused other demands. This committee, it is understood, was to have reported to other workers, placed the matter to a vote Tuesday night at a meeting. At this writing at noon Wednesday, no report has been given.

Mr. Tindall stated that the commission, while willing to meet with workers, individually or collectively, at any time, has steadfastly refused to negotiate with any union representative, or recognize any union the organized road workers may seek to become affiliated with.

The commission's stand, Mr. Tindall points out, is based on an opinion of Attorney General Herbert J. Rushton that this board, or any other governmental agency, has no power as elected officials to negotiate with or recognize a union, nor do disputes between such governmental bodies and employes come under the State Labor Mediation Act.

Representatives of the CIO have claimed that the attorney general's opinion is wrong. In view of this contention, the road commission has invited CIO representatives to bring a friendly suit for the purpose of securing a decision of the Supreme Court on the matter, so that all parties concerned would know where they stand. Under this arrangement, the commission would agree that all men employed at time of the strike would go to work pending the decision. The commission would agree also to do everything within its power to secure an early decision by the court and, if the ruling empowered them to do so legally, they would take such action to settle the dispute as the ruling required.

Thus the dispute still stands at a deadlock, with striking workers seeking recognition and the road commission bound by an opinion of the attorney general, highest legal authority in Michigan outside of the Supreme Court.

INFORMATION REGARDING INCOME TAX

Some of the items that are deductible from gross income to determine net income are listed in this article. Lack of space prevents a full explanation of the various deductions. If in doubt on any item consult the nearest collector of internal revenue, deputy collector or internal revenue agent.

Typical business expenses of a mercantile establishment are amounts paid for advertising, hire of clerks and other employees, rent, light, heat, water, stationery, stamps, telephone, property insurance and delivery expenses.

A professional man may deduct all necessary expenses incurred in the pursuit of his profession.

A loss arising from "fires, storms, shipwrecks, or other casualty" need not be connected with the taxpayer's trade or business. If his home or his automobile is destroyed by fire he may claim a deduction for the loss sustained unless compensated for by insurance or otherwise. Loss of property by theft is an allowable deduction.

In general, taxes are deductible only by the person upon whom they are imposed. Certain taxes are not deductible, such as those assessed against local benefits, and the federal income tax. The federal tax of 10% on the retail sale of jewelry, furs, and toilet preparations is not deductible by the purchaser. Other taxes not deductible are those imposed on employees by the Social Security Act, federal estate and gift taxes and state inheritance, estate, legacy, or succession taxes. The federal taxes on automobiles, gasoline, cigarettes and liquor are imposed upon the manufacturer, producer, or importer, and are not deductible by the purchaser or consumer.

Charitable contributions and gifts made by an individual are deductible within certain limitations, if actually paid within the year. The organization to which the gift is made, for example a corporation, trust, community chest, fund or foundation must be created in or organized under the law of the United States or any possession of the United States or under the law of any state or territory, or of the District of Columbia and must be organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals. Gifts to an individual are not deductible.

Amounts paid or accrued within the taxable year 1941 as interest on indebtedness are deductible, with certain exceptions, from gross income.

The Internal Revenue Code provides for "a reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in the trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence." For convenience such allowance usually is referred to as depreciation.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

"Food for Freedom" Meetings Continued Week of Feb. 16

All farmers and their families are invited to attend the nearest meeting in a series of discussions to be held during the week of February 9th. You should be interested in discussing the part that Charlevoix county farmers must play in the Food for Freedom efforts. Certainly agriculture has a definite responsibility in winning the war for our future peace and security. These discussions have been planned by the U.S.D.A. War Board, which represents all agricultural agencies operating in this county. In addition to the A.A.A. and extension representative, who will conduct the meeting it is hoped to have a member of the County Defense Council present at all meetings.

The following schedule will be carried out for the week of February 16th with each forenoon meeting beginning at 10:15 and each afternoon meeting at 2:00: Monday, February 16—Chandler town hall, forenoon; Boyne River Grange, afternoon.

Tuesday, February 17—Walloon Lake Community hall, forenoon; Horton Bay town hall, afternoon.

Thursday, February 19—Wilson Grange, forenoon; Deer Lake Grange, 8:00 p. m.

We want to present the civilian defense progress and the various ways in which we can all help in this present emergency. The A.A.A. program likewise will have some information that will affect the farmers intentions this year. The shortage of farm labor, the difficulties in obtaining the sufficient new machinery and repair parts, the development of the Victory Garden program, the feed situation and numerous other topics of vital interest will be brought to your attention. We want to have this opportunity of discussing with you all of these activities and influences your farm program this summer. Likewise, we want everyone in the county to know the opportunities for serving our country in this hour of need. These meetings will be short and snappy. Bring the members of your family as the farm women are only too anxious to know the latest developments and thus render their aid.

Loans for Seed, Feed, Gas, Oil and Machinery Repairs Available

Sahin Hooper, Boyne City, field supervisor for the emergency crop and feed loan office of the Farm Credit Administration, Department of Agriculture, announces that funds are now available to all eligible farmers for crop production purposes including the purchase of seed, gas and oil, feed for work stock, and all necessary repairs to farm machinery.

In issuing this release full consideration is being given to the Food for Defense program. Thus farmers may include the purchasing of machinery repairs as one of the necessary items of profitable agriculture. Also it is urged that farmers order their repair parts at the earliest moment possible.

Arrangements are being made to accept applications for crop production loans and loans for the production and purchase of feed in all counties in Michigan. These loans will bear interest at the rate of 4% per annum from the date of disbursement. Farmers in Charlevoix county desiring to make application for a loan of this nature may do so at the county agriculture agent's office at Boyne City or at the district office, both of which are located at the Boyne City post office building, second story. If you apply at the district office you should make appearance in the forenoon as in the majority of cases the office is closed in the afternoon.

KIWANIS NOTES

The aims, work and achievements of St. Mary's Recreation Center were discussed by Rev. John W. Collins, pastor of St. Mary's church of this city, at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Kiwanis club, Tuesday evening at the I.O.O.F. hall.

The need of a supervised recreation center for the young folks of Charlevoix was obvious, and so the center was established, the speaker said. Religion is not taught at any time; but deep emphasis is put upon good clean living and proper conduct at all times.

Due to demand, a club for high school students is in the process of organization; and will be known as St. Mary's Recreation club. The dues will be nominal, rules of conduct will be established by the members, and enforced by the club officers and supervisors.

Father Collins praised the work of the members of the Charlevoix branch of the National Council of Catholic Men, who supervise the center. The children are encouraged to invite their friends, and all grown-ups are invited to drop in and view the enterprise in operation.

The Kiwanians were pleased to learn of the fine work that is being done for the young people of the city.

At the request of Kiwanis President Harry E. Bingham, Dr. F. F. McMillan talked briefly about George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, whose birthdays are celebrated this month.

Dr. McMillan said that in his opinion the character of these men, and the character and thought most needed in the trying times of today, are best stated by Lincoln, at the close of his Cooper Union speech, when he said, "Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us, to the end, dare to do our duty as we understand it."

AT THE MOVIES

Taylor and Turner a Fascinating Team in "Johnny Eager"

A brilliant new acting team looms on the cinema horizon in the persons of Robert Taylor and Lana Turner, making their first appearance together in M-G-M's powerful drama of a gangster's career, "Johnny Eager," which opens Saturday, February 14 at the Palace Theater.

The story gives Taylor the greatest dramatic opportunity of his career as Johnny Eager, ruthless killer who knows no code except the rule of self-preservation. Not until he has planed a trumped up murder on the only girl who has been able to reach beneath his cold-blooded exterior and find out what makes his heart work, does he make a momentary concession to the laws of human understanding—and then it is too late.

ORDINANCE NO. 204

An Ordinance relative to the disease of Rabies among dogs, the establishment of a quarantine therefor, and to provide penalties for the violation of this Ordinance.

The City of Charlevoix Ordains:

Section 1. Rabid Dog, Quarantine; Complaint by Health Officer.

It is hereby made the duty of the Health Officer of the city of Charlevoix to whom cases of rabies among dogs and other animals are reported, to immediately investigate the same and should such investigation show a reasonable probability that a dog or other animal is affected with the disease known as rabies, the health officer shall immediately establish such temporary quarantine as may be necessary to prevent the spread of the disease and to make immediate complaint thereof in the manner provided in Section four (4) hereof.

Section 2. Muzzling or Confinement of Dogs; Order.

The said health officer, when in his judgment such action is necessary to prevent the spread of the disease of rabies, shall have the power to order all dogs in the city of Charlevoix or any part thereof, restrained, confined or muzzled.

Section 3. Same: Notice of Order.

The order of the health officer to restrain, confine or muzzle dogs shall be operative when a copy of such order shall have been left at the usual place of residence of the owner or owners of dogs that are believed to have been exposed to the said disease, or when a copy of said order has been posted in three (3) of the most public places in the city of Charlevoix or part thereof to which said order applies.

Section 4. Complaint to Justice; Hearing, Notice; Order.

The health officer or any resident of the city of Charlevoix may make a complaint to the Justice of the Peace of said city, when any dog within said city is rabid or has been bitten by or been fighting with any other dog or other animal that is rabid, or has been running at large in violation of the order of said health officer. Upon such complaint it shall be the duty of the said justice to give notice to the owner of such dog or dogs to appear forthwith for the hearing of such complaint. Either party, the complainant or the owner of the dog complained of may require a trial by jury, and the proceedings on said hearing shall follow the same rules and procedure as those provided for criminal actions before a justice of the peace, and with the right of appeal to the Circuit Court.

If upon said hearing the justice shall be satisfied, in cases heard without a jury, and in cases determined by jury, the jury shall find, that the said dog is rabid, has been bitten by or been fighting with any other dog or other animal that is rabid or has been running at large in violation of the said order of the said health officer, the justice shall be authorized to make an order that such dog or dogs be killed: Provided, That the justice, at his discretion, wherein it does not appear at the hearing that the dog or dogs in question are rabid, may order the said dog or dogs restrained for a period of ninety days or such time as the said justice may deem necessary:

Provided Further, that in all cases in which the owner of the dog or dogs complained of cannot be ascertained, after a period of five days during which the said dog or dogs shall be restrained or confined or both, the said justice may immediately thereafter order the said dog or dogs to be killed.

Section 5. Order to Kill.

In all cases in which the dog is ordered to be killed, and the time for appeal has expired, the justice shall issue an order to the police of the city of Charlevoix directing him or them to forthwith kill and bury said dog or dogs.

ona who insulted her." He met Mary's eyes and laughed again. "You'll have to get used to visitors, Parson," he predicted in a grim amusement. "There'll be others coming; and some of them—if you can believe it—even blacker villains than I."

When he was gone, when they turned back up the path, Mary asked gravely: "George, need you have done that?"

He demanded: "Did you want the pearl?"

"I could have declined it with some courtesy."

"I won't have such men here!" he cried. "Staring at you, giving you things!"

Mary urged wearily: "What use is that, George? The world's full of men. We can't always live alone! No one can." He went ahead of her in silence, not replying. She thought, following him up the path: He's half-sick himself, with worry over all the poor sick people here. I must be patient, try to help him, must be kind.

Jorambo posted men as George commanded, high on the peaks that walled the island across with a barrier almost impassable, to watch Aulgur's schooner in the lagoon and report her movements; and they sent regular news of her, but the news was reassuring. She lay peacefully at anchor in the lagoon, and her boats went off every day, and men were diving.

Mary and George paid as the days passed, less and less attention to these monotonous bulletins; for they had a nearer trouble. The Island had become a place of death; death that struck at random, without discrimination. They forgot Aulgur in fighting a hopeless, weary battle here, going to and fro among the maddeningly submissive Islanders. They were afoot all day, and their nights were broken. George was exhausted in body, and his spirit too wore thin.

More than once Mary thought of Corkron, wondered whether he could do anything they were not wise enough or strong enough to do, to check the plague; but she dared not send for him, and since George no longer slept in the afternoon she could not go to Corkran.

One day at dusk when she and George were in a hut up the trail behind the house watching a woman die, Mary heard a cry far away above them. It was repeated nearer and nearer by successive voices, till she caught the words and told George:

"That's from the men watching the lagoon: They've sighted a ship."

She said, looking at the sick woman: "George, we can't help her. Let's go back to the house. Jarambo will come there."

When Jarambo came, Mary listened to him and translated for George. "The men on top of the mountain can see the ship," she said. "But it's still far away, so far that the men on the schooner in the lagoon can't see it. But it's coming this way."

"What kind of a ship, Mary? Can it be the Venturer?"

She questioned Jarambo; but he said the watchers reported this ship had only two masts. George said uneasily: "Mary, I wish we could warn Mr. Aulgur. You remember he told us he thought that half-breed might come back. I don't think he'd want to be caught there."

Jarombo said it would take all night for a messenger to cross the island. He could not reach the lagoon till after daylight, and by that time the people on the schooner would be able to see the approaching ship for themselves.

Nevertheless George insisted that Jarambo try to get some warning word to Aulgur. "I hate his being here," he said. "And we're certainly not responsible for his safety; but I wouldn't want him killed." Jarombo agreed that the men would try.

Before noon next day, they knew that their warning had failed to arrive in time. Jarambo reported that at dawn the other vessel was just outside the entrance to the lagoon.

Jarambo was talking, rapidly, and by the staccato of his words and of his gestures, George knew that he spoke of action sharp and swift. When the old man paused, and Mary turned to George again, her lips were white and trembling.

"They killed him," she said. Then, translating almost literally: "The men on that new ship fought the men on Mr. Aulgur's ship, with guns. Then boats from the new ship put off and came near the schooner, and there were more shots from the boats, till there were no more from the schooner. Then men from the new ship went aboard the schooner and there were no shots."

George nodded in stern understanding. "That half-breed came back," he guessed. "Aulgur stayed here too long. I suppose he knew the risk, but I wish we could have got word to him. Tell Jarambo his men must watch and tell us what the men on the new ship do."

She interpreted the command. Jarambo made a gesture, spoke a word or two. George looked at Mary inquiringly, and she explained: "He thinks they'll come around here to get girls. He feels that he knows what to expect from white men."

She saw her husband's lips twitch; but he only said: "Tell him to watch. If they come here, we must know beforehand."

She repeated these instructions; and she added a suggestion of her own. "Jarambo, tell the white man with the talking bird what has happened." He looked at her briefly. Corkran's presence on the island had never been mentioned between them, although he must have known she knew. He made an assenting sign and trotted away.

CHAPTER VI

That afternoon Jarambo reported that Aulgur's schooner had been worked out into the open sea and set on fire, burned, and sunk. He said there were three white men on the new ship, and one whose skin was not so white, yet who moved with the whites and spoke loudly to them as though in command. The white men came ashore and went along the beach. Jarambo thought they were hunting fresh water.

"That man whose skin is not so white," George guessed, "must be the half-breed."

They had other news later. That night after they were abed, Jarambo reported. Mary listened, and spoke in a whisper as though they might be overheard. It was so dark that she could see Jarambo only as a blurred shadow.

"They've killed the half-breed," she told George. "One of the white men shot him in the back, without a word, on the beach this afternoon."

George reflected calmly in the darkness: "I suppose after he showed them the way here he was of no further use to them." She thought, with a high and loyal pride, that there was no hint of fear in his voice. She repeated the rest of Jarombo's report.

"They have six Konokas to dive. Ten men altogether, George, and tonight they all drank, and were drunk. Their shouts could be heard."

He said quietly: "Tell Jarambo to keep us posted. I wish I had a gun. As it is, we can't fight them, but we can keep out of their way. When the Venturer comes, or the Morning Star, we can arrange for security; for something. But till then, we'll have to skulk in the jungle like animals. It's hateful, but it's the only thing we can do."

That night Mary thought once she heard distant drums. It might have been the surf, but when she rose in the morning Jarambo was squatting on the platform outside the door; and at the sound of her step behind him he looked up, and she saw a curious red flicker in his eyes. When he spoke, his voice was hoarse and deep as she had never heard it.

LETTERS FROM THE ARMY CAMPS

Aboard Ship
Somewhere on the Pacific,

Charlevoix Courier,
Charlevoix, Michigan.
Dear Mr. Usher:

I am very gratetul for the Courier which you have mailed me each week since I have been on active duty with the army. I have enjoyed the home town news immensely and have looked forward to Mondays, the day your paper arrived at Camp Davis.

I am no longer at Camp Davis, having left there in the middle of December. Our destination is unknown and so I can't give you a forwarding address. I may be able to give you an address later on, but I can't expect you to go to the added expense of sending your paper out of the country.

All our mail is to be censored so I'm unable to give you any definite information regarding sailing dates, number of men, organization, etc.

This sea voyage is quite an experience for me. It is my first. To date, I haven't been sea sick a minute, but I am still keeping my fingers crossed. Over two-thirds of the men aboard this ship were sea sick for the first two days at sea, but now they all have their "sea legs" and at present we are without a single case of sea sickness.

Morale among the enlisted men and officers is high. All are anxious to get where we are going, and get our job over with.

I will write you again as soon as I can give you a definite address and if you still care to keep me on your mailing list, I shall be delighted to receive the Courier.

Sincerely,
Clair J. Bartholomew.

1800-PAIR CABLE, in which many of the wires are intended for future customers. (Cables shown here slightly larger than actual size.)

400-PAIR CABLE, with only enough wires to care for short-period needs.

Putting FIRST things FIRST . . .

NORMALLY, Michigan Bell installs new equipment to care for a number of years of growth. The shortage of materials needed for war has changed that. Now, expansion must be planned to meet short-term requirements.

As an example, when installing telephone cable to serve an area of 80 square blocks, we ordinarily would plan ahead for a 10-year increase in the number of homes, and would use a cable containing 1800 pairs of wires. That would be long-run economy. But today, for such an area, the Company installs a smaller cable, containing perhaps 400 pairs of wires.

At a conservative estimate, the saving of copper in both exchange and toll cable effected by Michigan Bell's short-period engineering policy will amount to 1,500,000 pounds in 1942!

In spite of material shortages that make it increasingly difficult to satisfy all civilian requests as promptly as in the past, we are confidently determined that every war need will be met.

The Conservation Department has discovered n couragcous sportsman. After, und despite all the abuse and adverse opinion passed out regarding the doe for camp lnw, the accusations that any lndlvidual who killed a doe was nothing more than a "meat hunter" and all who entertained the thought of klilling a doe WERE anything but gentlemen, along comes a fellow who says: "I am proud to say I am a meat hunter. If I were not I would stay home and not waste tho deer. I suggest our supply of game be conserved for meat hunters, and let these acalled sportsmen shoot at targets. This year we took out a camp license and enjoyed part of our deer in camp. We brought home the rest, thoroughly satisfied even though our fenders wero not piled with bucks." MILD WINTER FAVORABLE TO DEER HERDS

Light Snow in Yards Provides Opportunity to Forage

Fnvored by the mildest winter weather in four years, Michigan's northern deeryards enjoyed a much-needed "rest" during January, as deer took advantage of the lack of deep snow to range far into the uplands and live largely on food supplies of their normal summer range.

Game men of the conservation department here say the effect of the January mild spell, which was state-wide, has been to eliminate the "long hard drag" that characterized the winter of 1940-41 in the lower peninsula and resulted in heavy deer mortality. Upper peninsula conditlons ara less severe this season also.

As a result of the mild spell, deer will be in better condition and will have relatively more food available in late February and Mnrch in the event of severe temperatures and snow conditions. Chances of deer survival are, consequently, greatly increased. Perhnps even more important is the conservation of winter food supplies which are not readily renewable.

Snow gauge readings for the week ending Janusry 24 showed snow depths to be no greater than n foot, and in some places less than six inches, in both the upper and lower peninsulas.

MARY JANE ROSS AND PERIN H. JOHNSTON WERE WED TUESDAY

Miss Mary Jane Ross, dnughter of Mr. nnd Mrs. P. R. Ross, became the bride of Perin H. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Johnston of Mt. Pleasant, in a ceremony performed at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, February 10, at the Ross home on Nettleton street. Rev. Donald R. Evans, of tho Congregational church, read the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families and close friends.

Baskets of mixed flowers stood on either side of the large windows of the living room, whore the ceremony took place. The bride was given in marrlage by her father, and had as maid of honor her sister, Miss Betty Ross, of Detroit. The groom was attended by his cousin, Harold Johnston of Rosebush, student at Ferris Institute. Miss Phyllis VanAllsburg, at the piano, played traditional wedding music.

The bride wore n street-length dress of dusty rose silk crepe, with short sleeves and accordian-pleated skirt. Her accessories were navy, and she wore n shouldor corsnge of pink roses. Her sister wore a gown of azure blue, with corsage of yellow roses. Both dresses were trimmed with white wool embroidery about the bodice.

Immediately following the ceremony was n reception for a hundred guests. Buffet refreshments were served from a table lit by tall white tapers, nnd centered by the three-tiered wedding eake. Bowls of sweet peas decorated the table.

Dinner was served at 6:30 for the bridnl party and their families. Centerplece for the dinner table was a large valentine, depicting a gentlemnn and lady in colonial costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston left that evening for Clare, where they will make their home at 314 Seventh street.

The bride is a graduate of Charlevoix high school, elnss of 1941. Mr. Johnston grnduated in 1937 from Mt. Pleasant high school, and nttended Central Stato Teachers' college.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Johnston and daughter, Avis, Mrs. J. A. McCarthy, Mrs. Dale Groves, of Mt. Pleasant, H. D. Johnston, of Rosebush, and Miss Bertha Smith, of Bellaire.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

Potted Plants Easy to Grow

Anybody can grow a few house plants—whether they have a house or an apartment! They do not even have to be gardeners or belong to a garden club. The follnwing nre recommended for the beginner who is none too careful nbout regular watering, for they nre called iron-clad house plants which can survive despite rough treatment: bowstring-hemp (sansevieria), chinese evergreen (alaonema), jnde-plant (crassula), peperomia, various forms of cactus.

Possibly these people would find it even safer to grow their plants in water rather than in soil. A pinch of a commercial fertilizer every few months will help to maintain growth. Contrary to popular belief, the wnter need nnt be changed as long as it has not become foul. In the order of ease of growth, plants that can be grown as cut stems in water are as follows: chinese evergreen, devils ivy (philodendron), english ivy.

Woods soil is not the best for house plants. Two parts of a good garden loam mixed with one part of leaf mold or peat moss mnkes a much better soil, but it will need to be fertilized with two or three heaping tablespoonfulls of n 4-12-4 fertilizer to a bushel of soil. This mixture will prove satisfactory for most house plants.

Red clay flower pots have been standard for years, but there is no reason why glazed pots should not be used. They will not require watering as often but on the other hand if over-watered will cause more damage. Afrlean violets will do best in smnll pots. Amnteurs should repot most plants once a year either when they are not making active growth or in the early fall.

While no cases of rabies have been reported in Charlevoix, an epidemic has been under way in Emmet county for three months, a few cases have been discovered in Boyne City and Boyne Valley townships. One case of a boy being treated at Boyne City for bites from a dog suspected of being afflicted wlth rabies, has been reported.

Under the ordinance adopted Monday evening the health officer is to declare the law in effect whenever there is a danger from rabies in the community. After the health officer's declaration, dog owners must restrain, or muzzle their dogs and keep them from running at large until the quarantine is lifted. Exception is made of dogs lawfully hunting under the control of their owners.

Police officers are authorized to impound dogs. A report is made to the justice nf peace and the dog's owner, if tracenble, is ordered to appear before the justice. SMALL VOTE CAST PRIMARY MONDAY

NELLE A. HAMMOND NOMINATED CITY TREASURER

Given Majority of 221 Votes Over Fred V. Tyler in Only Election Contest

In an election marked by an extremely light vote, Mrs. Nelle A. Hammond, city treasurer, defeated Fred V. Tyler for nomination to a second term at Monday's primary.

Mrs. Hammond was given a substantial majority, piling up a margin of 330 votes to 109 for Tyler in the three wards. The contest for treasurer was the only one on the ballot. Lack of voter interest is indicated by the fact the highest vote cast for any candidate was 335 out of a total registration of over 1800. Three years ago 1258 votes were cast at the primary election.

Mayor Robert Bridge, unopposed for nomination to a fifth term, received 335 votes, and Ray S. Hamilton, unopposed for city clerk, received 323 votes.

Others nominated without opposition were: First ward—Supervisor, Angus L. Fochtman; alderman, Clarence Wood. Second ward — Supervisor, Arthur Bergeon; alderman, D. C. Nettleton. Third ward—Supervisor, Clarence B. Meggison; alderman, W. E. Goss. All are present office holders with exception of D. C. Nettleton, who replaces Charles Heise as alderman of the second ward.

Following is the vote by wards:

BRADLEY AND BROWN REFUSE U. S. PENSION

Brown Favors Measure for Others; Bradley Against It

Charlevoix's congressional solons from nearby towns, although of opposite political parties, have this in common.

Each has said he will not seek a congressional pension but defended pensions for other members of congress.

Senator Prentiss M. Brown of St. Ignace, Democrat, asserted that he has already made preparation for his old age and doesn't need a pension, although he believes the principle of pensions for the nation's lawmakers is good.

Congressman Fred Bradley of Rogers City, Republican, similarly issued a statement assuring voters of his 11th Michigan district that he will not file for a pension for himself, but cited figures to show that pensions for those legislators who did apply would be comparatively small.

He said he would vote for repeal of the congressional pension law if provided the opportunity of doing so.

Stating that every citizen of Charlevoix is a member of the organization and privileged to attend, Mr. Edwards' urged all to do so. The meeting provides an opportunity for citizens to discuss current problems and subjects of interest to Charlevoix and its surrounding territory, which this year in particular, due to stress of war conditions and consequent uncertainty for resort areas, are unusually important.

There will be election of officers and members of the board of directors. In addition, there will be given out in written form a report of the board's actions, endeavors and accomplishments, as well as money spent, during the past year.

Everyone is urged to reserve the evening of Tuesday, February 24, to attend.

ADVISE HUNTERS HOLD SMALL GAME LICENSES

Required to Obtain Permit for Out-of-Season Hunting

Hang onto that small game hunting license, even if the small game season is over, the conservation department is advising sportsmen who will be seeking gun permits for shooting crows, bobcats and other non-game animals, and for target practice.

If a hunter loses his license, dated to expire September 30, 1942, he must pay 50 cents for a duplicate before he can obtain a gun permit, which is issued free. Old permits now in use should be exchanged for new ones by next month, the department has announced.

The new permits have no expiration date, but must be accompanied by a current small game license.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

Pastors Report Good Increase In Attendance

Success of the "Go to Church Sunday" campaign conducted by the Charlevoix County Council of Churches and Christian Education was indicated by marked increase in attendance at local churches last Sunday.

Workers who participated in canvass of homes and religious census last week, gathered Monday evening at the Congregational church parlors for a potluck supper. Community singing and devotions followed supper, also many impromptu talks by canvassers. Pastors gave reports on results of "Go to Church Sunday" in their own churches.

STRIKE OF ROAD WORKERS ENDED

AGREEMENT WAS REACHED MONDAY AFTERNOON

Both Factions Make Concessions to Halt Nine-Day Dispute; Union Recognition Refused

Ratification of an agreement between the road commission and employes brought to an end Monday afternoon a 9-day strike of Charlevoix county road workers.

Both sides made concessions to bring about an agreement over differences. Creil Smith, former truck driver and president of the road workers' organization, whose demanded re-employment blocked negotiations Saturday, voluntarily withdrew. The road commission refused recognition of any union as bargaining agent for workers, reiterated its stand of recognizing, without prejudice or favor, the right of individual workers to join a union or any other organization of their choice. Workers gained seniority, grievance procedure, consideration of vacation with pay, equalization of working hours to spread employment (a policy followed in the past), consideration of sick, accident and hospitalization insurance.

Following is the text of the agreement:

Seniority

Seniority shall be according to the following classifications: 1. Mechanics. 2. Shovel operators. 3. Tractor operators. 4. Heavy truck drivers. (3 tons and up). 5. Light truck drivers (less than 3 tons). 6. Night maintenance men (referred to as night man or night watchman). 7. Common labor.

In case of a lay off in a classification employees with less seniority will be the first laid off. In case of rebiring within a classification the last man laid off will be the first rehired.

MANY REGISTERED FOR HOME NURSING COURSE

Enthusiasm Shown by Large Number of Registrants

Registration for Red Cross home nursing courses, held Monday evening in the justice court room of the city hall, indicated great interest among local women in the classes. One hundred fifteen were registered by Mrs. C. M. Bice, county chairman of home nursing courses.

It is expected that at least six separate groups will be organized, with twenty students in each class. Due to difficulty in securing any local registered nurse who is able to give so much time to teaching classes, and also due to an avoidable delay in obtaining sufficient textbooks, starting date of the course has not been set.

URGE MOTORISTS BUY 1942 LICENSE PLATES

No Extension of February 28 Deadline Can Be Granted

In view of the fact hundreds of Charlevoix motorists have but ten days in which to purchase 1942 auto license plates, Fenton R. Bulow, local branch manager, urges car owners to act now to avoid the last minute rush.

Mr. Bulow announced that the license bureau office at the court house will be open from 2 to 4 o'clock the afternoon of Saturday, February 21, and all afternoon February 28. The office will be closed, however, on Monday, February 23, Washington's birthday and a legal holiday.

Motorists are asked to turn in their old plates. Legal provisions have been made to allow driving from home and return without plates attached.

HUNDREDS SIGN MILITARY DRAFT

ESTIMATE BETWEEN 1200 AND 1600 IN THIS COUNTY

Third Registration Covering Men Between 20 and 44 Years of Age Conducted Monday

While registration figures are a military secret, it is believed between 1200 and 1600 men between 20 and 44 years of age signed up in Charlevoix county Monday for the third selective service registration.

Three days were provided for registration at the draft board office in Charlevoix. Registration was confined to Monday, however, at Boyne City, East Jordan, Boyne Falls, Beaver Island and other points in the county.

As a result of the three-day period here, local men working down-state and those from rural areas took advantage of the Saturday and Sunday hours to register. Assisting Fay Davis, draft board clerk, with the registration in Charlevoix were Lyle Anee, Harry E. Bingham, Lon H. Comfort, Rev. W. L. Cruthers, Mrs. Josephine Madill, Annabelle Cunningham and Fay A. Bradley.

Several weeks will elapse before those who are eligible for military service can expect returns from Monday's registration. Cards of those who registered here but live elsewhere must be sent to the proper draft boards.

The draft board must meet to assign serial numbers and the lottery to determine the order of call is scheduled at Washington about the middle of next month.

Draft board officials meeting here Tuesday afternoon reported the registration went off smoothly throughout the county.

In Appreciation

I wish to express my deepest appreciation to the Charlevoix electors whose vote at the primary election Monday, February 16, nominated me to the office of city treasurer. Be assured that if elected, the duties of the office will be handled to the best of my ability. Nelle A. Hammond.—Adv. 7t1.

RAYDERS WINNER TWO CAGE TILTS

DEFEAT GRAYLING AND EAST JORDAN TEAMS

Retained Second Position In Class C Conference; Play at Boyne City Friday Night

Charlevoix high school's Red Rayders retained their second place standing in the Northern Michigan Class C basketball conference with a victory at Grayling last Friday night, and win from East Jordan here Tuesday night.

The Rayders fought an up-hill battle to down the crack Grayling outfit, winning with a last quarter rally after trailing for three periods. Grayling had a 12 to 4 margin at the quarter, led 16 to 12 at the half and 25 to 24 at third intermission. Three goals by Rowe and one by Mitchell provided 8 points to Grayling's 5 in the final stanza.

Carey and Rowe shared Charlevoix scoring honors with 10 points each. Stewart contributed 6, Swanson 4, Mitchell 2. R. Thompson scored 17 points for Grayling to provide the evening's high individual record.

Charlevoix 28, East Jordan 22

The Rayders tripped East Jordan for the second time of the season on the home hardwood Tuesday night, scoring a 28 to 22 victory.

As the Rayders piled up a comfortable margin in the early periods, Coach Kipke substituted freely, using 11 men during the contest. Charlevoix led 8 to 4 at the quarter, 17 to 9 at the half, 24 to 14 at third intermission.

Carey was high with 11 points, Stewart scored 8, Rowe 5, Vratsinas and Swanson 2 each. Krumbel East Jordan with 7 points.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By KEN USHER

A general citation for bravery during the Japanese attack December 7 on Pearl Harbor, included Bill Eccleston, son of Guy Eccleston, this city, who is attached to the Fourth Reconnaissance Squadron (H), Hickam Field, T. H. A copy of the citation, over the signature of Louie P. Turner, Major, Air Corps, is in Mr. Eccleston's possession. It praised the men in glowing terms for their bravery under attack and, indicating the spirit of the American armed forces, ended with the quotation: "We will set the Rising Sun!"

Romeo: "Juliet, dearest, I'm burning with love for you."

Juliet: "Come now, Romeo, don't make a fuel of yourself."

What kind of monkey business is this, anyway? Just when we get used to eating our flapjacks and grease an hour earlier than we did the legislators decide that was too early and we should do it an hour later than we are, then the governor says we were doing right just as it was, so we keep right on doing the same thing we were in the second place. In the meantime Old Sol rises and sets just as he always did and grins down at our befuddlement, so what of it? Anyway, leave your clock just as it is, providing you haven't set it back since you set it ahead. Oh, nuts! What's the use?

Lon Powers and his Missus pulled out Tuesday morning on a motor trip to Florida. Nothing particularly unusual about such an incident, except in this case Lon happens to be 74 years old and that's quite a jaunt for a man of even lesser years. Before leaving, Lon told us this first trip to Florida was made back in 1913. At that time there were only two pieces of paved highway on the entire route and roads in some places were worse than our worst now. Automobiles weren't plentiful, either, and meeting a horse-drawn vehicle, which happened frequently, necessitated pulling alongside the road and stopping the motor

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Can it be true that the people of Michigan are endangered by war?

The state legislature this week is holding another emergency special session.

Approximately 500,000 Michigan men registered this week for possible military duty.

And yet newspaper headlines continue to record events which seemingly contradict evidence that we are at war and must make great sacrifices.

First consider the definition of "endangered." We assume when Michigan lives are lost, when Michigan young men are put in jeopardy of death, sufficient proof exists this is a serious affair: Our two-ocean war of 1942. It is true Michigan cities have not been bombed. No enemy air fleet has attacked Sault Ste. Marie, our Michigan Panama canal for vital iron ore. But Michigan young men are dying just the same. What are they fighting to defend?

Does a feeling of complacency exist among Michigan citizens about the outcome of the war?

Here is a question that cannot be answered categorically. We can only surmise an answer.

It can be observed truthfully, we believe, that we Americans take for granted that we are going to win the war ultimately. Our vaunted superiority in industrial arms, plus our tremendous manpower, surely should be sufficient to insure victory. We Americans have never lost a war. To lose a war is almost an impossibility as any one who remembers his history books can tell you. It just can't happen—or can it?

Is Michigan lagging in civilian defense preparations?

Here again is a question extremely difficult to answer in one word. It depends upon each citizen's definition of "lagging" in proportion to the general objectives of what is needed to be done.

Lieut. Colonel D. E. Squier, who has been assigned by General

In case of shortage of work in a classification the employees so laid off will be employed in any other classification, for which they are qualified, in which there is a shortage of employees.

Grievance Procedure

Grievances shall be handled in the following manner: 1. Between the employee and the employee's committeeman. 2. Between the employee's committeeman and the foreman of the garage involved. 3. Between the employee's committeeman and the county road superintendent. 4. Between the employee's committee of three members and the road commission.

An election will be held immediately at the Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City garages to elect an employee at each respective garage as the "employee's committeeman." 1. The three employees so elected shall be the "employee's committee." 2. Such committee shall carry on negotiations with the road commission relative to setting up the details of seniority. 3. The men so elected shall constitute the "employee's committee" referred to in the grievance procedure.

Classification of seniority operation will be worked out at a meeting of the "employee's committee" and the road commission on Tuesday, February 24, 1942, and will become operative the following day. That is, employment according to seniority will commence the following day.

Vacation With Pay

A meeting of the employee's committee with the road commission will be held on July 7, 1942, to determine the question of vacation with pay in view of the new budget.

Group Insurance

The road commission will work out with the employee's committee a plan of group sick and accident insurance for the employees. The commission will participate in premium payments a specified amount. Various policies of such insurance will be presented to the employees and the employees will decide by vote which policy they want.

Statement of Policy Relative to Affiliation of Employees

The board of road commissioners declare that they recognize and always have recognized the right of any employee to be affiliated with a labor union or any other organization that they choose to belong to. That this is a free country and no employee of the road commission will be favored or discriminated against because of belonging to or not belonging to any particular organization.

Hours of Work

Hours of work will be worked out as in the past with an effort to equalize the hours of labor among the employees as much as circumstances will allow.

While county garages here and at Boyne City and East Jordan were picketed during the strike, no violence occurred. No arrests were made despite technical violations of the law by strikers. Needed maintenance operations of the commission were carried on as strikers refrained from interfering with removal of trucks under protection of Sheriff Floyd Ikens and deputies. Norman D. Ance, prosecuting attorney, was active in mediation and may be credited to no small extent for settlement of the strike.

URGES DENTAL CARE FOR ALL YOUNGSTERS

War to Bring Scarcity of Dentists, Health Dept. Avers

Before your dentist is called to military service, the State Health Department urges you to take your six-year-old youngster to see him.

"Dental services in the next few months are going to be scarcer," says Dr. H. Allen Moyer, state health commissioner. "Unless they have it now, some children are not going to have the dental check-up which they should have at least annually from their third year on. For the youngster in his sixth year, the check-up will include an inspection of his first permanent teeth.

"Since there are about 85,000 six-year-old children in the state, first permanent teeth are making their appearance on the average in ten Michigan boys and girls every hour of the day. These teeth which usually appear in the sixth year are the upper and lower molars which come in just behind the baby teeth. Often they need fillings within a few weeks or months of their appearance."

Dr. Moyer explained that the reason new permanent teeth may need fillings almost immediately is that "even teeth of the finest appearance may have tiny defects in the enamel—little pits or fissures in which decay may start. These pits and fissures can be repaired early with small fillings. But if the beginning cavities are neglected, decay will progress further until it cripples or ruins these first molars, which in the whole permanent set are the largest teeth."

SERVICE POLICY OF RED CROSS DEFINED

Sale of Contributed Articles Contrary to Principles

It always has been, and now is the definite policy and instructions of the Red Cross, that no charge shall ever be made to any serviceman for any Red Cross article or service which is furnished from the funds or supplies contributed to the Red Cross. If any serviceman, for example, has ever been asked to pay for sweaters, or any similar articles, the person making such sale was acting wholly contrary to Red Cross policy and instructions. If any such sale should now be made or proposed the Red Cross desires complete information concerning the incident and the situation will be promptly and vigorously corrected.

During the last war, as an additional service, not involving deviation from this policy, the Red Cross, at the request of general headquarters of the A.E.F., established certain lodging facilities, including meal service, at a few points along the lines of communication. At the definite request of the A.E.F. headquarters a charge, which was well below cost, was made to the men on leave who desired to use these facilities. In these instances the Red Cross was making available, at the request of the army, an additional service cost. It was not making a charge for any article or service derived from funds or materials contributed for the Red Cross program for the benefit of servicemen.

Yours truly,
Norman H. Davis,
National Chairman,
American Red Cross

* INFORMATION REGARDING INCOME TAX *
* * * * * * * * * *

In the event of failure to make and file an income tax return as required by law within the prescribed time, a certain per cent of the amount of the tax is required to be added to the tax unless failure to file the return within the prescribed time is shown to the satisfaction of the commissioner to be due to reasonable cause and not to willful neglect.

The amount to be added to the tax is 5 per cent if the failure is for more than thirty days, with an additional 5 per cent for each additional thirty days or fraction thereof during which failure to file a return continues, not to exceed 25 per cent in the aggregate.

A taxpayer who files a tardy return and wishes to avoid the addition to the tax for delinquency must make an affirmative showing of all facts, alleged as a reasonable cause for failure to file the return on time, in the form of an affidavit which should be attached to the return. Alleged ignorance of the law does not constitute reasonable cause for delinquency.

Taxpayers should make every effort to file their returns within the time prescribed by law and thus avoid the possibility of the additions to the tax for delinquency in filing returns.

Do not forget that single persons or married persons not living with husband or wife, who earn as much as $14.43 a week for the 52 weeks of the year, and married persons living together who have aggregate earnings of as much as $28.85 a week for the year, are required to file returns.

WOODEN CRATES WILL REPLACE BURLAP BAG

MSC Tells Farmer How to Build Satisfactory Crates

Saws and hammers in the hands of Michigan's farmers can solve some of the problems resulting from a sharp reduction in available burlap for bagging up the prospective 1942 crop of potatoes.

Right now potato growers can make crates that will serve during the war years. Details are offered by W. Ira Bull, extension forester at Michigan State College. Proof that the crates are adequate for the job and can be made to give years of service has been found right on the college experiment station at Lake City.

Home Extension Leaders to Hold Third Lesson Friday, Feb. 20

The Home Economics Extension Project leaders of the various groups are to hold their next lesson on Friday, February 20. Miss Ruth Peck, the leader in charge, advises that the discussion is on the subject, "Pictures for the Home." This will be of deep interest as the pictures in the home add much warmth and friendliness. Furthermore, the arrangement and the type of pictures is important.

During the discussion it is planned to organize the extension program so that the entire organization can be directed toward defense in whatever capacity this loyal group of ladies can best serve. It is suggested that each leader consider this and come to the meeting prepared to make suggestions for the benefit of the entire program. The meeting will start promptly at 10:00 in the forenoon in the Boyne City library and will continue until approximately 4:00. It is hoped that all groups will be represented by their leaders.

Discussion Meeting Planned to Assist Farmers in Filing Income Tax

A meeting has been planned for Tuesday afternoon, February 24, in the Charlevoix court house, court room, to begin at 1:30 promptly, to discuss with interested farmers the filing of their income tax returns. By law it is necessary for all farmers who take in a gross income of $1,500.00 or more to file their return. This applies to those who are married or heads of families. For those who are single, if their gross income is $750.00 or more it is necessary to make the return. These reports must be filed with the collector of internal revenue, Detroit, Michigan, on or before March 15, if the fiscal year ends on January 31st, 1941. If the fiscal year ends on January 31, 1942, the report is due on April 15, and if the fiscal year ends on February 28, 1942, the report is filed on or before May 15.

The farmer in filing his returns should make use of the special farm supplement No. 1040F in addition to the regular form 1040. Farmers may choose between the cash basis or the inventory basis. There is not much difference between the two over a period of time but on the cash basis you may have greater fluctuations from year to year. However, the cash basis is somewhat easier to make out.

Recognizing the fact that this will be a new experience for many farmers and that it is somewhat difficult to interpret the provisions provided by the forms this meeting has been called to more or less interpret many of the questions to be answered. Furthermore, there are many deductions that are provided by law, and we want to suggest these to those making out the returns. The income, likewise, should be discussed and a true picture of the farming operations might be given. Your agent does not by any means pose as an expert in this but we have made a careful study of the provisions and believe we can help you in this program. This meeting is for the public and it is suggested that you bring with you a pencil and some note paper so that you may make some notes as the various provisions and discussed. Kindly remember this discussion will take place Tuesday afternoon, February 24, in the court house, Charlevoix, to begin at 1:30.

Cummings of the Sixth Corps Area to the sixth civilian defense region with offices in Chicago, made this statement last Wednesday (Feb. 11) to the Michigan Council of Defense:

"We in the regional office at Chicago consider the work being done in Michigan the leading work in this region. You here in this state are far ahead of most of the states of the Middle-West. When I saw what was being done here and when I saw the earnestness with which the chiefs were taking up their work at a school this morning and when I saw the preparation which had been made for instructing them, I was proud to say that I was a Michigander."

When is enough enough? Must our degree of preparedness depend upon future Pearl Harbors?

Who is making the sacrifices, anyway?

Newspaper headlines record the news that Singapore, Allied Nations' "Gibraltar of the East"—the great naval fortress which military experts told us was impregnable against enemy assault—has fallen to the Japanese.

We are told the loss of Singapore may be likened to the loss of England from the American viewpoint. Washington officials say it may add a YEAR to the war. A year of what?

"CIO Demands Wage Increase" is another headline.

Let us read on. The C.I.O. demands the following from General Motors:

1. The closed shop with extended authority in plant management.
2. A wage increase of $1 per day with "readjustment" every three months.
3. A $100 defense bond in lieu of vacations.
4. Stricter seniority provisions.
5. More power for the "impartial umpire" to interpret contract provisions.

General Motors wages in cents per hour are 42 per cent ABOVE the national average.

A year of what?

"Two-Man Dispute Closes Ford Dept." Here is another headline.

What were the workers making in the Ford department? Just tools and dies. How were the tools and dies to be used? Just to make bomber planes. And why are the hammers needed? To fight a war that we're going to win anyway—or will we?

"University Head Sees Near Defeat." Just another headline, this time quoting an address by the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, vice-president of Georgetown University, who said: "I don't believe that 20 per cent of our people realize we are at war. They will not apparently until the first casualties are made known and the first bombs start to fall . . . It is not defeatism to talk of defeat; it is prudence."

Is this "war-mongering"?

Capt. Donald Leonard, civilian defense coordinator for Michigan, has repeatedly declared in community talks: "It is a pity that a few of the bombs that dropped on Pearl Harbor couldn't have fallen on—say Kansas City! Maybe that would have awakened the Middle West to the seriousness of this war!"

Is this statement needless hysterics to arouse the public?

"Henderson Fears Wage Inflation." Another headline.

The federal government economist, now price administrator at Washington, warned the war labor board that general wage increases—such as those sought by the Michigan C.I.O.—would add only to the ruinous spiral of inflation.

Who is paying these war wages anyway? Is it the General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor company or is it the American taxpayer who must foot the war bill, now or ultimately?

Michigan industry and business—all employers who have eight or more persons employed—have paid approximately $140,000,000 in unemployment compensation taxes. This money was paid by management and was deposited at Washington to the account of the state unemployment compensation commission for the purpose of paying insurance allowances to jobless as a "crutch" to help them along while they looked for work or until their jobs were resumed.

It is not an employer-financed savings account.

Should this money be used as a dole?

Recommended by the legislative study commission is an increase in minimum payments from $16 to $20 a week, a 25 per cent raise. C.I.O. leaders had asked for $24 a week for 28 weeks. They oppose the experience rating, provided for by Michigan law, whereby employers who keep workers on the job can earn a reduction in taxes from 3 per cent to a possible 1 per cent—a possible saving of many millions.

Should employers be given an incentive for keeping men at work?

Roy Newberry, editor, Coldwater Daily Reporter, said editorially on January 7: "Americans need discipline. They need a self-imposed discipline that springs from an intense devotion to their country and its interests, a discipline so strong that personal comforts become unimportant. In short they need to build morale."

In this editor's judgment we are unprepared spiritually as well as militarily.

But must it be necessary that we Americans "won't buckle down to the really hard work of winning the war," as Newberry puts it, until three things happen: "They have got to be mad, they have got to be scared, they have got to be hurt"?

Mark P. Haines, editor, Sturgis Daily Journal, observed editorially February 7: "The quicker we get serious about this thing, the sooner it's over. Every sacrifice, every extra bit of production accomplished now will save three sacrifices, make unnecessary three savings, render unneeded three measures of production next year. Every step that can be taken in conservation now puts off the day of rationing. Every speed-up in preparation that can be made today will save American blood and American lives tomorrow. Every drop of sweat we shed today may save a drop of blood or a tear tomorrow."

Are we really serious about it TODAY?

Read the headlines of your home-town newspaper and you may think through the answers to some of the questions we have raised.

Every citizen is entitled to his own opinions.

As one citizen among millions, we offer these conclusions:

1. The average Michigan citizen DOES realize the seriousness of the war. He is going about his duties quietly. He is not vocal about his grim determination to win the victory and his willingness to sacrifice for it. He is not grumbling.

2. A small minority, highly vocal, is seizing upon the war as an opportunity for selfish profit.

As the Sturgis newspaper editor phrased it: "Every drop of sweat we shed today may save a drop of blood or a tear tomorrow."

The sacrifices we make tomorrow will not shorten the war tomorrow. They must be made today—NOW.

(Edited by Anne Higmae)

Do You Remember? is 1 year old, and this candle has been lit to honor the event. In the year past, it has been our pleasure to delve into the dusty, yellowing files of the Courier to bring you memories of days gone by in Charlevoix, and it is our hope that the task has so far been accomplished with as much satisfaction and enjoyment to you, the render, as to the writer. Our thanks for appreciation expressed by so many friends.

CHAPTER VI

George heard them and called to bid her explain to Jarambo that if and when the schooner came around the island, they would all draw back into the jungle and hide. She did so, but Jarambo said in calm negation:

"My people are sick. When they are sick they will not move. They will stay."

She said nothing, trying to understand what it was in Jarambo that had changed him. He squatted at her feet, scratching at one of the stones in the platform with his fingernail. He looked up at her with small, blazing eyes.

"Long time once we were men," he said, in that deep, hoarse tone. "My father met the first white men who came. He ate their livers. There was a great white man with red hair who killed many, but my father came behind him with his war club—and the white man's red head broke as easily as a coconut. My father ate his right arm, and was always strong afterward." He scratched industriously at the stone. "When a white man is not looking, his head can be cracked!"

There was a sort of chant in his tones, like the rhythm of a rising madness. She said gently, to quiet him: "My father was a white man, Jarambo."

His eyes touched hers. "He was our friend. I was at his side always. You and your man are my people." His eyes dropped again. "But your man does not know our people. They will not go."

She told George, when he came out to join them, what Jarambo said about the probable attitude of the Islanders. George insisted: "They must, Mary. If we can't argue them into it, we'll drive them. Jarambo will do what I say. Tell him to talk to them now and explain what they must do." And that day and the next, he himself led Jarambo to the huts up the trail and along the shores, and he and Mary stood by while Jarambo spoke to the Islanders, Mary prompting the old man, who obediently repeated what he was told to say. George by his own activities was reassured. "They'll be all right when the time comes," he insisted. "Jarambo is explaining it all to them. It's the only sensible thing to do."

But the second day, at noon, word came down the mountain that the schooner was working her way around the island; and an hour later, when he had labored with them fruitlessly, even George was convinced that the people would not go.

He accepted the situation steadily enough. "They won't move," he said. "Whips wouldn't drive them. But Mary, you go. I can't let these men see you."

She asked what he intended; and he said: "I'll stay and meet them."

"Then I ought to be with you."

He shook his head. "I'll be all right alone," he insisted. "They have no reason to hurt me, and I'm not afraid of them. But with you here, I'd be afraid what they might do to you; and you would be a reason for them to—kill me, Mary. I want you to go."

She was deeply reluctant to leave him. She remembered Corkran; and she thought, with a guilty sense of disloyalty, that the sailor and his talking bird might have more influence with the Islanders than George, might persuade them to hide as George desired. Corkran must be near at hand, ready to do what he could if he were needed. The thought gave her new confidence. She said: "All right, George; I'll do whatever you say. I'll hide if you want me to, but I'm not afraid to stay with you. I want to stay here if it will help."

"If I know you're safe, I'll be all right," he told her. "You can help me most by going into the hills."

So Mary consented; and since George thought the schooner might come into the bay tonight, he wished her to go at once. Jarambo put her into the care of two young men; and they took her far up one of the trails that climbed steeply among the peaks, to the house of an old man whom her father had called Isaiah, who was now called Itaul, who lived like a hermit high above the bay.

When they came to his house the young men explained why Mary was there. Itaul made sounds of assent; and he led the way to a bold promontory from which they could see the schooner south of the island, moving slowly on light airs.

At sunset she w... till far away. Mary and the old man and the two young men her guardians slept that night on a great bed of heaped dry grass, with a coconut log polished by long usage to serve as pillow for them all. The three men slept without sound, but she lay long awake thinking of George. George, she understood well enough, was always afraid; yet he never yielded to that fear, nor admitted it, except that he had now admitted that he was afraid for her sake. When she slept at last her dreams were troubled; and when she woke, it was with a leap of her heart as though some outcry had alarmed her.

When they had eaten, dipping together into the gourd, Itaul led them again to the outlook to watch the schooner work her way into the roads and drop anchor there. No canoes went off to meet her; and Mary thought, happy in his victory: "George would not let them go."

Hours later they brought George to her, slung in a hammock of vines between two poles, his eyes closed, his lips white. He was unconscious, but he was alive.

Mary, when she saw that George was still alive, wept with grief because he was hurt, but with gladness too, because now she could tend him and keep him here secure. Four young men had brought him. They laid him down, and old Itaul drew near.

Mary saw that a bullet had entered George's left breast near the side, coming out under his arm, tearing the thin muscles of his arm as it emerged. When the hurts were exposed, Itaul leaned closer and touched the wound of entrance firmly. His fingers like claws felt along the ill-fleshed ribs to the spot where the bullet had emerged; and then the old man clicked his tongue, and stood up and hobbled away.

George lay limp and still, his eyes closed, his head on one side without strength in his neck, his hands limp on the mat upon which they had laid him.

Old Itaul returned, mumbling to himself, with leaves fresh plucked, and a bulbous fruit. His squeezed juice out of the fruit upon the wound of entrance.

Itaul bade the young men turn the hurt man on his side while he applied the stinging juice to the torn wounds below the shoulder and on the arm. Then he bound leaves over these wounds with strips of torn petticoat which Mary offered him. When George was bandaged, Itaul spoke to the young men. Within the hour George had been carried deep into the forest; a shelter had been reared for him of poles bound together with vines and thatched with palm and breadfruit leaves, and he and Mary were hidden safe away.

Mary sat beside George, Itaul squatting a little way off, mumbling to himself.

She asked one of the young men for Jarambo; but he shook his head, not looking at her. If George had not filled her thoughts, excluding all else, she must have seen a tautness in these young men, as though they were waiting, listening. But she thought only of her husband; and when in midafternoon he opened his eyes and looked at her, she spoke in a quick tenderness, close beside him.

"Quiet, my dear," she said. "You're all right. We're safe. Quiet. Rest, my dear."

He stared past her, stared straight up at the thatch above them. She thought he did not know he spoke. He said: "They were angry because no canoes met them. They smashed their boat against the rocks getting ashore, and that made them more angry. One was a red-headed man with a red beard and red hair all over his chest. They all had guns. I told them we didn't want them here, and the red-headed man put his hand against me and pushed me over backward. One of the others shot me before I could get up." He looked at her with a deep shame at his own weakness. "I fainted, Mary, like a woman."

"Quiet, my dear," she said. "You're all right."

"You couldn't do anything against their guns, George. Now rest, dear."

His eyes closed. "Like a woman," he muttered again, and sighed, and slept.

In the morning George was stronger, able to sit up with Mary to support him, her arms around him, his shoulders leaning against her breast. The young men were gone when she woke; but later they returned, and Mary saw a red gleam in their eyes, and their eyes would not meet hers. She wondered, and her heart began to beat hard with a sort of premonition, but she was not afraid of what would happen. She thought that in some strange way she was terrified by something already past; but she decided this was merely the reaction from her alarm of yesterday, now eased, and put the fear aside.

LETTERS FROM THE ARMY CAMPS

Camp Vlupau, T. H.
January 11, 1942

Dear Folks:

It has been a long time since I received any mail from you. Your last letter was dated December 19. I hope you are all well and that you enjoyed the holidays.

We are fairly well established in this camp. We were all glad to get off the boat and get our feet on solid ground. We are about the same distance from Honolulu as we were from Wilmington when at (Camp) Davis (N.C.). Our camp is in a beautiful spot, about a quarter-mile from the ocean. We are in single story wooden barracks, without windows. Instead of windows there is a continuous opening from the eaves three feet down, covered with screen only. The climate is so perfect here that windows are not needed.

The scenery is beautiful. I wish you could see it. Words can't do it justice. We have the ocean on one side of us and mountains on the other three sides. The ocean is a beautiful shade of blue, much prettier than the Atlantic. The mountains are extinct volcanoes and are real rugged and jagged. From where we are, it looks as if it would be impossible to climb many of them. The tops of the mountains are in the clouds a good part of the time, but we have had sunshine all day long since we have been here.

Climate is ideal. Temperature during the day is comfortably warm. At night, I use one blanket and a second toward morning. The part of the island we are on received about ten inches of rain per year, a dry climate. Back in the mountains, only a few miles away, they have 180 inches of rainfall per year. It seems hard to realize that there could be so much difference on a small island. This island is about 45 miles long and about 25 miles wide. We are on the island of Oahu (pronounced Wahoo), third in size of the Hawaiian group, of which there are 8 islands. This island is the most densely populated.

All our mail is censored and we must use only one side of the paper, as censored parts are cut out. Clipper rates for civilians are 20c per half-ounce. For army personnel and their relatives it is only 6c per half-ounce, which is a break for us. Regular air mail rate is 6c per ounce. That is the reason I'm using light weight paper and envelopes and writing smaller than usual. You may write on both sides of your letters, as your mail will not be censored. Clippers are not operating on regular schedule and so there may be some delay in this letter reaching you. Let me know when you receive this.

We still have "blackouts" every night. I am expert at dressing and undressing in the dark as we have been doing it ever since we left the mainland. We will continue to have blackouts indefinitely. No one is allowed on the streets of Honolulu from 6:00 p. m. to 6:00 a. m. They are also blacked out every night. No liquor or beer has been sold on this island since December 7.

AT THE MOVIES

Garbo Triumphs in Gay Comedy Role of "Two-Faced Woman"

The talent for comedy first revealed by Greta Garbo in "Ninotchka" reaches a new high in the brilliant actress' latest appearance, again in a comedy and again with Melvyn Douglas, in "Two-Faced Woman," which opens Saturday, February 21, on the Palace screen.

Playing a dual characterization the witty, sophisticated tale offers Garbo a role unlike anything she has ever attempted before. She jitterbugs and sings, abandons her famous long bob for an ultra-modern hairdress, makes her first appearance in a bathing suit, and carries on a brilliant verbal duel with her rival in love, played by Constance Bennett.

Gracie Allen Sets Zany as the Star

"Sets must be beautiful and ridiculous." Mad as this sounds, it was an actual order. And it was all Gracie Allen's fault.

In "Mr. and Mrs. North," M-G-M's filmization of the Broadway mystery-comedy hit, coming February 25 to the Palace screen, she collects antiques. It's up to William Post Jr., her husband in the comedy, to find a place for these atrocities. And he obviously couldn't uncover a place unless the studio designer saw to it that one was there.

"Dead Men Tell"

Against a background of the South Sea-bound treasure ship, "Suva Star," murder stalks in every corner and cabin in "Dead Men Tell" coming February 25, to the Palace Theater. With $60,000,000 buried pirate treasure as the stakes, it is little wonder that each of four people who possess a section of the map burn with distrust and homicidal tendencies.

For the eighth time Sidney Toler portrays the inimitable Oriental sleuth, and for the eighth time he avoids death in the last few seconds—and traps the killer.

MISHAP HALTS WORK OF CHANNEL DREDGING

Earth Gave Way Under Steam Crane, Nearly Upsetting Machine

Channel dredging operations of Hoelthe & Schultz were brought to a temporary halt Friday when earth fill behind the concrete channel revetment gave way under the steam crane, nearly upsetting the big machine.

Work is now underway to level the crane and dig away sufficient earth to the east to allow it to be moved out under its own power.

Operators suffered no injury, nor is it believed there was any damage to the equipment from the mishap.

IRONTON

Elwyn Johnson spent the past week end with his family.

Mrs. Clyde Ogden was called to Mason due to the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Ivan Thomson.

We have received word that Mrs. Florence King, a former resident of our community, is enjoying the winter in Lake Worth, Fla.

Mrs. Lewis Brown left Sunday for several weeks visit at the home of her son Percy, in Pontiac. He underwent a minor operation last week in the Pontiac hospital. We all wish him a speedy recovery.

Douglas Johnson surprised his mother, Mrs. Elwyn Johnson, early Tuesday morning when he came from his naval training station in Boston to spend several hours with her before leaving for Ireland. He had just returned from patrol duty along the coast to and from Iceland. While here his brother Desmond also arrived from Great Lakes training school to spend some time with his parents before reporting for duty in the state of Washington in March.

SHOT AT RANDOM

until the frightened animal passed. The car didn't have a self-starter, so each time the motor was stopped, they had to get out and crank the darned thing. A diary he kept on the trip had a notation about covering 8 miles in 20 minutes, which was some speed in those days.

No man can become a failure without his own consent.

Things have settled down to normal now that the road workers' strike, primary election and third registration for selective military service are over with. Now if the United Nations would get on the giving instead of receiving end of exchanging punches with the Axis powers, we'ed be able to quit quite a bit of our worrying.

Which reminds me that there's something lacking in the patriotic attitude of Charlevoixans. A movie short Sunday night showing the courageous General Douglas MacArthur, whose gallant stand on the Philippines is one of the really bright spots in this World War II, failed to arouse even the smallest measure of applause.

Patient: "If I take this castor oil, do you think I'll be well enough to get up in the morning?"

Doctor: "Yes, long before morning."

Yes, the past week's weather has been about the finest we've had this winter. Mighty easy on the coal pile and dispositions, too, if you've taken time to observe.

Next Monday, February 23, will be observed as Washington's birthday. Let's all try and see if we can't get up more than the four flags that appeared on Bridge street for Lincoln's birthday.

On the basis of our normal budget for the year—leaving out the billions for the war—if every income above $100,000 a year were confiscated (and that includes the duPonts, the Rockefellers, the Mellons and all the other fat ones), the amount collected would run the government only 16 days. If every income above $10,000 were confiscated—110 days. It's astounding, isn't it? Well, think it over and next week may bring forth some of the reasons.

The almost complete absence of dogs running at large on Charlevoix streets speaks well for the splendid compliance of local citizens to quarantine regulations instituted February 10. The present situation shows what regulation can accomplish, so let us hope this action is a forerunner to permanent control of stray and unlicensed dogs.

Charlevoix has had its first experience with a workers' strike. It was not pleasant to observe the ill feeling such a situation can create between men. I have reached two very definite conclusions after deliberate review of the matter. First, there was no point of agreement in settlement of differences between the road commission and workers which could not have been reached without a strike at a meeting of employer and employe had it not been for a lack of common understanding between the two factions because of personal feelings. An effort to create closer relationship between the road commission and its workers would appear a remedy for this situation. Second, the absence of violence during the 9-day strike indicates the exercise of good judgment by law enforcement officials and strikers alike. When sound reasoning exists amid ill feeling there is always a balance in favor of peaceful settlement of differences.

NEW FIRE TRUCK IS DELIVERED TO CITY

Specially Equipped for Rural Fire Fighting; Best In North

One of the most modern pieces of fire fighting equipment in northern Michigan has been delivered to the city of Charlevoix.

Product of the American Fire Truck Corp., of Detroit, the new truck is designed for service in rural areas where pressure water systems are not available as well as for city protection.

A special feature is a 350-gal. water tank from which water is forced under 160 to 300 pound pressure through two 150-foot lengths of hose equipped with fog nozzles which smother flames by enveloping water screen. Water supply for the tank in rural districts may be provided by bucket brigade or, where a well, creek or lake is located within a radius of 800 feet, by an engine-driven booster pump the city has purchased as auxiliary equipment. The regular truck pump has a capacity of 600 gallons per minute from a body of water, 1000 gallons per minute from city hydrants.

Regular equipment includes Foamite and Pyrene chemical tanks, 1100 feet of hose, ladders, etc. The truck has a Chevrolet chassis powered with 95 h. p. motor.

The city's regular truck, retained in service, carries 1000 feet of hose, has 100 gallons of chemical, pumping capacity of 400 gallons per minute.

With equipment delivered, the city is ready to inaugurate a plan of rural fire protection in townships cooperating financially in purchase of the new truck.

CHARLEVOIX BEREFT OF PIONEER WOMAN

Mrs. Alice Scroggie Died at Seminole, Tex.; Funeral Friday

Mrs. Alice Scroggie, resident of this vicinity for seventy-five years, died Saturday, February 7 at Scroggie Hospital in Seminole, Texas, where she had been visiting her grandson, Dr. Val Scruggie. She had been in failing health for some time.

Alice Burns was born August 22, 1861, in Bruce county, Ontario, Canada, daughter of Bernard and Abigail Burns. Her family came to this county about 1866 and took up a homestead near the present community of Barnard, which was named in honor of her father. The Barnard Methodist church and cemetery now stand on part of the Burns homestead, given by Mr. Burns for that purpose.

On September 16, 1885, she married William Scroggie. They lived in Hayes township about a year before moving to Charlevoix, and made their home here from that time. He preceded her in death in 1928.

Mrs. Scroggie was a member of the Methodist church and Order of the Eastern Star.

Surviving are two sons, William B. Scroggie, of San Angelo, Texas, and Lee J. Scroggie, of Detroit; three brothers, George and Edward Burns of this city, and Nassau Burns, of Plainwell; two grandchildren, Dr. Val Scroggie, of Seminole, Texas, and Mrs. Phyllis Lee Wolcott, of Santa Monica, Calif., and two great-grandchildren. A son, Dean, was killed in action in France during the first World War.

Funeral services, with Eastern Star rites, were conducted Friday morning at 10:30 from the See Funeral Home, Rev. Leigh H. Hagle officiating. Interment was at Brookside cemetery.

A. & P. TO OBSERVE FOUNDER'S WEEK PERIOD FEBRUARY 16-21

Veteran of three past wars and committed to a definite role in the present world strife, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company Monday, February 16, will begin the observance of Founder's Week.

The company, which was two years old when the war between the states broke out and which continued through Appomattox, the conquest of Spain and World War I, will honor George Huntington Hartford, originator of the straight line method of distribution.

With the opening of hostilities between this country and the Axis nations, the company charted its course in an open letter to the American public pledging cooperation in the nation's effort.

Over the signature of John A. Hartford, president of the company and a son of the founder, the A & P pledged itself to continue efforts to reduce the spread between prices paid the grower and prices charged the consumer; to continue to assist farmers and growers in the orderly marketing of their products at fair prices; to continue payment of high wages to employes and the maintenance of good working conditions; to make every effort to hold inventories to the lowest point consistent with good service to customers, because hoarding, whether by wholesalers, retailers, or consumers, will cause higher prices, and to make every effort to continue to sell food at retail at the lowest margin of profit in the history of the retail grocery business.

Clement Wull, vice-president for the company in this area, in announcing the observance of Founder's Week, said: "Founder's Week this year comes at a critical period in our national life. It comes at a time when not only planes and tanks, but food, stand between us and the powers that would destroy us. We must keep our people healthy so that they may prosecute this war with all vigor and to do this we must make foods available to the rank and file at fair prices. The A & P, with its simplified methods of distribution, is pledged to this course."

ELEANOR SUTTON AND JOHN SLAGH WERE WED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Sutton, of Muskegon, announce the marriage of their daughter, Eleanor, to John Raymond Slagh, of Holland. The ceremony was performed February 3 at Conway, S. C., by Rev. William Warren Leathers Jr. Miss Wilma Olthoff, of Grand Rapids, and Edward Slagh, brother of the groom, attended the couple.

The couple plan to make their home at Jacksonville, N. C. Mr. Slagh is stationed at New River, N. C., with the United States Navy. The bride is a granddaughter of Mrs. Emma Sutton, of Charlevoix.

BAN KILLING DOE FOR DEER CAMPS

PROHIBIT BEAVER TRAPPING IN LOWER PENINSULA

Lower Peninsula Trapping Season Set for March 19 to April 1; Rulings Meet Demand

In two orders that are in line with views of many outspoken sportsmen, the state conservation commision has halted for one year the taking of does for camp deer and the trapping of beaver in the upper peninsula.

The resolution limiting the killing of deer on camp licenses to bucks was passed by authority of the commission's "discretionary power" to protect game and fish, as formally requested by the governor and legislature. Disgust with abuses of the camp deer law last fall provoked widespread demand for the law's repeal. This commission action takes care of the situation only until the legislature in the next regular session can revise its deer law.

Sportsmen's opinions were influential also in the closing of the upper peninsula to beaver trapping this season. Otter trapping is banned this year throughout the state, largely because of the scarcity of these animals.

The 19 lower peninsula counties in which beaver trapping will be permitted March 19 to April 1 are: Clare, Gladwin, Arenac, Iosco, Antrim, Charlevoix, Otsego, Montmorency, Alpena, Presque Isle, Ogemaw, Cheboygan and Emmet, excepting state parks, state game refuges, wild-life sanctuaries and all other areas specifically closed to trapping in seven of the counties by the conservation commission. The $2 licenses are sold only to residents, who may take as many as eight beavers. Seals required for the pelts by April 6 cost $1 each.

RULES FOR RATIONING SUGAR ARE OUTLINED

School Teachers to Be Charged With Registering Consumers

Millions of Americans will flock to their neighborhood schools within the next few weeks to obtain individual stamp booklets to govern their sugar purchases for the duration.

The impending rationing program, outlined by Price Administrator Leon Henderson, voids any advantage persons who hoarded sugar expected to gain and provides stiff penalties—as much as 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine—for those who falsify statements on the amount they have on hand.

Under the plan, school teachers will be charged with registering consumers and will be required to obtain a signed statement on the amount of sugar they have at home.

If it exceeds two pounds for each member of the family, the registrar will tear stamps from the "hoarder's" booklets equivalent to the excess amount, thus depriving him of the right to purchase sugar until his accumulated stocks are used up.

Henderson said the program will be instituted as soon as the stamp booklets—the first of their kind to be issued since the war began—have been printed and distributed to every man, woman and child in the nation. It is, he said, a tremendous job.

Each book will contain 28 stamps, each one good for a week's quota of sugar. Just how much that will be has not been finally decided but Henderson believes it probably will be no more than 12 ounces per person per week at the start.

Only one person from each family unit needs to register at the public school designated for the particular neighborhood. He can obtain booklets for the entire family unit, defined as father, mother, children and wards.

Any other person living in the household but not a member of the family will be required to register personally to obtain his booklet.

The stamps will be numbered so they can be used for purchase of sugar during the week designated. Thus, it will be impossible for anyone to buy several weeks supply at one time.

In making purchases, the customer will tear out the stamp for the current week and hand it to the retailer. He, in turn, will paste it on a special card which, when filled, will entitle him to replenish his stock for the following week.

February 20 is the closing date for applicants who wish to take a state civil service examination March 7 for the job of land appraiser, which is open to men with training and experience in forestry and agriculture.

During the last five months in 1941 tuberculosis Christmas seals provided chest X-rays for 1,540 Michigan persons. Since early tuberculosis has no symptoms, the only way to find it is with the X-ray.

URGE MORE TO USE FOOD STAMP PLAN

Full Advantage Is Not Being Taken in Charlevoix County

Many families in Charlevoix county, who could do so, are not taking advantage of the food stamp plan, John W. Piercey, area supervisor of the Surplus Marketing Administration to those families who purchased orange stamps to the amount of their normal food purchases. This is only a fraction of what the blue stamp subsidy would be if all eligible families would participate, according to Piercey.

All families receiving direct relief, aid to dependent children or aid to blind grants, old age assistance, and many WPA families may participate in the plan. The food stamp plan provides a fifty cent return for every dollar invested. For example twenty dollars spent for food will bring thirty dollars worth of food through the food stamp plan.

For those families receiving any direct relief the food stamps are ordered by the county welfare department; all others must send their money with their purchase orders direct to the stamp issuing office in Lansing.

All food stamps are spent in the grocery stores for the same foods sold to cash customers.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

Geraniums in the Window

To grow geraniums indoors and have them flower well, one thing is absolutely necessary. They must have plenty of sunlight. Therefore, if ample sunlight is not available—preferably a direct southern exposure—do not try to grow geraniums as house plants. Yet if you have the right exposure you will find them very satisfactory and there is an endless variety from which to choose, including:

Stars and stripes—double white flowers, with distinct red stripes running the length of the petals.

Poinsettia geranium—miniature bright scarlet poinsettia-like flowers.

Violet beauty—brilliant purple, the nearest to a blue geranium now available.

Rosebud geranium—each floret is an exact representation of a double red rose.

Trailing ivy geraniums—three named varieties, red, lilac-white, pink.

It might also be interesting to try growing heavenly blue morning glories indoors at this season. Plants in a sunny window will come into bloom eight weeks after the seed is planted if the seed is first soaked in warm water or slightly chipped. The plants should be protected from the cold at night. It is best to apply moisture in the form of warm water.

DRAFT LOTTERY SET MARCH 17TH

EFFECTS 648 REGISTRANTS IN THIS COUNTY

County Draft Boards to Start Review All Classified Men Under Revised Regulations

The first wartime draft lottery since 1918 will take place March 17—St. Patrick's Day.

Selective service headquarters has announced that the order in which the 9,000,000 latest registrants will be called for military service will be determined then. The men involved are those between 20 and 44 years of age, inclusive, who registered last week.

Officials said that the new registrants probably will not be called before May. Quotas will be filled in the meantime from the ranks of those in the 21-35 year bracket who signed up in 1940 and 1941, before the nation was at war.

The lottery will effect approximately 648 Charlevoix county men who registered February 16. Actual county registration was 613 and approximately 35 registrations from out of the county have been so far returned to the local draft board.

In the meantime, county draft board officials have either classified or made arrangement for physical exam to determine classification of all men in Charlevoix county included in the first and second registrations. At its next meeting, the board will start review of all previous classifications under revised regulations which exclude some phases of defective vision and teeth, also marriage as a grounds of determining dependents, as reasons for deferment. In other words, classes 1-B and 4-F will be reopened at once. Under new physical requirements, men who have sufficient teeth, either natural or artificial, to chew army chow, will be accepted for service, also some men with correctable defective vision who do not have glasses, will be outfitted with them.

For further information regarding new regulations it would be advisable for draft registrants to consult the draft board.

Motorists are requested to bring car titles with them when buying new plates. There is no extension from the Saturday deadline.

WILL ENFORCE DOG QUARANTINE HERE

Officials Urge Innoculation of Dogs to Prevent Rabies

Steps toward enforcement of an ordinance adopted February 9 and quarantine regulations imposed February 10 by Gilbert B. Saltonstall, health officer, to control dogs and prevent spread of rabies to this city, have been taken by city council.

Arrangements have been made to impound animals picked up with William Cook, Petoskey avenue. Several animals have already been disposed of at request of owners and police officers are prepared for strict enforcement of existing regulations.

Officials point out that immunization of dogs against rabies is the surest way to prevent spread of the disease. Every veterinary is supplied with the required serum. Innoculation, given at a very low cost, provides immunity for one year, protects the animal and public as well.

RAYDERS LOSE TO BOYNE'S CAGERS

DEFEATED BY 23 TO 19 MARGIN IN THRILLING TILT

Close Pre-Tournament Schedule With Undefeated Harbor Quintet on Home Floor Friday

Boyne City cagers shattered Charlevoix's mathematical chances of sharing the Northern Michigan class C conference basketball title with a 23 to 19 win on their home court Friday night.

Had Charlevoix's Red Rayders defeated Boyne, they would have been in a position to share the crown by winning from the undefeated Harbor Springs quintet here this week. They stand in second position now and will retain this standing regardless of result of Friday night's encounter.

The Rayders, victor over Boyne by a 28 to 25 count in a previous meeting here, lost in a thrilling contest. Trailing for three periods, they tied the count at 19-all early in the final quarter, only to have Boyne pull away when goals by Miller and Winegardner found the meshes with but minutes remaining to play. Boyne led 8 to 3 at the quarter, 11 to 5 at the half, 18 to 12 at third intermission.

Rowe led the Rayders with 8 points, Stewart scored 7, Carey 4. Miller was best for the winners with 7.

Charlevoix reserves took their second thumping of the season from Boyne's second-stringers, losing 29 to 15 in Friday night's encounter.

Charlevoix's Rayders close their pre-tournament schedule here Friday night. They meet the undefeated Harbor Springs quintet, 1941 district and regional title winners. Harbor tripped the Rayders 36 to 21 earlier in the season at Harbor and, with Charlevoix pointing for a return tilt throughout the season, Friday night's contest promises to be the outstanding local attraction of the season.

COMMERCE OFFICERS ARE NAMED

O. P. NORTH ELECTED PRESIDENT OF BOARD

E. J. Edwards and Harold Miller Elected to Board of Directors for Three-Year Terms

Officers of the Charlevoix board of commerce were elected at the annual business meeting held Tuesday evening at the city hall community room. An attendance of 65, largest in recent years, indicated interest in the meeting.

O. P. North, superintendent of schools, was named president to succeed E. J. Edwards, who, following a term of four years as director and two years as president, was not a candidate for re-election. Charles A. Hamlin was unanimously named vice president and Clifford McKibbin, Jr., city superintendent, was likewise chosen secretary-treasurer.

Directors to succeed Clarence B. Meggison and M. A. Levinson were named for 3-year terms. Mr. Edwards was elected to succeed Mr. Meggison, Harold W. Miller was named to succeed Mr. Levinson.

The election was followed by discussion of last year's and contemplated future activities. Particular emphasis was placed on the desirability of obtaining industries for Charlevoix in a general discussion of subjects of city welfare.

Last year's record of activities, together with a financial statement of expenditures, was contained in a printed report distributed at the opening of the meeting. This report, detailing cruises, tournaments, conventions, promotional features and exhibits carried out during 1941, also revealed the board of directors held 50 meetings, that 14,000 Charlevoix folders were distributed besides thousands of other folders through the information office, and that 2,500 letters to individuals were sent out.

Careful financial management was attested by the fact that $3,072.90 was expended from a budget of $4,000, during a 14-month period.

A complete verbal report of 1941 activities of the board will be given at the annual banquet, date of which has not yet been announced.

Conservation officers will enforce the ban on set-up guns for seven months each year, from March 1 to October 1, in all parts of the state. Penalty for transporting or having in possession in an automobile of firearms not taken down or in a case is $10 to $100 and court costs, or up to 90 days in jail.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By KEN USHER

If your car gets out of control you know what happens—TROUBLE. It's the same way with your temper, so it's wise to control it.

I was no little amused and somewhat amazed to observe that young Johnny Nordrum, after riding to school on a sleigh drawn by his dog, sent the animal home pulling an empty sleigh. The dog obeyed his young master's orders instantly, heading for home in a most business-like manner. That this animal has been well trained is very obvious.

Beaver Islanders have been without communication with the mainland except by telephone since February 18, when Ernest Smith made his last trip to St. James with mail and supplies. Efforts by Capt. Leroy Allers to provide airplane service as in previous winters are badly entangled in red tape as the result of wartime government restrictions on airplane travel. The north end of Lake Michigan is plugged with ice stretching as far as the eye can see and has been for a week. The situation harks back to the days when winter communication between the islanders and mainland was by horse or dog-drawn sleigh or travel afoot. Trouble with the situation now, though, is that the islanders, accustomed to uninterrupted communication for several years past, are not prepared for the present condition and as such, will no doubt need supplies in a short time.

A close observer noted 273 persons enjoying facilities of the municipal skating rink on the school grounds one night last week. Which all goes to prove, as has been stated in this column heretofore, that the rink is a wonderful thing for the community, providing a place for skating safe from the ever present dangers of the lakes.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

More efficiency in our war effort may be the 1942 battle cry of Michigan Republicans.

When a war is going well, citizens are usually satisfied with the men who are running the war. But when military reverses come — Singapore, for example — the same citizens awaken from general complacency to demand better and more vigorous leadership.

It is ironical, in a way, that frequently this is the case. Too often it was the same leadership which encountered indifference, if not outright resistance, to suggestions that the enemy might reach our own shores. Then when the enemy approaches nearer, the same public turns in partial panic upon their own leaders for "failure to act."

Such may be the case in Michigan.

When you get alarmed, you get mad. And angry voters are apt to vote for a change.

If military defeats continue to accumulate, and the likelihood is that they will as we prepare men and equipment for battle, Republicans may find themselves armed with a psychological weapon made to order for victory in November.

This is mere observation, not prediction.

Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner has been accused of political favoritism in appointment of county councils of defense, tire rationing officials and even Red Cross chairmen.

He countered with a statement that only 18 per cent of his appointees were Democrats, that the state council of defense was "overwhelmingly Republican."

Republican congressmen, such as Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott, charges the national administration with failure to tell the truth about our losses at Pearl Harbor. Wolcott declared recently in Lapeer that eight out of nine American capital ships, light and heavy cruisers and battleships, as well as 473 bomber planes, were "destroyed."

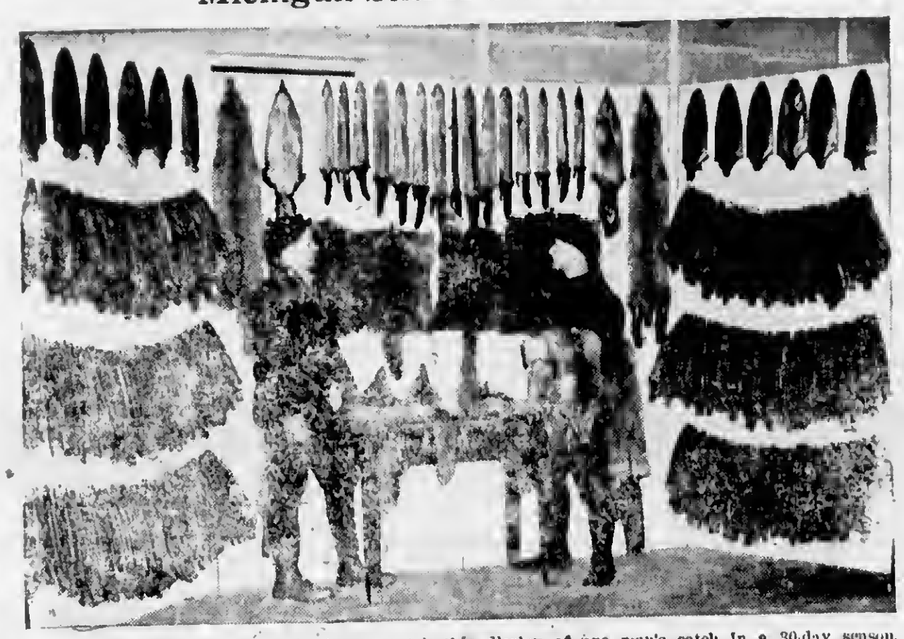
Michigan Still A Fur Producer



Like a picture out of Michigan's pioneer past is this display of one man's catch in a 30-day season. Trapper Houghton King proudly points out to Larry Dayton, a game area manager for the state conservation department, some fine specimens in one of the best catches of the year. The take includes pelts of 400 muskrats, 15 mink, six foxes, four raccoons, two bobcats, two skunks and a weasel. About 20,000 persons are licensed to trap in Michigan each year.

Check Pest Growth Now; Save Spring Trouble.

By JAMES W. DAYTON
(Agricultural Agent at Large, Massachusetts State College.)

In the spring people talk about weeds as well as about the weather, only they do something about the weeds. But in the fall, weeds are overlooked. They are often accepted as part of the scenery and nothing much is done about them. In fact, they are not always even talked about. But the late summer and the fall is really the time to save a lot of future trouble. For that time of year annual weeds are forming thousands of seeds and laying the foundations for next year's abundance. Perennial weeds are busy storing up food in their roots for good, strong growth next spring.

The simplest thing to do about these fall weeds is to see that they never ripen seeds. Mow them, or pull them before the seeds are ripe. It is usually best to rake them up and destroy them after they are cut, for weed seeds will ripen after the plant is killed. They put their last resources into preparing for the coming generation.

The mowing machine, the scythe, or just a plain knife may be used—all depending upon the size of the job; but don't forget fence corners and the patches of waste land. These may be more expensive areas than you might suspect if they spread weeds over the rest of the farm, and this is the time of year to cut down their costs.

Encourage the weed seeds to sprout in the land to be seeded this fall. Then harrow them up at intervals before seeding time comes around. Soon all the weed seeds in the surface soil will have sprouted, and if, when grass and clover are seeded, care is taken not to bring to the surface new soil with additional weed seeds, the crop next year should be exceptionally clean.

Fall plowing is often a help in killing perennial weeds such as witch grass and other "tough customers." If weed roots can be exposed to the cold and drying of winter winds, the plants will have a hard time starting in the spring. Harrowing with a spring-tooth harrow to bring these roots to the surface is often a help.

Taking care of weeds in the fall will make that spring weeding job much lass arduous. In the long run, time spent fighting weeds at this time of year will do more good than it will in the spring. And almost equally important, fall weed control makes the whole place neat and attractive and supplies a "Good Farmer" label that no passerby can miss.

Can Control Gullies By Eliminating Cause

Keeping water out of gullies is a sure way of controlling them, and this can be done by terracing, explains R. C. Hay, extension agricultural engineer of the University of Illinois college of agriculture. The approaching slack seasoo after barvest is a good time of the year to do terracing work.

Gullies on cultivated slopes can be starved aod eventually eliminated by terracing. The terraces not only slow up aod divert runoff water from gullies but also materially reduce sheet erosion losses. Farmers' experieoces and experiments conducted under the supervision of farm advisers and the college of agriculture show that terraced fields lose only about one-seventh as much soil by erosion as comparable unterraced fields.

R. C. Hay explains that water diverted from fields must be handled with care or the formation of gullies at the outlets may result.

Proper Planning Helps Avoid Pasture Shortage

Livestock men who are finding themselves short on pasture in late summer and fall might well lay plans now for better protection against shortages next year.

W. H. Peters, chief of the animal husbandry division, University farm, St. Paul, urges rotation grazing of permanent pasture.

For alternate grazing Peters advises fencing off a pasture into two fields and running the stock into one for two weeks and into the other for a like period. This will result in giving less strain on pastore plaots.

Small Turkeys

In experiments to develop small-type white turkeys, the U. S. department of agriculture is not trying to displace the larger varieties; it is trying to develop small birds to fit the needs of small families. Investigators conclude that there is room for the small type aod medium-sized turkey, and that some growers will find it very much to their advantage to specialize in small turkeys for small ovens and small families.

Food Dearth in France Serious

Search for Substitutes Is Urged; Lack of Edible And Other Oils.

VICHY, FRANCE. — The search for substitutes continues to develop in France on account of the dearth of standard commodities. While legitimate in some cases there are people who plead for more reflection.

"It is all very well," they urge, "to grind a miscellaneous assortment of husks and call the result coffee. But surely it is going too far to propose building a plant for the process. The war must end some day and coffee will return. What will you do with your plant then?"

It may happen also that the discovery of a substitute brings no alleviation but merely causes scarcity of the raw materials entering into the composition of that substitute. The stock reply to such arguments is to recall that it was during the Napoleonic wars that beet sugar was devised to replace cane sugar and that now beet sugar holds the field.

Weak Points Appear.

This is irrefutable but it brings the retort that immediately after the armistice there was much talk of sugar from daffodils and chocolate from beechnuts and that nothing has come of it.

The weak point about some proposed substitutes is inconsistency on the part of those who propose them. Thus, one man wants to heat homes by burning wastepaper soaked in water for two days and then dried out. He forgets that there is a law whereby all wastepaper must be salvaged so that it may be used for making new pulp.

Then there is the question of oil, both edible and lubricating. Farmers are urged to sow colza and rapeseed, while the production of olive and walnut oil is encouraged.

All these sources of supply have been more or less neglected ever since the development of the peanut oil industry in the French African colonies. In some of them the peanut is the staple crop and the main source of wealth. The dearth of oil is due solely to difficulties of importation.

Real Progress Here.

But the greatest progress — and probably the most lasting—has been made in the realm of plastics, in which pre-war France had been greatly outdistanced by the United States and Germany. The latest product is known as "rhodoid." Its composition is not revealed but it is to be used for making fountain pens, bicycle handlebars, automobile windshields and cinema film, among other things.

It was announced that the government is experimenting with substitutes for tobacco. Private citizens have forestalled it. Ever since the cigarette ration was brought down to four a day men have been trying the leaves of various trees, including eucalyptus, corn silk and several medicinal herbs. The field is unlimited.

More activity on the part of the "ecooomic police" is foreshadowed in an official announcement regarding the shipping of "family packages" of foodstuffs. The "ecooomic police" consists of agents of the ministry of supplies, who may enter all eating houses and investigate every shipment of goods. Theo the minister, without any other process of law, may order the closing of any restauraot or the confiscation of any shipment.

Nevertheless, it is conceded that in France individual inconvenieoces must give way to the common good.

When Conservation Officer William Le Mieux on routine patrol approached an ice fisherman on Brills lake, Jackson county, the excited angler gave him the line to hold while he ran to fetch an ice spud. Until the officer arrived to help, the fisherman had been playing a seven-pouad pike through a hole in the ice that was so small he could not pull the fish through it.

Danto's grocery store was robbed of about $40.00 Tuesday night by a mysterious and daring intruder, who gained entrance to the building in some unknown way and left no clue either as to his identity or the means by which he entered.

The Beaver Transportation company, represented by Harry L. Oldham; Captain George W. Weaver, and others, has purchased the steamer Hum, and dock, warehouse and coal bins formerly owned by the East Jordan-Charlevoix line. Extensive alterations have been made in the steamer Columbia, and with the two ships, the company will establish a line between East Jordan, Boyne City, Charlevoix and the Beavers. To open up the hitherto comparatively isolated Beaver Island to our summer visitors will add to Charlevoix's own attractions and cannot but have a beneficial reaction upon the volume of our business.

The Charlevoix Historical Society's annual Lincoln banquet was served by the Congregational ladies Friday evening. Program included address of welcome by the president, Dr. A. M. Wilkinson, violin duet by Robert Bridge and King Saunders, vocal duet by Mrs. Mayme Chaloupka and Dr. F. H. Wilkinson, and address by Hon. George L. Lusk, deputy secretary of state, who also sang a stirring solo.

Charlevoix is already making plans for next winter's sports carnival, which they expect to make the best ever staged in Michigan. As a first step in this direction, Don McHugh, chairman of the winter sports committee, and Earl A. Young, official photographer of the Association of Commerce, left Sunday for Lake Placid, New York, for a special program of sports in that famous winter resort, to gain information on how such events are handled.

Charlevoix won a hard-fought battle on the basketball floor Friday night, defeating East Jordan 13 to 6.

Miss Bertha Larson and Dr. F. F. McMillan returned last week from Rochester, Minn., where they had been taking an advanced course in surgery at Mayo Brothers hospital.

"It Pays to Advertise," senior class play, will be presented at the Palace Theatre next Tuesday evening. Players are Frances Milner, Milo Chew, Virginia Parker, Willard Smith, Vincent Madison, Hubert McCann, Julia Britton, George Higman, Keith Wagner, Iola Chew, Ibsen Nordrum, Charles Sterritt.

Judson Harmon, 81, former governor of Ohio and at one time presidential candidate, died Tuesday in Cincinnati, Ohio. Mr. Harmon, whose home was in Cleveland, had spent the past 18 summers in Charlevoix, in his summer residence on the Chicago Club grounds.

Miss Wilma Stevenson, of Decatur, Ill., formerly of this city, and Theodore R. Miller of Dearborn, Mich., were married Monday, February 14, at Decatur.

DISTRICT HEALTH DEPT.

Vitamins and Digestive Disease

With the shift of population from the country to the cities and the rapid multiplication of labor-saving devices, resulting in a general decrease in manual labor and induced exercise the appetite of the average American has undergone marked change which is reflected in his diet.

Increased consumption of fruits and vegetables is commendable and insures an adequate intake of vitamins A and C. But the accompanying decline in the use of meat, principal source of protein and of vitamin B, is leading to functional disorders of various kinds, manifested chiefly by constipation, anemia and a general lowering of efficiency. Indeed, some investigators are convinced that insufficient vitamin B in the diet is responsible for degenerative changes in the cells of the gastro-intestinal tract, making the absorption of food difficult. Peptic ulcer and colitis may be the end effect of such a condition. At least, sufferers from these diseases have been known to improve and their primary lesions have disappeared when the vitamin intake was increased.

In such diseases as tuberculosis, diabetis, thyroid dysfunction, heart trouble, certain types of fever and long-standing infections, improvement of the diet is the first step toward treatment.

The American housewife should not be blamed too severely for what might be called the degeneration of the national dietary. Generally, she is interested in giving her family the foods it likes, served as appetizingly as possible. Yet it must be remembered that individual likes or dislikes cannot be depended upon to suggest the foods needed by the body if good health is to be maintained.

The following rules might well guide the homemaker in the choice and preparation of the family's meals:

Serve natural (unrefined and uncooked) foods where possible.

Plan to include more meat and less starch, peanut butter, fruits and whole wheat bread to insure adequate vitamin intake.

Use little or no soda in preparing the food for the table.

In cooking vegetables use the least possible amount of water and serve instead of discarding this liquor which often contains essential vitamins.

Preparing meals for the young child is admittedly difficult, demanding some resourcefulness because of dietary limitations. Too often the youngster is offered, as a typical luncheon, white bread, baked rice and tomatoes, butter, jam, a gelatin dessert or apple pie and tea. There is little in such a meal to promote growth and maintain good health. Instead, a dietitian suggests: Ground meat, rice and tomatoes, parsley—one of the prime sources of vitamin A—rye or whole wheat bread, a salad of leaf lettuce, baked custard and milk.

Nutrition, in recent years, has become an exact science but acquaintance with its fundamentals is easily acquired from simply written articles and texts. The conscientious wife and mother will not fail to employ such guides.

AT THE MOVIES

U. S. Tank Army Has Arresting Role in "The Bugle Sounds"

The U. S. Army plays a spectacular starring role with Wallace Beery at the Palace Theatre in "The Bugle Sounds," coming Saturday and Sunday, February 28, March 1.

The result is a picture of realistic action, with the regular army enacting its stirring role in the contemporary plan of defense, thousands of tanks, simulating wartime conditions, plunge across the screen. Dive bombers drop their "eggs" and soldiers run, ride and crawl for cover. The shots were filmed under supervision of army officers assigned for the purpose.

Marjorie Main, who appeared opposite Beery in "Barnacle Bill" and "Wyoming," adds humor as the proprietress of a soldier beanery situated just beyond the reservation. Donna Reed has the feminine romantic lead as the bride of a selective service recruit, played by William Lundigan.

Supporting roles are convincingly portrayed by George Bancroft, Henry O'Neill, Chill Wills, Tom Dugan and Guinn Williams.

Cesar Romero Back in New Cisco Kid Film

Palpitating hearts and pounding hoofs mean one thing—the "Cisco Kid," gun in hand and Senorita in his arms, is back again in "Ride On Vaquero." The handsome Cesar Romero once more is seen in the role of that romantic rider of the sage, the carefree caballero who rights wrong with the business end of a .45 and who wins the ladies by just being the "Cisco Kid."

This sixth film based on that lovable O. Henry character is brought to the screen of the Palace Theatre by 20th Century-Fox on March 4-5. Genial roly-poly Chris-Pin Martin again portrays the part of the Kid's bloodthirsty but faithful partner.

LANSING LETTER

President Roosevelt said in a press conference last week that this sort of rumor was "rot." And he spelled it out—"r-o-t."

"Under certain conditions," the president added, the enemy could drop bombs on Detroit—a statement that is said to have startled reporters at his press conference.

German submarines have sunk numerous American oil tankers off the Atlantic coast. Dutch oil refineries were damaged by shells fired from an enemy submarine cruising only a few hundred miles from the Panama canal.

Loss of Singapore and the prospect that the Japanese will make a clean sweep of Sumatra, Java and other Pacific strongholds have sent a wave of alarm over Allied Nations.

Senator David I. Walsh, Massachusetts Democrat, chairman of the Naval Affairs committee, declared on the senate floor the coasts of the United States were "almost defenseless" and it might be necessary to "bring back our navy from the four corners of the earth simply to protect our shores."

Other straws in the wind as to 1942 Republican strategy:

Rep. Dewey Short, Missouri congressman: "Lack of leadership in Washington has contributed to a feeling of complacency. Until that smugness has disappeared, we are in danger of losing this war."

Rep. William W. Blackney of Flint: "This is no time for petty politics. America is on fire. It is our duty to put out the fire."

Senator Arthur Vandenburg: "The liner Normandie was not sunk by an enemy at sea. It was sunk by an enemy at home—which is definitely more ominous—and that 'enemy' was either sabotage or negligence."

Foremost in the Republican limelight is Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly. Kelly was not caught in the draft in the World war, but he may be in this one. The "Draft Kelly for Governor" campaign, launched months ago, is gathering momentum.

Kelly is from Detroit where much of the Van Wagoner political strength has centered. He was wounded while fighting in France. As secretary of state he has talked comparatively little; like Coolidge he has built a reputation of being a man of strength as well as a man of action.

Kelly's pronouncements, made in a recent series of public addresses, include these remarks:

"We stand behind the administration 100 per cent in the prosecution of the war, but we also support the party whose principles we hold sacred."

"This is a time of trial and sacrifice for America, and as in every such crisis, we turn to Lincoln, the man of the common people, for help and guidance."

"Americans have always been opposed to dictatorship and oppression of any kind by government. We stand for liberty, knowing that when man has been free, the world has gone ahead, and when man has been enslaved, the world has gone backward."

"In the next election we shall continue to maintain the two-party system and the Republicans are going to fight to win."

Mentioned for lieutenant governor, as a running mate for Kelly (if Kelly chooses to run and wins the nomination), are Howard Nugent of Bad Axe, speaker of the house; Elton R. Eaton of Plymouth, successful editor-crusader against "boss control" and a former state legislator; Don VanderWerp of Fremont who is credited by many with starting the Kelly band-wagon months ago and who is serving his third term in the state senate over which the lieutenant governor presides; and Dr. Eugene B. Keyes of Dearborn, the dentist-physician darkhorse who outran a field of prominent veterans two years ago.

Because Keyes surprised politicians two years ago by soaring out of the blue, like a blazing comet, hot-stove leaguers have already coined a 1942 slogan: "Kelly and Keyes." But the public is notorious for its short memory; 1942 is a brand new year.

Murl DeFoe, former state liquor commissioner, recently attended the state convention of supervisors in Lansing. Returning to Charlotte, he wrote of political gossip at the state capitol, offering these pungent observations in the Charlotte Republican-Tribune:

"Governor Van Wagoner's friends are trying to switch Secretary Harry Kelly (R) to become a candidate for senator with their back curtain support, and if successful in this they don't care who is named against Van Wagoner; many folks think this was the technique that gave Michigan to Willkie.

"That Frank McKay, now in Florida, really wants to see Van Wagoner defeated; that the Republican party will be just a memory if it loses; that Elton Eaton (Plymouth) is almost certain to be in the primary for a top post, probably governor on an all-out anti-boss platform, which if true would certainly disturb the politicians who have been trying to avoid any major primary battle, and particularly the knockdown-drag-out campaign that Eaton would put on; that Vern Brown disappointed many friends when he eliminated himself from the governorship contest."

All this speculation leads to a few conclusions:

1. The American people are united in a grim determination to win the war whatever the cost. But they do demand efficiency. If this requires scrapping a few public officials, the latter will be retired overnight. Mad voters are apt to favor a change.

2. If this trend of public opinion continues, Governor Van Wagoner may take another lesson from F.D.R.'s notebook and sacrifice a few favorites to appease the multitude. Departments may be "reorganized"; new "reforms" proclaimed with great flourish; more Republicans given positions in the war program.

3. The two-party system of government, providing a ballot box accounting of what is being done and is not being done, should contribute to greater war efficiency regardless of the November election outcome.

Frank W. Smith Succumbed Saturday, Age 82; Funeral Monday

Frank William Smith, 82, died early last Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. P. R. Ross, following two years' illness.

Mr. Smith was born January 29, 1860, at Harbor Springs, which at that time was known as Little Traverse. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, he was the first white child born in that locality. At the age of four, he came to Charlevoix with his parents, and resided here about 56 years.

On July 4, 1883, he married Mary A. Calrk, who preceded him in death June 1, 1936. They lived on a farm in Marion township for many years.

In December, 1920, they moved to Bellaire and opened a restaurant and bakery, which Mr. Smith operated for 18 years. He came to Charlevoix in May, 1940, to make his home with the Ross's because of his illness.

Mr. Smith was a member of the Masonic lodge in Bellaire.

Surviving are six children, Jess and Edgar Smith and Mrs. P. R. Ross, of Charlevoix, Arlie Smith and Mrs. C. F. Clark, of Detroit, and Bertha Smith, of Bellaire; also a sister, Mrs. Mary McFarland, this city; twelve grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Stephen H. Smith, pioneer resident who died last August, was his brother.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the See Funeral Home, Rev. Donald R. Evans officiating. Pallbearers were H. H. Bechtold, Jack Faster, Claude Kauffman, Victor Bechtold, Earl Richards, and George Richards, all of Bellaire. Interment was at Brookside cemetery.

FATHER-SON BANQUET WAS WELL ATTENDED

Annual Event Was Thursday at Methodist Church

About two hundred men and boys were present at the annual Father and Son banquet given Thursday evening by the Men's club of the Methadist church. The church dining room was decorated in patriotic red, white and blue for the occasion.

Singing of "America" by the assembly was followed by the invocation given by Rev. W. L. Cruthers. Dinner was then served, after which Dr. F. F. McMillan, president of the Men's club, introduced toastmaster E. J. Edwards. John Swanson gave a toast to fathers, and Fred Bancroft responded with a toast to sons. "Education of the Boy" was the theme of an inspirational talk given by Rev. Leigh H. Hagle. Community singing was led by Max Smith, concluding with "Star-Spangled Banner." Rev. H. J. Pulsipher gave the benediction. Pianists were Miss Ernestine Chew and Miss Annabelle Cunninghann.

PUBLIC HEALTH NEWS

Do you really know how to handle a mad dog?

Dr. H. Allen Moyer, state health commissioner, raises that question as he receives mid-winter reparts af rabies.

"Don't shoot the dug that you think is mad, but put him on a chain or shut him up," said Dr. Moyer. "Pasteur treatments should start at once for bites about the face and head, but otherwise there isno need for hurry. The incubation period is usually about 40 days. If the dog is mad, he will die within ten days and the vaccine trentments can be started then, unless the bites have been about the head."

Many persons every year are obliged to take the vaccine injections daily for 14 days, Dr. Moyer says, simply because someone shot a biting dog, instead of capturing it and tieing it up. If necessary to kill a dog believed to be mad, it SHOULD NOT BE SHOT THRU THE HEAD because it is the brain which is examined at the laboratory to determine rabies.

"A perfect example of what not to da occurred recently," Dr. Moyer said. "Two men returning to their truck found a dog inside the cab, growling and frothing at the mouth. They called an officer, who shut the dog through the head. Neither man was bitten, but because they washed the blood and saliva from the cab they were ordered by their physician to take the 14 vaccine treatments. That was a proper precaution, but made necessary only because someone did the wrong thing."

In one of the northern resort areas, rabies has been spread by a dog brought in by a summer visitor. As a result, people have been bitten and Pasteur treatments are being given now. Winter does not necessarily mean less rabies. Just before the 47-county quarantine of 1940, the state's all time high in number of dog heads found positive for rabies was reached in January, February and March.

Sixteen positive heads were reported last December by the three laboratories examining for rabies. Vaccine distributed to physicians by the State Health Department laboratories jumped from 275 packages of seven doses in December to 421 packages in January.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

The New Huron Oat is Best for Michigan Conditions

Michigan's new Huron oat in lower peninsula commercial production for four years withstands the competition presented by new varieties well adapted to other states where they originated. These conclusions were formed by the farm crops department, Michigan State college, after yield tests were made in plots where the Huron variety was compared with other varieties which were rated early, smut, and rust resistent.

This new Huron oat was developed by E. E. Down in 1937. In comparison with the other varieties, this heavy kernel, smut resistent Huron variety yields better on the average and affers a higher test weight than the out of state varieties. No other variety has as high weight per bushel during the last four years as the Huron oat which averaged 37.5 pounds per bushel. At the same time the height of the straw has averaged approximately 43 inches, which is higher than any of the other varieties in the test plots. The oats have headed out on about June 20th in this same length of time which is one or two days later than the other varieties. If any farmers want to buy a few bushels for use this spring a list of growers of certified seed is available at the county agent's office. Your local dealer can also serve your needs if you want the commercial grade of oats. This new Huron oat from every indication is somewhat better than our Wolverine variety which has been our standard in this county.

Emergency 4-H Club Meetings Announced for March 4th

Due to the national emergency, a special meeting of all of the winter and summer 4-H club leaders as well as other interested club friends has been announced for Wednesday, March 4th in the gymnasium basement, Boyne City high school at 7:30 promptly.

Ralph May and Miss Lois Corbett, assistant state club leaders, will be present to lead the discussion and give suggestions as to how our 4-H club and 4-H club members can help out in this national emergency.

Another important purpose of this meeting is to discuss ways and means of enriching the existing 4-H club program by providing and encouraging desirable activities from the business meeting and social standpoint. Numerous specific activities will be explained in detail and the leaders in attendance will be provided with copies of some of these activities.

A discussion of summer club projects will be conducted. The market outlook and timely project information will be given with special emphasis on the canning, garden, food preparation, certain livestock and crops projects that are of primary importance in our "food for freedom" program.

If the program is to be truly successful in its expansion and progress it is necessary that every club and community be represented. Special invitations have been sent out to the 4-H club leaders and representatives of various organizations interested in the successful operation of this program with the rural youth. The 4-H Club Council will meet at 4:30 to go over some of the details af organizing and then will join with the large group for further discussion.

Farm Machinery Repair Meeting Attracts Farmers Interested

The second machinery repair school to be held in Charlevoix county is scheduled for Wednesday, March 4th, beginning at 10 a. m. in the NYA defense machine shop located in Boyne City. This meeting has special significance because through the efforts of the USDA war board arrangements have been made whereby this NYA defense shop is cooperating in a program to repair farm machinery under the supervision of its training personnel. Under this arrangement any farmer in the county may make arrangements through the county AAA office to bring in any item of farm machinery that needs repairs and the work will be without cost. The only expense is the necessary repair parts and materials for repairs which are to be furnished by the farmer.

Certainly it is to the farmers' advantage to have all the machinery operating at full efficiency. The successful outcome of the present war depends fully as much on the ability of the American farmer to increase his food production as it does in the actual combat zones. Mr. Bell will discuss how to make adjustments on the mowing machine, how to make adjustments with the grain binder and many other types of farm machinery that are used most extensively.

All farmers are urged to attend this machinery repair school.

RED CROSS CONTACTS SOLDIERS, CIVILIANS

May Send Personal Messages to Warring Nations

The Red Cross through its International organization is able to exchange purely personal messages between citizens of nations at war with each other. This is done with the approval of the governments concerned. Inquiries may be made regarding civilians, our own military and naval personnel and missing or captured members of the armed forces of other belligerent countries.

In order to put through these inquiries you must contact your Red Cross chapter as these must be sent in triplicate through Red Cross channels. As soon as information is available the chapter will be notified, but due to the many understandable difficulties inquirers must not expect early reports.

Any further information regarding this service may be had by writing or calling Mrs. C. F. Kriegboff, home service chairman, Boyne City.

MICHIGAN BELL WILL LOWER SERVICE RATE

Change Schedule April 1 Will Include Charlevoix Exchange

The Michigan Bell Telephone company announced today that uniform schedules of local service rates will go into effect, with billing dates beginning April 1, at exchanges of comparable size and with less than 10,000 main telephone stations.

C. Lester Johnson, manager for the company, said that local service charges of about 28,000 customers in 88 exchanges, including Charlevoix, will be reduced a total of $120,000 to $130,000 a year as a result of the rate adjustment. The uniform schedule is contained in a recent order of the Michigan Public Service Commission growing out of negotiations with the company.

In effect, the order classifies exchanges of less than 10,000 main tations into seven groups and establishes uniform maximum rates for various types of services in each group. The seven groups are: Exchanges with 100 or less main stations; 101 to 400; 401 to 800; 801 to 1,600; 1,601 to 3,000; 3,001 to 6,000, and 6,001 to 10,000.

LETTERS FROM THE ARMY CAMPS

Fort Custer, Michigan
Thursday, Feb. 19, 1942

Editor, Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Mich.

Dear Sir:

I would like to take this opportunity to say how much I appreciate receiving the weekly issue of the Charlevoix Courier. There's an old saying that a soldier doesn't miss his home-cooking until he goes to the army. Well, I have heard more than one soldier say that he didn't appreciate his home town paper to the utmost until he was called to the army. I look forward to receiving your paper almost as much as I look forward to getting a furlough. As a resident of the Charlevoix community for several years, I am always interested to read about the activities of persons and groups in the community.

Well, I'm beginning to feel like a "veteran" now that I've completed four months of military training. I say that because during the first 12 weeks in the army one goes through what is called a basic training. During this period, I was taught everything from how to salute a general to the proper method for getting rid of cigarette ashes in the barrack. As a member of a field medical battalion, I was sent to classes at which I received instructions on such subjects as first aid, hygiene, ambulance-driving and other subjects related to the duties of the army medical department.

I am a member of Company C, 5th Medical Battalion, a unit of the division stationed at Fort Custer, Michigan. Although we are an unarmed unit in compliance with international law, we have received instructions on subjects designed to train us for efficient work in time of combat operations should that occasion arise.

Realizing that it takes more than class room attendance to train a soldier, our officers have been conducting so-called field problems for the units here at Fort Custer. In what was far from being a "theoretical" matter, our company went out on what is called a field problem the other day. We rode in ambulances or trucks. Arriving at our destination—a wooded area several miles from Fort Custer — we pitched tents, set up our first aid stations, camouflaged our military equipment, practised gas attacks and performed other such things which we most likely will experience in the event of actual hostilities.

For very good reasons—reasons that the public should realize—we are cautioned from divulging so-called military information that would be of value to the enemy. However, I don't think it would be in violation of regulations to report that the morale of the average soldier soared after Pearl Harbor. During the days prior to Pearl Harbor, there were reports in the magazine and in the papers that many of the selectees were very dissatisfied — so dissatisfied that low morale was prevalent in many camps. That was true — but just like the change in attitude that came over many civilians in all walks of life after the cowardly attack on Pearl Harbor the dissatisfaction among the average soldier almost vanished when the Japs started killing our American boys. The realization that our nation of freedom and democracy had been ruthlessly attacked by the forces of tyranny and dictatorship imbued the average soldier with an enthusiasm and determination which will bring ultimate victory to Old Glory.

The average American soldier is not only determined to win the battle over fascism but also to win victory after peace, as President Roosevelt has mentioned. More and more soldiers—typical Americans drawn from all walks of life—believe that the young people should have greater voice in the affairs of this nation. And when peace comes I believe that the youth of this nation will take action to increase its influence in the political and economical affairs of the U. S.

As for social activities at Fort Custer, we have a service club which sponsors dances and other forms of entertainment. Girls from Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and other nearby towns volunteer as partners for the soldiers. The girls come by bus and leave TOGETHER by bus! But hospitable as they are the girls here aren't as, well as attractive, as the Charlevoix girls. And that's no soldiers' line.

My younger brother, Willard, who came in the army at the same time I joined, is in the same company with me and he joins with me in saying hello to all the folks in the community.

And in closing may I remind the people in Charlevoix (especially the girls) that letters are always very, very welcoming to soldiers.

Remember Pearl Harbor,
Cecil Drost,
Company C,
5th Medical Battalion,
Fort Custer, Michigan.

Coco Solo, Canal Zone
February 16, 1942

Dear Ken:

It certainly was a pleasant surprise to receive a copy of the Courier. It is almost like a letter home to take an hour off and read of the happenings in Charlevoix. My mail orderly is always sure I'll be in a good humor when he hands me the Courier every week. In fact I think he has passed the word along to the rest of the crew, because just an hour or so after the paper arrives they begin to show up for extra favors. To put it in their words, "the Old Man is a sucker when he gets that home town paper."

Somehow or other I look upon Charlevoix as home. After ten years of knocking around the world in the merchant marine, the quiet, friendly, beautiful little city of Charlevoix was a haven indeed. The five years I lived there served to increase the high esteem I already felt towards Charlevoix.

Down here we are all working like beavers to build up the already strong defenses of the Canal Zone. Sometimes I wish we could trade off a little of this warm weather for a little of that cold weather you folks have up there.

It gives us a great deal of satisfaction to know by reading our home town papers that the people at home are in this war too, and are doing everything within their power to do their bit.

Fishing here is better than a Chamber of Commerce advertisement, the waters abound with tarpon, marlin, shark, mackerel, and scores of less gamey fish. We are taking tarpon with fair good luck right now and every minute we get away from our duty we spend fishing those scrappers. In the adjacent jungles one may hunt wild boar, crocodile, and a very small deer.

Thanks a lot for sending the Courier, it is really a big letter from home. Say hello to the folks in Charlevoix for me.

Sincerely,
W. L. Freeburn.

Dear Ken:

I got the Courier from you this week and I want to thank you for sending it. It sure is great to read about home and the things that are going on up there.

Have been going to write to you long ago, but just didn't take time to do it.

We don't have an awful lot of spare time down here, as we started school two weeks ago and that takes up a lot of time.

Just completed oud course in ordnance by going out to the machine gun range and firing a hundred rounds of ammunition. Boy, what a noise those babies kick up. It was very interesting as we had to know how to take the gun apart and name all the pieces, then put it back together again.

You would be surprised, but you can't open your mouth and say Michigan but there will be somebody ask, whereabouts in Michigan? There are a lot of guys who live within fifty miles from Charlevoix. So we are always together swapping yarns about the north country.

Florida sure is a beautiful state, I have been as far as St. Augustine already with some people that I had dinner with. We took in the orange groves. When you stand under them it looks like the trees have a roof on, the fruit is so thick.

I saw porpoise for the first time in my life last Sunday. It's just like you see in the movies, they jump clear out of the water and they come one right after the other.

Well, I hope this letter doesn't bore you to death. I'll have to close for now as it is time to go to the study hall.

Yours truly
James Gilbert Powers.

Athletic contests are something like the story of the minister who, instead of having the offering plate passed during services, always had a box placed in the entrance of the church. The congregation could then drop their offering into the box either on entering or leaving the church. One Sunday, after everybody had left the church, the minister dropped a 25c piece into the offering box and then opened the box. All the minister got out was the quarter he himself put in. A small son of the minister standing near him said. "You see, Dad, if you would have put more in, you would have got more out of it."

Gov.-M. D. Van Wagoner inspects the uniforms and insignia which volunteers who have completed civilian defense training courses may wear. Officials of the office staff of the Michigan Council of Defense model the uniforms for the governor, and show him, left to right, the uniforms for Drivers Corps, Staff Worker, Medical Corps, Canteen Worker, Messenger, and Nurses' Aide. The uniforms are attractively styled in shades of blue and white.

"What has happened?" she asked. His eyes flickered with something curiously like dismay; and he looked at his companion, then at Mary again, without replying. She insisted: "Is the ship still there?"

She realized that he was confused by some strange sense of guilt; and her pulse pounded in her wrist. She looked back at George. He was asleep, so for the moment he no longer needed her. She said firmly to the young men:

"Take me to Jarambo. Or bring Jarambo to me."

After a moment, one of them turned and darted off through the forest. The other spoke, bidding her come. Presently ahead of her she heard a call go down the mountain, summoning Jarambo.

Soon Jarambo spoke at her elbow and she turned.

The old man met her eyes and waited. She had never been afraid of him, but she was afraid of Jarambo now. There was that in his eyes she had never seen there, a blaze like a leaping fire, a drunk fury, a reckless intoxication. But this was not the drunkenness of rum. Nevertheless he was drunk with something. She looked at him intently; and suddenly her head rose. She said:

"Jarambo, tell me."

He said, under his breath: "Long time we were men."

She waited.

He spoke explicitly, from the beginning. When the schooner anchored, George's insistence kept the canoes ashore; but presently a boat put off from the vessel with three white men in it. Those white men did not know the landing place, and they went toward the beach, but they saw that the surf there was impracticable, so they came along the shore and they shouted, and some of the children went out of the jungle to the landing place, and then some of the girls. When the white men saw the girls they tried to land, and their boat was broken against the ledge; but they climbed ashore. They were angry because of the loss of the boat, and when George came down the path and spoke to them, one of the men struck him down and then shot him, and he lay like a dead man. But one of the children, a little boy who loved George, bit the hand of the man who had shot. That man caught the boy, and he broke the child's arm across his knee.

The white men could not even catch the girls; so they came to Mary's father's house and profaned it, shouting and breaking things. The child with the broken arm was screaming, and the people were angry.

CHAPTER VII

Jarambo sent young men to carry George away and that was done; so when the white men returned to the landing, he had been borne to safety.

When they were gone, Jarambo and the other old men decided what to do to these white men who had hurt the child. So by and by many of the strongest girls swam off to the schooner, with flowers in their hair, laughing.

"And it was night," Jarambo told Mary, squatting at her feet. "In the dark, many canoes went quietly on the water, and many young men. The white men on the ship were busy with our girls; and then we came aboard in the dark, the girls held them lovingly while our war clubs cracked their skulls."

"That was a bad thing, Jarambo," Mary said.

He answered, "It is done." He said slowly, intoning an ancient tale: "The white men came in old times and killed my woman, and my mother, and my father, and my two sons. Also they took my daughter. Before that, I was a man. Now I am a man again."

When she could speak, her senses clearing, she asked: "Jarambo, did the white man with the talking bird help you kill those men?"

He answered, with a shrewd glint in his eyes: "No one knows what a white man will do about killing white men. That white man with the bird which talks was given sleep to drink, and he sleeps now. He did not see the ship come. He will not see it go. Soon it was never here."

His eyes as he spoke looked down at the schooner in the roads; and Mary saw that some sort of sail was set on her, and that she now moved slowly toward the sea.

When the schooner was now outside the bay, a little skein of blue smoke had begun to rise from her hatch. It became a black and growing cloud.

She whispered: "They're burning her!"

Jarambo brushed his hand, flat, the palm down, across a rock. He said again as he had said before: "That ship was never here!"

The pillar of smoke rose slowly above the schooner. Mary watched it rise higher and higher between her and the blue saucer of the sea, her eyes following the tip of that black cloud till like a pointing finger it reached the saucer's rim, the horizon there, where the smoke-finger pointed, the square topgallant sails of a full-rigged ship, the rest of her still below the horizon.

The canvas of those sails was dark, blackened by the soot of many fires. She was a whaler! The Venturer, so long expected, was coming at last to Gilead.

Somewhere along the mountain far away a voice sounded in a long cry, and nearer another, and then others. The sound spread like ripples in a pond, flowing down the mountainside, reaching them and going on. Jarambo at her feet looked up and spoke.

"Your man wakes," he said, and watched her warily. "He calls you."

She turned to go to George, but she paused again and said, after a moment, in careful explanation: "Jarambo, the ship that comes there is my father's." She could not remember the native word for "uncle" if there was one. "My man and I will go away in her." She looked down at him and saw his eyes waver. "Better we go," she said gently. "My man will die here."

He muttered: "Ship sees smoke."

She understood that he was sullen with fear that the ship now approaching would punish the Islanders for the killing done last night, and she told him, reassuringly, pointing to the burning schooner, using his own words: "That ship was never here."

Mary told Jarambo: "My man must be carried to the house. We go to him now."

When they came to the lodge deep in the forest where they had hidden George, she found that he had waked fretful and hot with fever.

She spoke quickly to old Ptaul. "We shall take him home."

Mary went ahead, to make his bed ready. In the house she saw that rough hands had been here rummaging; saw her own garments pulled out and strewn around; saw all her possessions in disorder.

She had come swiftly down the trail, and she had time to remove the more obvious traces of their invasion before George, muttering in a half delirium, was brought home. On his own bed, he sighed and seemed to sink and grow small and weak and helpless; and he slept. Mary covered him, and Jarambo came to her side. She thought the old man clung to her as though for protection from the punishment of his sins; but no one else came near.

Mary knew that a man afraid is dangerous. The people on the Island were strung tight with terror at seeing the Venturer approach so soon after the massacre. They had drugged Corkran to keep him ignorant of what was to happen; but now here came many white men. Mary thought any small incitement might touch them into bloody madness again; bring the war clubs out of hiding, set them swinging. It would be important, when the Venturer came in, to warn Richard and the others against asking questions.

All the others had disappeared; but Jarambo stayed with Mary, squatting on the platform, waiting her commands. She bade him watch and tell her when the Venturer anchored.

In the late afternoon Jarambo reported that a boat from the Venturer was rowing toward the mouth of the bay. It would be night, Jarambo said, before the whaleboat came into the roads; and she told him to build a fire on the shore for a beacon at the landing place, and to help them at the landing.

When sudden dark descended, Mary brought one of the whale oil lamps and lighted the wick and set it here by George's bed. Jarambo went to tend the beacon fire, and she was alone.

She heard shod feet come up the path toward the house; and she rose and went from her husband's side through the big central room to the door. In darkness there she met a man, and thought him her uncle, and cried: "Uncle Tom!" and went into his arms, clinging to him. But she knew as she kissed him and felt his lips that this was not her uncle, and she pressed back, peering up at him.

"It's all right, Mary. Don't you know me? I'm Peter Corr." Before she could free herself, he kissed her again, his beard rough against her cheek and chin.

"Peter?" she cried. "Oh, I'm glad you've come!" Then she saw someone behind him, tall and slender, and she asked, trying to see in the half light: "Who is it?" Then, seeing more clearly: "Why, it's Tommy!" Her voice broke, her eyes filled with happy weeping. "Why, Tommy, how you've grown!" She caught him, and he clung to her, young arms tight around her neck, hugging her hard. He did not speak, and she smiled to herself, thinking: He's so glad to see me that he's crying, doesn't dare try to talk for fear we'll know. She asked: "How's Uncle Tom, Tommy?"

But Tommy, without answering, only held her harder, and Peter asked urgently: "Mary, where's your father?"

"Father's dead, Peter. He and Mother died before we got here." Then, in the doorway: "This is my husband, George McAusland."

Peter stood by George's bed. "Husband?" he muttered.

"He's sick," she said.

"He sure looks like it!"

"And—he's been hurt," she admitted, looking back to see if Jarambo had come in with Peter and Tommy, wondering how much just now to tell Peter. She asked again: "Where's Uncle Tom?"

Peter said slowly: "Your uncle's dead, too, Mary." She noticed that he did not look at Tommy, seemed careful not to.

She was curiously not moved by this intelligence, as though she were immune just now to grief. She only said: "Dead?"

Peter wiped his brow with his hand, looking down at George. He said: "Yes. And my father's sick aboard the Venturer, Mary. I think he's going to die. Dick said your father knew something about doctoring. He asked, in a curiously boyish perplexity: "What are we going to do?"

She said: "We haven't any medicines here. We've had a lot of people sick and dying on the island."

"I'll go send the boat back, send them word your father's dead," Peter said.

She nodded, and his footsteps departed toward the landing. She turned to the boy. Him at least she could help, just by loving him. "My, I'm glad to see you, Tommy! I'm so sorry about Uncle Tom." She kissed him again.

Tommy spoke carefully, knuckling his eyes. "I haven't cried before, Mary, till I saw you."

"I know, dear. But it helps, doesn't it? You'll feel better now." She asked, groping to find a need in him which she could fill: "Do you want to talk about it?"

"I saw it happen," he said. "I was in the crosstrees with a glass." His tone puzzled her, stiff and restrained. "Peter's boat was right there . . ." They heard Peter returning, and the boy stopped, bit off the word, watching the door where after a moment Peter appeared. Mary wondered why. She asked Peter:

"Will you and Tommy stay with George while I change my clothes?"

"Sure. You look pretty tired. Go to bed, why don't you? I'll keep an eye on him."

"Oh, I'm not sleepy!" She left them in George's room, crossed to her own room in the other end of the house, came back with a lamp to light it from the burning wick here. Tommy had disappeared. She asked: "Where's Tommy?"

"Outside somewhere," Peter said briefly.

They sat together in the big room, near enough George to hear any movement he might make, or any sound. She said: "I'm sorry about Cap'n Corr, Peter."

"He's dying," he told her. "I'm pretty sure of that." He added: "Richard has been mate since your uncle was killed. I'm second, and Mat Forbes came aft to take my place. If Father dies, Richard will be captain."

She thought this was a curious thing for Peter to say. He seemed to feel that his father's prospective death was merely incidental to Richard's advancement. Thinking of Tommy, she suggested: "Tell me about Uncle Tom."

Peter hesitated. "Why, I did tell you," he said, after a moment.

"I mean—all about it," she urged, and smiled. "If we don't talk we'll go to sleep, Peter."

"Well, it was a bowhead," Peter reluctantly explained. "We were on Japan. This was a lone bull. We all lowered, but we had a long pull; and we spread out, and when he came up to blow it was your uncle's boat was nearest. The whale was between him and me, Richard off to the wind'ard. I put for the whale, and so did your uncle's boat; but he beat me by a little."

"With you so near!" she whispered ruefully. "Couldn't you do anything?"

"I wasn't close enough to do anything," Peter asserted, arguing as much with himself as with her. "The whale smashed them, and then he started looking for more trouble."

"Did you kill him?"

"No, I stayed to pick up the men."

"I don't see that there was anything you could have done, Peter."

"Blast it, there wasn't!" he cried. "I was too far away."

She nodded, shivering faintly at something in the man. "They were both killed? Did you get them?"

"No. They sank." He added: "Richard got an iron into him half an hour after, killed him."

"Richard?" She spoke her thought, not reflecting that he might think her word an implied criticism. "He's very brave, isn't he?"

Peter laughed angrily. "Dick hasn't brains enough to be afraid when he ought to," he said. "If you call that being brave! You always thought a lot of Richard!"

She smiled a little. "I certainly did! Of course, he never knew I existed; but I used to worship him from a distance."

He chuckled. "Remember that letter you wrote him when you were a young one?"

Her cheeks burned. "I didn't write it to him! It wasn't meant for him. It was just an old letter I read in a book, a love letter, and I thought it was sweet, so I copied it! You knew perfectly well it wasn't meant for Richard, Peter Corr!"

GAME, FISH REGULATIONS CHANGE MAR. 1

Lake Spearing Ends; Upper Peninsula Rabbit Season Closes

Saturday is the last day to fish for bluegills through the ice and Sunday is the last day to hunt for snowshoe hares in the upper peninsula, the conservation department reminds sportsmen, in checking these two significant dates on the conservation calendar.

All other game seasons are already closed, though some hunters are keeping in practice shooting crows and hunting bobcats and other non-game animals.

All inland lake spearing also ends Saturday, but anglers may continue fishing pike lakes until March 15 and "all other" inland lakes until March 31, for pike and perch and called bass. During the spring months when the season is closed on game fish to allow for spawning, fishermen turn their attention to the harvest of suckers and other rough fish making their spawning runs.

Clare Staley and Gordon Dennis, is a family size affair with accomodations for six. The boys not only have the latest gadgets with which to catch the smelt, but their shanty is stocked with provisions for a "feed" as well, and before the day was very old they served fried smelt with bread and butter and coffee. Rather a ritzy affair, if you ask me. The shack is located off the Ferry avenue bathing pier on Lake Charlevoix and, for your information, the smelt bit swell all day.

Of all the shortuges that exist now because of wartime restrictions, one that shouldn't interfere with the marriage market is that in the blanket industry. Twa can sleep a lot cheaper than one.

Don't throw away those burned out electric light bulbs — they'll come in handy for blackouts.

President Roosevelt gave a great address Monday night — great for its appeal for loyalty and sacrifice. Americans expecting to hear more information regarding conduct of the war were disappointed, however. Perhaps the enemy was looking for the same information, too.

Teacher: "A fool can ask questions that a wise man can't answer.

Student: "No wonder we failed in our examinations."

If the large attendance at the annual board of commerce meeting Monday night may be taken as an indication of local interest in activities of the organization, we may expect good results during 1942-43. Obviously, the greater the number interested in Charlevoix's welfare, the greater the results.

OUTLINE ELIGIBLES FOR RE-TREAD TIRES

Program of Rationing Will Be Inaugurated March 2nd

Defense workers will be granted priorities in obtaining retreaded or recapped tires, provided there is a crude rubber supply available, Arthur H. Sarvis, state rationing administrator has announced.

Sarvis said the retread and recap program will begin March 2, but that there would probably not be enough crude rubber to supply all eligibles at that time.

"Two new eligibility lists have been received from Washington," Sarvis said. "List 'A' is practically the same now as it exists for new tires, except for the addition of clergymen to the eligible list."

"Group 'B' is confined solely to vehicles eligible to apply for retreads," Sarvis stated. He added that no list "B" vehicle would be able to apply for retreads during February, and that March would probably apply exclusively to trucks.

List "B" includes:

1. Licensed jitney, taxi, or similar transportation service to the general public.

2. Transportation of persons doing construction or highway repair maintenance.

3. Transportation of executives, engineers, technicians and workers essential to the war effort, power transmission, transportation or communication facilities, or agricultural, extractive, industrial, military or naval establishments.

4. Transportation of government officials or employes essential to public health, safety or the war effort.

5. Transportation of farm produce and supplies.

6. Transportation of traveling salesmen selling farm or industrial equipment, foods, or medical supplies essential to the war effort.

7. Transportation of newspapers for wholesale delivery.

"It is possible," Sarvis said, "that no crude rubber will be available during February or March, except for persons already eligible for new tires."

Sarvis said the retread eligible list was confined to passenger cars, except trucks "used for any important purpose" not included in list "A."

"No certificates for retreads will be issued until March 2," Sarvis stated. "February 19 marked the closing of the sale of retreads and recaps, and no retreading is being done between that date and March 2nd."

Saves Argument

Suppose you owe a bill and pay it with a check. This cancelled check acts as a receipt. It shows you have paid, without any argument.

But suppose you paid the bill with cash and neglected to take a recipt, or misplaced it in case you did get one. Then what? In case an attempt is made to collect this bill again it may take a lot of argument—and possibly a lawsuit to settle the matter. It pays to keep your money in a sound bank like ours—and pay by check.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

From Your Congressman
Fred Bradley
11th District, Michigan

As most of my readers know, it was my privilege recently, during a lull in our legislative program, to spend four days back in the district, which was the first time I have been able to get back home for some time. I found a number of conditions back there which were disquieting to say the least. Since my return to Washington, I have continued my efforts to correct those conditions and believe we are making considerable headway. The rules of censorship necessary under wartime conditions prevent my telling you all that has been accomplished in the past few days, but I believe with the full cooperation of Senator Brown, we are well on the way to success in securing not only approval of the new lock at the Sault, but likewise in securing increased protection for our nation's vital ore supply line. I think we have built a bonfire down here in Washington which will prove to be too hot for anyone to put out until satisfactory results have been obtained.

Congress often moves in strange ways. Our rules in the house and senate differ and sometimes this difference in rules and operating procedure makes it possible for us to better serve the public, while at other times makes it difficult for us to appear to be doing a good job. In the house amendments cannot be added to legislative bills which do not immediately pertain to the subject matter of the bill under consideration, but in the senate this may be done.

The senate this week had under consideration a bill designed to provide uninterrupted pay or benefits to the families of naval personnel who are now, or may be, imprisoned during this war. Senator Byrd of Virginia offered an amendment to this bill to repeal the recently enacted amendment to the Civil Service Retirement Act under which elected officials, including congressmen and the president, could qualify for retirement benefits. Senator Downey of California then offered an amendment to the Byrd amendment under which the federal government would pay $30 per month to everyone in need over 60 years of age. The payments were to be made by the states' old age pension bureaus, which bureaus would determine just who was in need. No contributions of any kind would have been paid by the recipients and no provision was made for taxation to raise this additional money. This was thought by many to be somewhat along the lines of the Townsend Plan and was so played up by some newspaper columnists. This Downey amendment was debated at considerable length and it was hoped by some that the addition of this amendment to the Byrd amendment would put the senate members on the spot. However, after considerable wrangling as to the cost of the proposed Downey amendment in these war days, the Californian withdrew his suggestion and by a vote of 75 to 0, the senate adopted the Byrd amendment which, if adopted in the house (which is a certainty), will repeal this unpopular law. Further Senator Brown succeeded in adding an amendment to this naval bill authorizing the construction of the new lock at the Sault.

In the house the past week, because official petitions cannot be placed on the speaker's desk until legislation has been on the books for 30 days, an informal petition was circulated among members—which I signed—asking the civil service committee to report out any one of the numerous bills repealing the unwarranted Congressional Retirement Act.

As I write this news letter, there is some talk that an effort will be made to delay house concurrence in the amendments added in the senate to the naval bill. Consequently, all day Friday I attended a session of the house military affairs sub-committee testifying in favor of the new lock at the Sault and also in consideration of this Byrd amendment. We are hopeful that we will be able to exert sufficient pressure on the house naval affairs committee and on all other members of congress to force early house action in concurring in these two senate amendments. In other words, we are hopeful that by the time this news letter appears in print, the so-called congressional retirement law will have been repealed and an additional lock will have been authorized at the Sault.

FARM MACHINERY REPAIR PROJECT

EQUIP SHOP AT BOYNE CITY NYA HEADQUARTERS

Project Sponsored by Charlevoix County USDA War Board Studied for State-Wide Adoption

The plan for repairing farm machinery, sponsored by the county USDA war board has taken shape rapidly. Already, some applications for machinery repair have been accepted and repairs are now being made at the NYA shop. This plan was explained to farmers during the past two weeks in the county wide "Food for Freedom" meetings held by the war board and the AAA.

The NYA headquarters in Boyne City has a machine shop thoroughly equipped for such work and it is made available through the efforts of the war board for the use of the farmers of the county. Applications for repair of farm machinery should be made to Walter H. Henley, chairman of the county war board, in the AAA office, Boyne City. When appraved, the order for repairs is to be taken by the individual to Harold Lees, manager of the REA, who, as member of the war board, is authorized to send the work to the NYA shop for repair, where the necessady work will be done under expert supervision. The NYA cannot deal with the individual direct. All repair parts must be furnished by the farmer as no funds are available and the NYA can make no charges to cover them. The farmer benefits to the extent that the labor will not be charged and the youth of Charlevoix county will get to be better machine repair men. This will be of great value to the farm boys who may later be farming on their own account.

War defense activities have prevented our local shops from doing such work promptly or not at all, so, this plan will be a great boon for the farmers of Charlevoix county. Not only will our county be benefited but eventually the state may adopt the same procedure. At a recent regional meeting at Gaylord attended by war board chairmen and members of all upper counties with the state committeemen our plan was explained. Great interest was indicated by all representatives and it is very probable the project will become state wide. A score for Charlevoix county.

Farmers, remember, it will first be necessary to make application before bringing in your machinery for repairs.

KIWANIS NOTES

Hear State Trooper

"Subversive Activities" was the subject of Howard Barton, member of the special investigation squad of the Michigan State Police, guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Kiwanis club at the I.O.O.F. hall Tuesday evening.

Charlevoix county stands high in the list of counties having a small amount of disloyal activity and sentiment, the speaker said.

With the aid of one helper, Mr. Barton covers twenty-six counties of the northern part of the lower peninsula. His time is taken up with vindicating the wrongfully accused, as well as in locating those who would give active aid and comfort to the enemy.

Unstinted praise was given to the various local police officers and county sheriffs, in the district, for their aid in uncovering un-American sentiment and the activities of aliens on behalf of the enemy.

The club will solicit a large number of prominent Charlevoix people for funds to assist in carrying on the work of the Boy Scouts.

Purchase of a $100.00 Defense bond was authorized; also, contribution of $5.00 to the Young Mothers' club of Charlevoix was approved.

CAR RATIONING NOW IN EFFECT

BOARD ALLOWS ONE PETITION ON PRIOR CONTRACT

Machinery for Sugar Rationing Now Being Set Up; Full Details Will Be Announced

Deadline for rationing 1942 automobiles for which contract had been made prior to Janaary 2, expired Monday, March 2.

One petition was granted in Charlevoix coanty, that of Ralph Price, of Ironton, whose contract made in Ann Arbor in December was held valid.

All car purchases allowed in the future must be under rationing regulations until snch time as rationing is withdrawn. Eligibility is governed almost identically by regulations covering tire rationing. Application blanks, according to Fenton R. Bulow, chairman of the County Rationing Board, are in the hands of all automobile dealers in the county, or may be obtained from board members. Further information may be obtained from these sources.

In the meantime, machinery is being set up for distribution of sugar rationing coupons. Mr. Bulow stated that due to increasing duties placed upon the rationing board, Lottie M. Todd has been appointed full-time clerk. She assumed her duties February 27th. Office quarters are now being established at the court house.

While it is known the distribution of sugar rationing coupons will be handled through the schools of the county, complete instructions pertaining to the mechanics of the plan have not been received by the ratioaing board and, due to this faet, no attempt is being made at this time to explaio the rationing procedure. It is expected, however, that full details will be available for announcement next week.

Preliminary details of the annual banquet, to be held at a yet undesignated date in April, were discussed. Arrangements for a speaker and entertainment features are now being made.

FARM FIRST AID PLAN ORGANIZED

MEETINGS SCHEDULED AT TWO POINTS IN COUNTY

Charlevoix and Star Community On Peninsula Training Centers; Ask Farm Families Attend

(By B. C. Mellencamp)

Realizing the need of first-aid instruction for farm families, a program is being developed throaout the county to make the project available in rural communities.

Thus far first-aid classes have been in operation in East Jordan, Charlevoix and Boyne City, but very few farm families have been represented. It is known that farm families are just as interested in defense activity and want to participate but many find it inconvenient to attend a course consisting of ten lessons.

A program now is being developed to organize two centers where first-aid instruction will be given under qualified first-aid instructors. The rural communities on the west end of the county have agreed that the most convenient loention would be in the city of Charlevoix as all main roads lead to town and it is quite difficult to cross over from one to the other. All farm families are invited to attend a meeting to be held in the city hall, Charlevoix, Tuesday night, March 10th, to organize the group for first aid instruction. This meeting will start at 8:00 and should be ended by 8:45.

The other community is the Star community on the peninsula. The organiztion for this community will be held Monday night, March 9, in the Star Community hall at 8:00.

Regular instruction will be given in five lessons and will be held in the afternoon rather than in the evening. It is felt that in the case of farm families the project should be completed by April 15 as after that date the farm work would prevent many from attending.

Please pat these dates down on your calendar and plan to attend the organiztion meeting where full details of the project will he announced, officers elected, and plans for the instruction perfected..

SHOT AT RANDOM

By KEN USHER

Had a publicity aotice today from the Kalkaska trout festival committee, which reminded me that the big event—opeaing of the 1942 trout fishing season—is just 50 days away. The season opens on the last Saturday in April, which this year falls on the 25th, providing one of the longest seasons in years. Well, that's at least one comforting thing to look forward to in these troubled times.

The fact that our wholesale paper houses intimate we're soon to have paper rationing bothers me no little because things don't add up just as they should. On one hand I observe the nation-wide campaign to collect scrap paper for defense, while on the other I see a pile of government publicity material — statistical reports, bureau reports, defense stories, etc. —from practically every federal agency in existence which has been accumulating on my desk for a week. The paper used weighs about five pounds in all. Some of the heavy kraft paper envelopes would cost 3c apiece to buy at wholesale, so I've estimated value of the lot at 62c. Then figuring there's something like 13,000 and some odd newspapers in the United States receiviag the same material we do 52 weeks out of the year you arrive at a country-wide value of paper used for goverament publicity at a figure of about $427,000, which isn't exactly marbles. You ask what do we do with all this goverament mail? Well, we figure it wouldn't be any more interesting to our readers than it is to us, so about 98% of it goes into the waste paper basket. The Boy Scouts pick it up for defense, the government keeps right on wasting it and plans on rationing paper. That's why the situation doesn't add up.

Enemy air raids on Michigan cities or the Soo locks could occur during April or May when weather would be more saitable for long distance flying, according to military advice. Inconsistency exists in the fact that the army bas not taken steps yet to designate Michigan as a possible target for air attacks, although President Roosevelt said in a recent press conference that Detroit could be bombed under certain conditions.

Protective defense services — such as aid raid wardens and fire and police volanteers — are in charge of Capt. Don Leonard, Michigan State police, who was designated months ago by the governor as coordinator for these ageacies in Michigan. Official instruction courses bave been prepared by the Office of Civilian Defense at Washington for which Leonard was a special field man for many months.

Brighter news from the industrial front, in contrast to the flow of reverses from the war front, was reflected in an announcement by the state anemployment compensation commission that 111,533 claims had been paid to jobless as of February 21, as compared to previous official forecast of 250,000 to 300,000.

Reason, as given by Wendell L. Lund, commission director: "Unexpected industrial activity and greater speed in defense absorption of the idle."

It seems that everybody won in the recent legislative skirmish over unemployment compensation benefits. The Republican legislature

JANUARY GAME LAW VIOLATIONS ARE LOW

"Few Idle Hands to Get Into Mischief," Avers Department

Fewer idle hands to get into mischief — an incidental consequence of the stepped-up war effort—explain much of the big decline in conservation law offenses in January of this year, as compared with January of a year earlier, in the opinion of conservation department officials.

January of this year saw only 143 cases brought to court compared with 255 in January, 1941. In January of this year, jail sentences added up to 122 days as compared with 538 in the same month a year earlier. Fines and costs this year were $2,060, compared with $3,960 in January of the year before.

Failure to respect closed seasons on black bass, brook trout, frogs, beaver, muskrat, pheasants, squirrels, partridge, quail, whistling swan and deer accounted for a score of violations in the recent month.

INFORMATION REGARDING INCOME TAX

Have you filed your federal income tax return? If you come within the group from whom returns are required, you have only until midnight, March 16, in which to file a return. Single persons who earned as much as $14.43 a week for the 52 weeks of 1941; or married persons living together who had aggregate earnings of as much as $28.85 a week for the year, are required to file returns. The instructions attached to the forms describe the method of preparing returns, but if further information is necessary it may be obtained at the offices of the collector of internal revenue, deputy collector, or an internal revenue agent in charge. They make no charge for their services.

If income tax returns are placed in the mail, they should be posted in ample time to reach the collector's office on or before the due date — that is midnight on March 16 for calendar year returns. Taxpayers subject themselves to a penalty for failure to file returns on time.

WOOLEN GARMENTS IN NEED OF EXTRA CARE

Scarcity Caused by War Calls for Extra Precautions

With the armed forces of the United States needing warm clothing and wool blankets, the supply of wool for civilian uses cannot be curtailed. Woolen garments already purchased may be given extra long life if given proper care, say specialists in home economics at Michigan State college.

Day to day care will prolong the life of any wool garment, as well as improve its appearance. Whisking or brushing off lint and dust before it becomes imbedded in the material is good practice. So, too, is hanging garments on hangers as soon as removed. When possible it is well to let wool garments rest a day or two after one or two days of wear, to permit the wool to spring back into shape. Thus less pressing is required.

Hanging wool garments in the sun and air occasionally helps to kill moths, as well as their eggs and larvae. Since moths may infest heated homes the year round precautionary measures are necessary against them in winter as well as in summer.

Never iron wool. Steam press it, is another suggestion of the specialists. The effect of a steam iron may be obtained with two pressing clothes, instead of one. The cloth next to the wool garment should also be of wool, and on top of it is spread the cotton press cloth, which has been wrung out in warm water. Press by setting the iron down squarely on the press cloth, lifting it, then setting it down again. The iron should never be hot enough to scorch the press cloth. The moisture should never be pressed entirely out of wool.

Garments with a strongly marked weave, or those that have a tendency to be shiny after pressing should be pressed on the wrong side. When doing so, the wool press cloth should be laid on the ironing board, then the garment, and finally, the cotton press cloth.

All wool garments should be hung carefully to dry.

CHANGE IN FISHING LAW SIGN OF SPRING

Bluegill Fishing, Spearing Are Banned; Other Changes

Signs of spring, as they appear on the calendars of the state's fishermen: end of bluegill ice fishing and spearing on inland lakes last week end; the closing of pike lakes March 15 and so-called "bass" lakes March 31; and, from today, only 50 days until the opening of trout season.

Many waters, including the Great Lakes, certain lakes connected with Lake Michigan and non-trout streams remain open to anglers. The conservation department reports, however, that its officers have found fishermen fewer this year than in many winters, as effects of the all-out war effort become evident.

Spring spearing on certain streams of spawning carp, suckers, redhorse and mullet will be permitted in the lower peninsula April 1 to May 15, and during the month of May in the upper peninsula. Dipnetting for suckers, mullet, smelt and carp, legal since the first of the month, continues thru May 15 also. Except for the smelt harvest, most of these hauls are for food rather than sport and are not expected to be much affected by the decline in interest evident in winter fishing.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

From Your Congressman
Fred Bradley
11th District, Michigan

All this year our correspondence has been unusually heavy and much of it has been of a very critical or inquisitive nature. The people want to know what is going on down here in Washington; what progress we are making in the winning of this war. All of us are agreed that the thought uppermost in the minds of all of us must be the winning of this war. The people are concerned about many things which find their way into the public press and which bring to light instances of incompetence and of gross extravagance and waste in the highest places in our government. Others wonder whether the full story of Pearl Harbor has been told and others want to know why we are not doing this or that.

It must be obvious that in times of war aid and comfort should not be given the enemy and, consequently, matters of a military nature must of necessity remain secret as long as they would bring such aid and comfort to the enemy. On the other hand, in my opinion, we must be careful lest we deny to ourselves and to our friends a clear vision of the truth of what is actually taking place, and in my humble opinion the truth and the facts should be given to the American people just as soon as they will no longer benefit the enemy. If the facts are not to our liking, that is all the more reason why we should be told them in order that we may correct our mistakes before they become more serious. The American people have always shown their ability to accept the bitter with the sweet, sad news with the good; but the American people want the truth at all times. The truth must not be concealed.

Unfortunately, however, there are apparently many in Washington today who seek to cover up the truth in far too many instances. That is why there is in Washington today a very much aroused public opinion against a new bill introduced in the senate by Mr. Van Nuys of Indiana, known as S. 2281, and which was submitted to him by the Attorney General. It proposes "To penalize the divulging of the contents of confidential government documents." The title sounds innocent enough and would lead one to believe that all that is aimed at is the suppression of military secrets. However, the bill actually proposes to fine not more than $5,000 or imprison for not more than two years, or both, any one "whoever, without authority, shall willfully and knowingly furnish, communicate, divulge, or publish to any person, in whole or in part, copies or the contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning of any file, instrument, letter, memorandum, book, pamphlet, paper, document, manuscript, map, picture, plan, record, or other writing in the custody of the United States, or of any agency, officer, or employee thereof, declared to be secret or confidential by statute, or declared to be secret or confidential by any rule or regulation of any department or agency of the United States of which he has knowledge." The bill provides further that "the head of any executive department, independent, establishment, or other agency may authorize the disclosure of information in the custody of his department, establishment, or agency to particular persons or classes of persons or to the public generally."

It is easy to see that if this bill should be enacted into law it would be entirely possible for any employee of the government to withhold from the public or even from committees of congress any information of any nature which he might choose to call for any reason whatsoever "confidential information." Under such a cloak of immunity, inefficiency, waste, extravagance, malfeasance and misfeasance could at all times be completely covered up because no examination of the records and no subjection to public scrutiny would be possible. It would provide a most complete and effective censorship of the press and the radio and, as previously noted, could even conceal the facts from the Congress of the United States, which is charged with the responsibility of running our government.

There is absolutely no excuse for this bill unless the sponsors are afraid of the spotlight of publicity.

GARDENERS ADVISED ORDER SEED EARLY

Shortages in Some Vegetables Exist at Present Time

This week, not that sunshiny day in May, is the time to order garden seed, in order to obtain adequate supply, is the suggestion of S. B. Apple of the Michigan State college horticultural staff.

Although serious shortages of seed exist for some vegetables, Apple reports, the food supply of the country is not likely to be reduced through the lack of vegetable seeds. Growers who place their orders early will find the supply will be adequate for many of the varieties and strains which they desire.

Seed growers, however, have been forced to cut down on the number of varieties, and concentrate on the more important ones. In some instances it may be necessary for the grower to use a second choice variety of some vegetables.

The home gardener will find it easy to make a second choice in varieties, and may find it necessary to make a second choice in the kinds of vegetables he wishes to plant. Thus, if spinach seed becomes scarce, he may easily substitute chard, mustard, kale, or turnip greens which, if properly harvested and cooked, are highly desirable.

Nearly all seeds are higher in price than last year, but Apple reminds that the cost of seed per acre is a small part of the total cost per acre. Most serious shortages at present are in beets, carrots, onions and spinach. The government is asking for additional acreages in tomatoes and peas for canning, and this fact, with the increased interest in home gardens, may cause some shortage in seeds.

The gardener may help the situation if he will do the following things: Look over his seed left over from last year and use it if it tests high enough.

Make use of seed treatments in order to get a good stand of plants.

Substitute wherever possible some other variety, or some other kind.

Buy from reliable seedman.

DOG TRAINING PERIOD IS SHORTENED BY LAW

Dogs In Field Between April 15 and July 15 Is Banned

Shortened from five months to three by a liberal administration of the law, the ban on hunting dog field trials will now allow no exceptions, conservation department officials said today, in rejecting one application for a late April permit.

Though the statutory ban sets March 15 to August 15 as exereme limits, the department policy has been to grant permits except in the period of April 15 to July 15, when nesting birds and young rabbits are protected from field trial dogs and dogs being trained.

Conservation department permits are required for all field trials held in Michigan.

and the Democratic governor are both claiming credit for liberalizing maximum payments from $16 to $20 for 20 weeks, minimum payments $7 to $10 for 12 weeks.

Director Wendell Lund said that manufacturers and employes were happy. And the best acclaim of all came from Ewan Clague, associate director of the federal employment security division of the Social Security Board: "Michigan is to be congratulated that it has the best unemployment insurance law in the United States."

Clague said the trend was toward a "straight state system" in contrast to federal benefits granted by congress to pressure groups for political purposes.

Local draft boards are to be cautioned by Brig. General Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, against exhausting farm labor rolls in their counties. General Hershey said in Washington: "One of the hardest men you have to convince that he is a specialist is the farmer. Farmers are patriotic. They don't try to get exemptions."

Recommendations of the civil service commission for saving $171,000 annually are to be put into effect by the state liquor control commission, following the recent reorganization effected by Governor Van Wagoner.

The newest reform followed appointment of Ralph Thomas of Detroit as chairman and Felix H. H. Flynn, formerly on the unemployment compensation commission, as a member.

Recognizing a war-time demand for industrial efficiency, the commission took steps to discourage "any conditions in the industry which interfere with all-out production." In other words, war orders will get the right-of-way over liquor licensees when the two clash.

Recent public opinion polls by Dr. George Gallup have shown a rise in sentiment for prohibition.

Herbert J. Rushton, attorney general, has upheld the right of the civil service commission to reorganize state governmental agencies in order to eliminate unnecessary employees and to effect operating economies.

The constitutional amendment on civil service, however, does not remove control of state departments from state officials except for the assignment and placing of personnel subject to civil service, it was held.

G. Donald Kennedy, state commissioner of highways, reported a reduction of department payroll by 13.9 per cent for January. Gasoline revenues are expected to decline due to tire rationing, and Kennedy is taking steps to keep operating costs in line with 1942 revenues. Highway construction will be limited virtually to war needs.

The pension repeal was whooped through the house of representatives at Washington by unanimous vote of Michigan's 17 representatives.

Editorial comment on defense: (Stanley Banyon in the Benton Harbor News-Pallodium:

"How many hours a week do the boys on Botaan work? If the Jap attack on Sunday, do you think the American troops demand double time for overtime?

"The work week is between 55 and 60 hours in Great Britain. It is between 60 and 70 hours in Germany.

"This is war. Every American must work as many hours as compatible with maximum efficiency. He should be paid for every hour, at his regular pay rate. The 40-hour week overtime penalties — like excessive profits—are holding back the war effort. For the duration, they must go!"

Chase S. Osborn writing in the Sault Ste. Marie Evening News: "This is no time to get too cocky or to think of ourselves as bullies or anything of that sort. But it is wholesome to remember that Americans have never shirked a fight when they were in the right. They really appear to have enjoyed dying for their country. It is as good a way to be assured of future happiness as can be found. Sooner or later the Americans are going to wipe the Japanese off the face of the earth."

"If the boys with MacArthur can take it, so can we!"

So said a World war veteran on the mid-night-to-dawn shift at Colt's patent fire arms plant in Connecticut when he explained why the men called it the "MacArthur Shift."

M. A. Gorman, editor, Flint Journal, observed editorially: "What a boon it would be if this spirit should take root throughout American life! And it must."

Notes from the Big Blizzard of '22: Charlevoix has been completely snowbound for the past nine days. The most severe wind and sleet storm that ever visited this section started late last Tuesday and raged with ever-increasing force until Saturday. A snow fall estimated at from two to four feet was covered Thursday and Friday by several inches of rain and sleet, then more snow. The last train on the Pere Marquette line was last Tuesday. Ice and snow on the tracks near Traverse City has put the big railroad plows out of commission, and gangs of men with pick and shovel are clearing the right-of-way. A train is expected to reach Charlevoix by Saturday . . . When Charlevoix began digging out, last Saturday, snow was shoveled from Bridge street sidewalks into piles eight feet high. No shortage of food or fuel, and telephoae service has been at its best. Business has gone on as usual, although walking to business places was almost an impossibility during the sleet storm.

Cadillac and Reed City have been without electric lights and telephone service since last Wednesday, as the lines were pulled down by weight of ice; four trains were stalled at Mancelonn at one time; trees in the fruit belt between Traverse City and Ludington were ruined by the weight of ice and snow breaking boughs; mountnins of snow between Petoskey and Harbor Springs have necessitated communication between the two cities by a dog-sled with an Indian driver; Mt. Pleasant and Muskegon were flooded with several inches of water.

If it takes a man half a day to shovel from his second story window to the street, how long will it take 60 men to shovel out the Pere Marquette railway system?

Lou Moon has been using both sides of the film these days.

Shoveling snow from the roofs has been the chief occupation for the past few days, and undoubtedly has saved many roofs from falling in.

R. F. D. carriers have been stayed from the swift completion of their appointed rounds by drifts from six to twelve feet deep on the roads.

The most exciting event of the past week was the arrival of a caterpillar tractor from Boyne City Monday evening, and again Tuesday. The slow moving machine wallowed through the huge drifts with difficulty.

Mr. Foster of the Northern Auto company walked to East Jordan Friday.

Joseph Howard is remodeling his bungalow on Dixon avenue, built on a bluff overlooking Round lake.

Eight days have passed without a single package from Montgomery Ward! It hardly seems right, does it?

A party of ten people left Traverse City by bob-sleigh at 2 p. m. Saturday, spent the night in Elk Rapids, at Torch Lake were met by William O'Neill with a team of horses, and, following the trail broken by the team, reached Charlevoix Monday morning.

George Weaver reports that the snow is piled 19 feet deep at the high bridge over the railroad tracks near Ellsworth.

A crowd of 150 people cheerfully faced the storm to attend the Firemen's Masquerade ball held last Wednesday at Bank Hall. Mrs. William Stokes, Miss Peggy Johnson, Frank Nowland and Lawrence Taylor won costume prizes. The fire laddies now have raised nearly enough to purchase their siren whistle.

Immediate construction of a 13-room school building, to house all grades, kindergarten and a gymnasium, has been recommended by the board of education. The corner of Mason and Grant street has been chosen for location of the new building, to be constructed under the unit system which will allow a future addition to the north end of the grade unit if ever required.

Albert E. Mason, 73, one of the first residents of Charlevoix, died Saturday. Son of Seth and Eliza Mason, he came here with his parents in 1855. The Mason's first residence was a house near the present site of the Charlevoix lumber company. Later they moved to a log cabin on the south shore of Round lake, then built a frame house on the south terrace at the corner of Belvedere avenue and Bridge street, where the W. H. Wallace home now stands. Mr. Mason practiced law here for two years, then in 1880 formed a partnership with Olander Blair for operation of a grocery store. Later Mr. Blair withdrew, and Mr. Mason continued to operate the grocery and general merchandise store until a few months ago.

THERE'S A K IN VICTORY!

This war is being fought with resources as well as with men. Every pound of vital materials that can be conserved for weapons and munitions is another step on the road to Victory.

About the time the war began in Europe, Bell System engineers were starting to use the "K" carrier system — a new telephone development which now is saving large quantities of copper for use in implements of war.

In operation, the "K" carrier system enables two pairs of wires in parallel cables to carry as many as twelve separate conversations at the same time!

"K" carrier is helping Michigan Bell handle more Long Distance calls with fewer wires—making an important saving in copper.

Even with the help of research and invention, increasing shortages of materials make it difficult to satisfy service demands as promptly as in the past. But we are confidently determined that every war need will be met.

Peter touched her hand, leaning near her. "Poor kid! You were a great little girl, Mary. You know, you've grown up mighty beautiful."

"Poor kid! You were a great little girl, Mary—"

He leaned back again. "It's always griped me to hear Richard read that letter of yours to people and laugh about it. I know it wasn't any joke to you!"

She whispered in a sort of terror: "Does he read it to people?"

He chuckled. "Oh, yes, he kept it. He's got it now somewhere, probably."

She rose hurriedly, blindly escaping so he would not know her hurt. "I'll see how George is," she said, and took the lamp and went to the other room.

George was asleep, but she stood beside him for a while, deeply shaken, wishing to be alone. It seemed incredible that Richard could have made a jest of her letter. Some of the absurd phrases which once had seemed to her so beautiful returned to torment her. "I have ventured to disclose my excessive passion . . ." "Oh, do not slight a passion so ardent . . ." "The tyrant love!" She was hot with shame. The letter was silly, of course. She knew that now; but it had seemed to her then like a wonderful poem . . .

CHAPTER VIII

She did not sleep that night. Sitting by George's bed, she had time to put all these new things in order in her mind. Uncle Tom dead. Captain Corr ill, dying, perhaps dead even now. Peter, with that vein of malicious humor in him still, that trick of teasing her in ways that hurt. Peter was uncomfortable about her uncle's death, as though he felt some doubts of his own conduct on that occasion. Tommy hated him. That was clear. Tommy blamed him; but Tommy was young, his emotions likely to overrule his judgment. Probably Peter deserved no blame at all.

But Mary thought most of all of Richard, somewhere outside the bay in the Venturer, probably watching his father die. Just as she watched beside George here. She would see him in the morning; and she was at once eager and uneasy, remembering that letter of which he had made a jest. She had found it in a book called "The Complete Letter Writer." It was headed: "A Young Man Seeks the Acquaintance of a Lady he Loves." She had thought it beautiful, had copied it, using Richard's name and her own, in a sort of make-believe, never meaning it to be seen by anyone.

And in school next day, she was reading it secretly behind the screen of her geography when Peter reached over her shoulder and snatched it away.

After school was out she begged Peter to give the letter back to her; but he refused, insisting that he would deliver it to Richard, for whom it was intended. Mary prayed him not to, and secretly hoped he would. Maybe Richard would read it and come to her and take her in his arms!

But next day Peter brought her Richard's scrawled answer: "Dear Mary, don't be a little fool. Wait till you grow up. Dick."

She had cried then, and hated him; yet except for that cruel note he had always been, in a gruff, shy way, nice to her.

She was glad she would see him in the morning.

The Captain's cabin on the Venturer was on the starboard side, opening off the common room aft, into which the companionway descended. While Mary kept her vigil ashore, Richard Corr sat there all that night watching his father die. It was clear to Richard that no medicines now could help his father; yet when he heard the boat alongside, he went to the foot of the companion to meet Ephraim Doncaster.

But only Mat Forbes descended.

"Mr. Doncaster's dead, Mr. Corr," he said. "And so is Mrs. Doncaster. Your brother sent word their daughter Mary is there."

Richard dropped his eyes, seemed to consider this; but actually he was only conscious of the fact that his father was dying, and that Mat and every man aboard looked to him now for command and leadership. Hiram Mintek and Isaiah Cappies, carpenter and cooper, oldsters who had sailed with Captain Corr for many a voyage and who loved him, were here in the common room sharing his vigil, standing by; and Hiram crossed now to look in at the sick man. Richard asked Mat:

"My brother didn't come back himself?"

"No, he and Tommy stayed ashore."

"Well, there's nothing could be done anyway," Richard decided.

Ira Corr spoke, Isaiah and old Hiram heard him, and came to the cabin door; but Captain Corr looked only at his son. He asked:

"Where's Peter?"

"Ashore, Father. We're at Gilead. He's gone to get help for you."

"I'm past help, Dick," he said. "You'll be Cap'n by morning."

Richard had never lied to this old man. "I'll do the best I can, than," he said humbly.

"Look out for Peter."

"I'll take care of him."

"I mean, look out for him," Captain Corr repeated, in clear warning. "You're mine, but he's not, Dick. Not my son. His mother was a widow woman," the old man said. "She made me claim him or she wouldn't marry me. I was young, wanted a woman any price at all; and for all I knew then, Peter'd make a man and a good son for me. I gave him and you alike always, Richard; but you're a man, and he's not. I knew that sure, after his first time at sea. The sea winnows a man, Richard; blows the chaff away and shows you what he is underneath. It didn't need that business of Tom Hanline to show me the inwardness of Peter. I knew before. I wasn't fooled," he said. "So I cast him out. It's all in my will, Dick. Lawyer Ashburn's got it at home. A dollar to Peter that was never mine, and the rest to you that was always my own son."

Richard's pulse-beat choked him. Captain Corr's eyes were closed now; but the old man said softly:

"I could always brag about you, Dick."

He seemed to smile, but he did not speak again. He did not know when his father died, till Isaiah came at last to peer over his shoulder and to say:

"He's gone."

Richard looked down, and he saw this was true. His father was dead. He was Captain now.

He rose. He went on deck. He saw their position, said to Mat Forbes:

"Mr. Forbes, my father is dead. Keep her off and on. I'll be busy for a while."

He returned below. He went into the cabin and closed the door. Alone there, tender as a woman, he shaved his father's dead face, and dressed him in seemly garments. While he was alone with his father he had considered the problem which the old man's revelation presented. There had been no chance to ask Captain Corr whether Peter knew the truth about himself; but Richard was sure he did not. Richard even thought Peter need never know. When they reached New Bedford, he might go first to lawyer Ashburn and arrange for the destruction of the will—since he himself would be the only loser—and then he and Peter could share alike as legal heirs.

He fixed on this intention; but if the secret were to be kept, Isaiah and Hiram must be warned to silence. So he told them crisply that they were to forget what they had heard.

They assented, Hiram with a word, Isaiah more volubly.

George for much of the night had been restless and muttering in delirium; but toward morning he fell so deeply asleep that Mary leaned over him to make sure he was still breathing.

She was sticky hot, and she thought of the swimming pool that was cool and solitary. She took a towel and went down the path. The Venturer was moving into the bay; but there was time to be fresh and clean before Richard came ashore. She slipped out of her clothes and swam lazily, like a seal, as often under water as not. Jarambo came seeking her to say the Venturer had anchored and a boat was approaching. She told him to go meet them and help them land. When he was gone, she came out of the water, she dressed and turned toward the landing place.

She emerged from the jungle which cloaked the path in time to see Richard catch the rope Jarambo dropped to him; and a moment later, as the whaleboat lifted on the swell, he stepped nimbly ashore.

Mary had forgotten how tall Richard was; how tall and bronzed and dark. He carried a gun under his arm, and he wore a cap too small for him. His shirt was open, his lean hips tight in trousers that seemed too scant for his powerful thighs. He came striding up the path and she waited without moving, watching the way his feet seemed to grip the ground, the swelling muscles above his knees as he climbed. She thought, half smiling, how often two people thus drew together without speaking, each trying to decide when to call a word of greeting, or to lift a hand.

She said: "I've had a swim, it was so hot."

He said: "Felt good, I'll bet."

She offered him her hand. His was hard and heavy and firm. She asked for his father; and he said: "He died about daylight."

"I'm sorry."

He nodded. "Yes, he died."

The sun shone boldly. The Venturer, dingy, graceless, bluff of bow and stern, with draggled sails half-furled, lay to her short anchor in the bay.

Richard said: "Peter sent word your folks were dead too. You been here all alone, have you?"

"Not alone," she said. "My husband's with me. We took Father's and Mother's place."

"Husband?" She saw his pupils widen like a cat's. "Who's he?"

She smiled at the sudden question. "He's George McAusland, a missionary, a State of Maine man. He was on the Sunset. We came from Honolulu together. He's fine. You'll like each other."

LETTERS FROM THE ARMY CAMPS

Dear Friends,

We are writing in regard to our recent change of address, as we left Camp Livingston, La., the evening of February 23rd and are now located at Fort Devens, Mass., which is about 35 miles northwest of Boston. We had a fine trip, came by the way of Chicago and Buffalo so we got somewhere near Michigan. We sure would like to have come a few hundred miles on north to see all the folks up there. We sure have traveled over a lot of this nation since we came into the army. I guess they want to show us all this country we are going to protect.

We want to thank you for sending us the Courier this past ten months. We sure have appreciated it. We are now in the same barracks so one copy will do for the both of us. You can save the extra paper as we understand there is a paper shortage.

With best wishes
from your friends,
David Matchett
Corp. Carlton H. Smith.

Following is a letter send by Capt. Clair Bartholomew to his wife, who resides in Detroit.

Somewhere in the Pacific

Dear Phyllis,

I have no idea at what time I'll be able to post this but I'm going to write anyway . . . Today we were told that all our letters are to be censored and that all dates, names of ships and other various information must be left out of our letters.

We have been aboard this ship for several days and everything is running along smoothly. I'm in a first class stateroom with MacDonald, Gough, Lowenstein, Douglas, and Chaplain Wyle. We have all our meals in a real nice dining room on the same deck as our stateroom. The food and service is excellent. The waiters and cooks are all Filipinos. The enlisted men are all quartered in the holds. Their beds are stacked four high and there is scarcely room between them for the men to dress.

* * * *

We have "abandon ship" drills frequently and are now able to get all our men out of the holds and up on deck ready to take to the life boats in about 10 minutes. At first it took us 25 minutes. We wear life belts constantly, except when we are sleeping or eating.

Every precaution is taken to keep the ship dark at night. All windows are blinded. After sunset all lights are turned off except in the dining rooms and in the holds where there are no outside doors. We are required to take all flash lights, cigarette lighters and matches away from our men. It is a court martial offense to strike a match on deck after dark.

Uncle Sam gave us .45 pistols and gas mask for Christmas.

I slept very poorly the first night at sea. The ship pitched so that it was difficult to stay in bed. We get more roll up on our deck than the men in the hold.

We had plenty to do the first few days getting routine duties organized. We have men on KP, on guard, and on cleaning details. With so many men in a small space cleanliness is of vital importance.

I am sleeping real well now. A person can get used to sleeping any place. One has to tuck the blankets well under the mattress to keep from rolling out of bed.

This ship is powered with two 5000 H. P. turbines. At full speed, the turbines turn at 2500 R. P. M. and the propellor shafts turn at 125 R. P. M. Propellors are geared by "herringbone" gears to turbines. Propellors are 15 foot pitch, which means that we travel 15 feet for every turn of the propellors, neglecting slippage, which is about 10%. Steam is provided by 8 oil burning water tube boilers.

We had target practice off the stern of the ship the other afternoon. We tied bottles on a string and trailed them in the water back of the ship. We then proceeded to fire at them with our .45 pistols. Needless to say, few bottles were broken, as the ship was bobbing and so were the bottles.

We are getting proficient at the art of dressing and undressing in the dark. When we go to bed, we put our clothes on the floor right side of the bed where we can find them easily in case we have to put them on in a hurry in the dark.

We had a real nice turkey dinner yesterday. I've never drunk so much coffee as aboard this ship. The coffee is excellent.

* * * *

We are in a pretty good sized storm and the ship is doing a lot of pitching and wallowing but it doesn't seem to bother us at all as we are all so accustomed to it now.

I'm afraid I'm going to put on a lot of pounds if I stay on this ship much longer. The food is so good and the salt air gives me a ravenous appetite with the result that I eat much more than I normally would.

* * * *

We have our band and orchestra aboard. Right now the orchestra is playing in the men's dining room. It plays every noon and every evening and it sure sounds swell. We are not allowed to use radios. Also, all cameras have been taken up and stored in the hold with other baggage.

* * * *

. . . The wind is blowing about 40 m. p. h. . . . I was up on A deck, which is the highest deck on the ship, this afternoon, and a wave came up over the bow and drenched me. Up on A deck, we have to hang on to the rails to keep from getting blown off.

EAST JORDAN CANNERY WAREHOUSE IS BURNED

Heavy Damage Resulted from Fire Last Wednesday Night

Charlevoix's fire equipment, called at 7:30 p. m., made the run to East Jordan and assisted in controlling the blaze.

East Jordan's bond sales were $6,150, putting that city far in the lead in the county race. Stamps amounted to $330.15.

Boyne City sold $3,050 in bonds, $368 in stamps.

Total of all bonds and stamp sales show East Jordan out in front with $39,654.60; Bayne City in second position with $39,407.15; Charlevoix brings up the rear with $36,982.50.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

Fighting House Plant Pests

Nearly everyone who has house plants in the ordinary living room in winter is bothered to some extent by insects.

Mealy bugs are among the most persistent of these nuisances. If you have none, watch carefully any new plants for downy white tufts, for they will soon infest your other plants. Plants badly infected are best discarded. They like foliage plants best, but will live and seem to thrive on plant-sticks or other surfaces.

One of the best known remedies for ridding plants of these little pests is to make a swab of cotton on a toothpick and saturate in denatured alcohol. Touch every white dot in sight and wipe the main stems with a swab. Repeat every two or three days until all are gone. If you look at the under side of the leaves with a magnifying glass you will see why this is necessary. The little young pests are not visible to the naked eye.

The little black flies which infest house plants do not confine themselves to the plants but fly blindly around the room dropping anywhere to the discomfort of the family. As they hatch from "worms" in the soil obviously treatment should be made to the soil. Any of the nicotine solutions added to the water used for the usual watering will destroy them.

Angleworms may or may not be beneficial outdoors; they certainly are not a benefit inside in house plant earth. If the soil in the pot remains suspiciously damp or you see signs of their work in the saucers under plants, get busy or lose the plants. If possible repot, removing most of the dirt and the worms. Watering with ammonia water (one teaspoonful to one quart of water) or using lime water will eradicate them.

AT THE MOVIES

"Hold Back the Dawn"

Three of Hollywood's brightest stars shine in "Hold Back tthe Dawn," Parnmount's strange and exciting romance which opens on Saturday, March 7 for two days at the Palace Theatre.

The trio, Charles Boyer, Olivia dellavilland and Paulette Gaddard are a guarantee in themselves of super-entertainment. Add Director Mitchell Leisen and Producer Arthur Hornblow Jr., the men who gave us "I Wanted Wings," and the film becomes an odds-on favorite, sure to justify the raves of preview audiences. Lavishly filmed, the picture's tense drama is lightened by moments of hilarious comedy.

"Accent on Love"

Hailed as topnotch entertainment, "Accent On Love" is slated to open Wednesday, March 11 at the Palace Theatre. Featuring George Montgomery and Osa Massen, it is the story of the millionaire who tosses away his yachts to make love to a tenement bud on a fire escape.

Walking out on his unhappy life as the executive of a real estate corporation, Montgomery endeavors to find something else to do. He starts life anew as a day laborer in a gang bossed by J. Carrol Naish. Becoming friendly with Naish, he goes to live with him and his family in a tenement—and he falls in love with Osa Massen, who is a charming boarder at the Naish household.

"Scotland Yard"

When a notorious gentleman burglar goes in for stealing a face that belongs to a missing banker, he finds that the banker's wife has a fatal fascination for him. The bank itself is quite a temptatian, and the brain-whirling international intrigue that accompanies it is almost more than he can handle—and it makes for gasps, laughs and thrills.

It happens in "Scotland Yard," the latest streamlined mystery from 20th Century-Fox which features Nancy Kelly, Edmund Gwenn and John Loder and is due Wednesday, March 11, at the Palace Theatre.

Our American banking system is often referred to as a "dual system" because it is composed both of Federal-chartered and state-chartered banks. The state and national systems are under separate controls, but each is operated for the best interests of the public. This principle of optional charter is in keeping with the American traditions of free enterprise. Our bank favors this dual system because of the friendly competition it promotes in the cause of better bank management, and because it tends to prevent the centralizing of banking control at any one all-powerful point.

up for the title a year ago and this year knocked off the defending champions.

As bad as the accident toll is, more people are run down by gossip than by automobiles.

March came in Sunday like a lamb and has been like a lamb ever since. For mild weather (unless things change during the remainder) this winter is going to go down on the records as a standout.

Social tact, I've been told, is making your company feel at home, even though you really wish they were.

If you haven't already done so, it will be well worth your time to drive around and see the lighted American flag over the front entrance of St. Mary's Catholic church. The idea, I understand, was conceived by Fr. John Collins, the builder was Floyd Hull. The flag is 3x6 feet in size, containing around 150 Christmas tree lights. Mounted above the flag is a cross lighted in red. From standpoint of patriotic significance and workmanship alike, it is outstanding.

Little Johnny swallowed a dime, so the doctor gave him a dose of castor oil and told the nurse to watch for results. When the doctor called in the morning and asked how Johnny was, she replied: "No change."

Instead of Beaver Island residents being isolated as remarks in this column a week ago might have indicated, I find that regular mail, freight and passenger service is being maintained between the mainland and the island via Northport. Capt. Ernest Smith, I am told, has made regular trips with the tug Bonnie from Northport to Beaver Island head since Charlevoix harbor entrance became ice-locked two weeks ago.

Enraged church member: "Why don't you arrest that nudist colony that is disgracing this neighborhood?"

Sheriff: "I would, but it's awful hard to get anything on them."

And in closing it might be well to remember that too many people itch for what they want without scratching for it.

QUARTETS TO SING AT TRAVERSE CITY MEET

Park Place Hotel Scene of Barbershop Harmony March 14

Traverse City will go back to the turn of the century for a night on March 14, when 20 or more of the finest male quartets in Michigan gather at the Park Place hotel for a parade of quartets and an evening of harmonizing, as guests of the Traverse City Four, one of the outstanding quartets of that city.

The Traverse City chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America is sponsoring the event. Invitations have been extended to every chapter in Michigan by Harold Gray, chairman of the event.

Local singers who plan to attend include Dr. D. C. Nettleton, Dr. G. B. Saltonstall, Charles A. Hamlin, Bob Miles, and possibly L. W. Nicholson, Glenroy Ikens, and many others.

CONTRACTING FOR 1942 PICKLE ACREAGE BEGUN

Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Co. Offers Price Increase, Bonus

Contracting of pickle acreage throughout northern Michigan for the 1942 season is now under way by the Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Co., owned and operated by A. J. Stelter, this city.

With prices offered farmers greatly increased over 1941, then highest in 11 years, a record acreage is anticipated for the 1942 season. Price increases over last year range from 65c per hundred pounds down to 10c, depending on the grade, at salting and receiving stations, and an added 25c bonus is offered for contract of one-half acre or more signed before March 15th.

The company last season gave a bonus in free sugar to its growers, distributing 14,988 pounds valued at $899.29. However, rationing of sugar has prohibited such a bonus this year, resulting in substitution of a cash offer.

The Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Co. operates stations at Alden, Boyne City, Brutus, Central Lake, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Gaylord, Mancelona and Petoskey, with headquarters in Charlevoix. It provides one of the most important "cash crops" for northern Michigan farmers.

KIWANIS NOTES

To support the Boy Scout committee of the Charlevoix Kiwanis club in its money raising campaign, which has just been started in this city, George Olmsted, president of the Scenic Trails Council of the Boy Scouts of America, outlined the work and achievements of the council, the Boy Scouts and their supporters, at a meeting of the club held Tuesday evening at the I.O.O.F. hall.

The district comprises the territory extending from Cadillac on the south, to the Straits of Mackinaw on the north; and from Manistee to Cheboygan. The organization has duly elected officers, scout masters and assistants, all of whom serve without financial compensation.

The council employs a highly trained paid executive, and provides him with an office and office help; which is necessary to keep scouting functioning, study its problems, conduct Courts of Honor, first aid contests and a host of scout activities.

Mr. Olmstead said that all supporters of scouting should be proud of the statement of Judge Parm C. Gilbert to the effect that he, in over eighteen years of service on the bench, had not been required to pass sentence on a man, who in his youth, had been a scout. Also, that many times scouting saves the lad who is just "going across the tracks" and starts him on the road to a life of valuable service to himself and his community.

All who contribute to the work of the Scenic Trails Council will have the fine satisfaction of knowing that each is helping the 1750 boys who comprise the district, to a better understanding of the duties of citizenship, to be a help to themselves and their neighbors, and to possess a finer knowledge of the principles upon which the liberty of our America is founded.

The club will send a boy to Wolverine Boys' State, to be held in Lansing, June 18-26.

Guests of the meeting in addition to the speaker were, Scoutmaster Elmer D. (Pat) Hawley, Judge John C. Shaffer of Gladwin and Hugh J. Johnston of Traverse City.

COUNTIES FACE CUTS IN HIGHWAY BUDGETS

Car, Tire Rationing Decreases Tax Revenue 20% in January

At a meeting of the Michigan Association of Road Commissioners and Engineers on February 19 at Ann Arbor, stress was laid on the curtailment of operations of the 83 counties of Michigan due to the reduction of funds from the weight and gas taxes which are the sole producers of revenue for highway purposes which was brought on by the rationing of tires and automobiles.

Since that time Cheboygan county has drastically cut its operating program, cutting its snow removal entirely off the McNitt system which included 459 of its 909 miles. Later in the week Hillsdale county went on half time to forestall complete stoppage of operations later.

During the meeting at Ann Arbor on the 19th the secretary of state's office announced that gas tax collections were off 20% for the month of January with the rationing only beginning to take effect, the inference was left that more drastic curtailment would be necessary before June 1st.

The tone of the entire conference was that very drastic retrenching by the county road commissions of Michigan would be necessary to permit operation during the year with emphasis on the elimination of new construction entirely.

The only areas escaping the axe were the so-called access roads to vital defense industries.

Township Caucus for the Township of Charlevoix, Charlevoix county, will be held at the Town Hall, Thursday, March 12, at 2 p. m. for the purpose of nominating township officers for the coming year and term required by law, and for the transaction of such business as may legally come before the meeting. OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Fire Prevention Campaign Now in Progress Throughout the County

The first week of March has been designated as Fire Prevention week. In Charlevoix county, William C. Palmer, commissioner of schools, is taking the leading role in this program. Through the schools it is hoped to have a report on every farm home and other farm buildings. These little reports are developed for the purpose of calling the people's attention to the necessity of making a check on all fire hazards with the hope that the loss from fires will be materially decreased.

Statistics clearly prove that agriculture is our most hazardous industry. In the year 1939 there were 4,200 accidental deaths in agriculture which is much higher than any other group of industry. By the same token fires connected with agriculture were very numerous. It is estimated that over $100,000,000.00 of property damage is on American farms. Furthermore, over 95% of the fires are due to carelessness and negligence.

The Charlevoix county war board, who supervises this farm fire prevention program, recommends that every farmer cooperate by making a survey of their farm buildings. Certainly many safeguards can be taken to avoid losses from fire. Check over the places in and about the farm where fire hazards exist. Particularly check over the heating apparatus as we have twice as many fires in the winter time as we have in the summer months and it must be due to the heating plants.

Series of 4 Dairy Feeding Meetings Called for March 5-6

Dairymen throughout the county will be pleased with the announcement that the services of Jim Hays, dairy specialist, have been secured for four meetings on Thursday and Friday, March 5-6. Jim Hayes has a national reputation in his particular field. Local folks who have heard Jim Hays are always pleased to attend any of his meetings. He has the happy faculty of combining wit and humor with his subject matter in such a way that two hours time seems only minutes.

Following are the four timely dairy discussions, all starting on war time:

Thursday afternoon, March 5—2:00, Barnard Grange hall.

Thursday night, March 5—8:00, East Jordan high school.

Friday forenoon, March 6—10:00—Boyne River Grange hall.

Friday afternoon, March 6—2:00, Boyne City public library.

These meetings have been arranged to assist dairymen in meeting the new production goals for 1942. An increase in milk production is urged in the "food for freedom" program sponsored by the Charlevoix County War Board. Many suggestions and recommendations will be given by Jim Hays to help dairymen meet our government's plea for production. For maximum profit each dairyman must know the short cuts to dairy profits. Nothing more need be said, those of you that have heard Jim Hays will want to hear him again and those of you who have not had this opportunity should take advantage of this chance. Attend your nearest meeting and bring in your friends and neighbors.

Banquet for Cotton Mattress Community Leaders Completes Project

The cotton mattress and comforter project started here a year ago has now been completed and the results indicate very clearly the size of the program and its value to the many communities throughout the county. All community leaders were invited to attend a banquet at the Maple Grove grange last Thursday night. After this delicious meal the final report showing the number of mattresses and comforters completed was given by the county agent.

A total of 966 mattresses and 909 comforters were made in the 15 different communities. A careful analysis reveals the fact that 591 different families made one or more mattresses which definitely indicates the number of different folks who benefited by this program. Two carloads of cotton were used in the project and not a single pound is left over. Three communities in the county made 100 or more mattresses. Boyne River Grange has the record for the most made—167 in all, followed by Horton Bay with 102 and Beaver Island with 100. Great credit in this program goes to the local community leaders who supervised the activity in their community and who spent, in some cases, several weeks of effort. When one stops to consider that it usually took two people two days to make a mattress one can begin to realize the number of days effort devoted to this project thruout the county.

Card of Thanks

The kindness and sympathy of neighbors and friends in our recent sorrow will always remain with us a precious memory. Our sincere thanks and gratitude for all those comforting acts. Edward Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wilson.—Adv. 9t1.

GOVERNOR SIGNS 22 MEASURES INTO LAW

Raise Unemployment Benefit Maximum $20 for 20 Weeks

Governor Van Wagoner this week completed the signing of 22 measures passed by the recent special war session of the legislature and declared the non-political cooperation of all elements of the state government had set a record for which "the citizens of Michigan can be proud."

Major war acts of the sessions were the liberalization of unemployment compensation payments to provide a maximum of $20 for 20 weeks for persons who lost their jobs in the war transition period, and increased allotments for aged persons and mothers with dependent children, to meet higher living costs.

Other war acts will attract private capital for defense housing, prevent slum housing around defense plants, and permit Detroit busses to carry workers to the Willow Run war plant.

Other measures allow county boards of supervisors to provide fire protection in rural areas; authorize use of tax-delinquent lands for defense purposes; permit the closing of estates in which foreign heirs are involved, and allow bar examinations for law students who are called into the armed forces before completing their courses.

Other acts make it a felony to steal an airplane; permit townships to combine funds for fire protection; allow school board elections in districts consolidated in defense areas; permit the State Department of Health to continue free distribution of anti-toxins; permit better control of venereal disease, and provide for recording of unregisered births, to help persons who must have such certificates to get war jobs.

Tax inequalities for auto dealers whose stock is "frozen" by federal order are relieved; civil service payroll adjustments are provided for. Other acts permit condemnation of flight-strips for airplanes along highways; save steel by permitting sale of farm tractors without guard shields over wheels; amend the homestead act to aid army draftees; correct the description of a parcel of land being sold by the state, and repeal the camp doe law.

The amount of United States Government Bonds held by the life insurance companies already exceeds the total financing aid secured by the government under the first and second Liberty Loan issues of World War I.

TEMPERANCE LESSON FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Quarterly Lesson Will be Given Next Sunday, March 8

The quarterly temperance lesson will be taught next Sunday in all local church schools, using the international lesson topics. "The drinker's reasons for using alcoholic beverages" is the title for March 8.

Those responsible for temperance education in Charlevoix church schools will emphasize this year not only the effects of beverage alcohol on the body and health, but also the wastefulness of using labor, manufacturing and transportation facilities in producing enormous quantities of an unnecessary and harmful commodity in times like these.

Marion Township Caucus

Township caucus for the township of Marion, Charlevoix county, will be held at the Town Hall, Monday, March 16, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of nominating township officers for the coming year and term required by law, and for the transaction of such other business as may legally come before the meeting. REGION HAS MOST SEVERE BLIZZARD

CHARLEVOIX ISOLATED FOR NEARLY TWO DAYS

Schools Closed Monday, Train Service Cancelled Two Days; Highways Opened After Battle

Cleaning-up operations were started Tuesday by residents of Charlevoix and northern Michigan following abatement of a 36-hour March blizzard termed the most severe in six years and by far worst of the present winter.

A 55-mile wind Monday whipped falling snow into mountainous drifts, reduced visibility to zero, stopped traffic of all kinds. Schools, dismissed Monday, reopened Tuesday with light attendance. With country roads impassable, normal attendance has not yet been reached.

Trains on the Pere Marquette were cancelled Monday and Tuesday, returning to schedule Wednesday afternoon. A snowplow from Traverse City reached Charlevoix late Tuesday afternoon after heavy going all the way.

U.S.31 between Charlevoix and Petoskey was opened Tuesday afternoon following a 20-hour battle. Martin's hill, Burns' hill and curve in front of the Srigley farm, all plugged from bank to bank, presented serious problems and Wednesday were open only for one-way traffic. Hand shoveling was necessary at these points due to the heavily packed snow. Plows starting south on U.S.31 late Tuesday afternoon cleared this section during the night. First main highway opened in this area was M-66, from East Jordan to Charlevoix. County and township highways are nearly all impassable as this edition goes to press.

Highway crews were hampered in many places by automobiles abandoned by their owners late Sunday night and early Monday morning. With exception of a few hours Monday morning, city streets were open to automobile traffic during the storm.

Property damage, expected to be heavy from the high wind, was apparently confined to a few damaged roofs. Local motorists marooned at southern Michigan points over the week end, reported the storm general throughout Michigan.

CHARLEVOIX-DETROIT CLUB PARTY PLANNED

Counties open to trapping are in a solid block covering the eastern and central parts of the lower peninsula north of Clare. There will be no beaver trapping in the upper peninsula, and the entire state is closed to the trapping of otter.

Nearly 2,500 trappers participated in the $185,000 harvest of beaver pelts taken last season, however, 5,324 came from the upper peninsula.

TUG BONNIE DAMAGED IN ICE FLOE FRIDAY

Repairs Being Made Here to Charlevoix-Island Mail Boat

Repairs are being made at Hamilton & Son Boat Yard to a bent wheel and shaft on the fish tug, Bonnie, operated by Capt. Ernest Smith on the Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail route.

The damage occurred Friday night when the boat was being worked through heavy ice after leaving the island for Northport. The boat was brought to Charlevoix, due to the damage, the trip requiring 12 hours because of necessity to reduce speed. Charlevoix coast guards broke a path for the tug through ice outside the pierheads and through Round lake harbor.

It was expected the boat would be in service again either Wednesday or Thursday, providing ice conditions do not prevent passage into Lake Michigan.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By KEN USHER

In case you aren't keeping track, it's only 44 days before the trout fishing season opens.

I can think of nothing more timely at the present time than some comment regarding rumor. Charlevoix and northern Michigan is and has been flooded with the wierdest, wildest sort of stories about the capture at various points of enemy agents bent upon sabotage. Typical examples are the one about the German supposed to have fired the East Jordan Canning Co. warehouse and some building or other at Ellsworth; about a man taken in Charlevoix who had in his possession photographs of the Soo locks and other northern military areas; the story about a prominent Walloon Lake resorter who is supposed to have dropped mink afflicted with rabies from an airplane throughout this area, thus starting the current rabies epidemic among dogs. I can say to you readers truthfully, that after careful and painstaking investigation of these stories through law enforcement agencies, I find there is not a single, solitary bit of truth in any of them. The advice of law enforcement officials is that when any person observes individuals or incidents of auspicious nature, they should report the same to their local or county police officers. Let these agencies that are prepared to investigate such things, do the investigating. Keep quiet about such suspicions lest the resultant discussion tip off the culprits, if they be such. Rumor, unreliable and untrue, only serves to undermine the public morale and, in many instances, innocent persons are subjected to unjust persecution, from which they are unable to defend themselves.

It's a good thing we've got used to seeing so many women and girls go bare-legged because after April 1 it's Rayon—or else.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Life is going on just the same in Michigan. People still eat, drink, wear clothes, and carry on their daily existence as nearly as possible to former habits.

And yet life today in Michigan small cities and towns is vastly different than what it was just 95 days ago.

Many changes have taken place since Pearl Harbor.

More changes are coming, inevitably, like spring and summer and fall.

Michigan is awakening to the realities of 1942. Most of these realities are not pleasant. Some may be blessings in disguise.

Since Pearl Harbor, just 95 days ago, we Americans have been moving at a faster pace than at any time in 166 years. History has been on the run. And we have been hurrying to keep up with it.

Gone is the illusion of isolation. Vanishing by degrees are illusions that we cannot lose the war, that we are invulnerable against attack, that we will fight best when we are optimistic, that we can beat the Axis on a 40-hour week, that we can win somehow without using our best men in government regardless of party, that lease-lend of arms will suffice without American men to arm them, that the war can be done by defense instead of offense.

We realize that we now face our greatest crisis in 166 years—probably in the next six to eight months.

Gone is the illusion that Michigan and Malaya have little in common.

Who thought, prior to Pearl Harbor, that automobiles and rubber tires would be rationed within 95 days? What had South Sea islands to do with the American way of life, anyway?

It all seemed far-fetched, didn't it?

And yet we know today that we must make our present family automobile do for many years to

TURKEY RANGES AND SANITATION

Four Important Points for Good Birds.

By GEORGE C. CRANDALL
(Assistant Poultry Husbandman, New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station.)

Sanitation on the turkey range is an important point in good management of growing poults. Here are four points vital to good range conditions. Check your turkey range now to see if it comes up to the desired standards.

First, the range area should not have been used by other poultry for at least two years. The land should not be contaminated by drainage water or poultry manure, and should be well drained and free from swampy areas.

Second, all feed hoppers should be so constructed as to exclude the droppings of the turkeys. The feed hoppers should be moved at least once a week to a clean place on the range. This helps to maintain good range conditions and avoids bare spots on the range.

Third, watering equipment should be so constructed or protected so that the dropping or foreign matter cannot contaminate the water. If the water equipment is stationary, wire platforms will keep the area around them dry and sanitary. Water pans or troughs should be scrubbed with a brush once daily. Disinfecting all water equipment at regular intervals is desirable. If the equipment is not stationary, it should be moved weekly to dry, clean places on the range.

Fourth, if the turkeys are allowed an open roosts on the range, this roosting area should be fenced separate from the range and so placed that the drainage from the roosting pens does not contaminate the range. The turkeys should be driven from the roosting area early in the morning and not allowed access to them until roosting time at night.

Tests With Homemade Paint Are Suggested

Many farmers are using a homemade paint of mortar coloring and used motor oil on barns and outbuildings. Some get good results, but others do not, says Howard M. Ellis, extension agricultural engineer. He suggests that some "experimenting" be done.

"Ordinarily," Ellis says, "from three-fourths to one pound of brick red mortar coloring will be required for each gallon of used oil. The blacker the oil, the more coloring it will require. Determine the proper mix as follows: Divide one pound of red mortar coloring into four parts. Mix in two parts (one-half pound) of the coloring, slowly, while the oil is being stirred. Paint a small section on the back of the building to be painted. Add another fourth of the mortar coloring to the original mixture and paint a second section beside the first. Repeat with the last fourth."

Allow the oil to penetrate the wood for a time, inspect and then decide which mix you desire.

Ellis says the homemade paint can be applied with an old orchard sprayer or with whitewash brushes. Mortar coloring is about six cents per pound at hardware stores. Crankcase drainings may be obtained free from some filling stations.

Advises Rest for Cows After Every Lactation

A dairy cow that is allowed a rest period after each lactation will produce from 5 to 10 per cent more milk annually than a cow that is milked continuously, says Dr. George E. Taylor, extension dairyman at the New Jersey college of agriculture, Rutgers university.

There are several reasons why this is true," he says. "During peak production, cows secrete more nutriments than they are able to assimilate from the feed consumed, thus depleting the body reserve. By storing a reserve of fat and minerals, especially calcium and phosphorus, in the body before freshening they are able to maintain a higher level of production following calving. The udder also undergoes a change during the dry period, resulting in a recuperation of the glandular milk secreting tissue.

"Research workers have shown that production during the subsequent lactation increases with a lengthening of the dry period.

Handling Hay

A method of handling hay which is gaining in popularity with farmers, is what they call the automotive sweep or buck rake. These sweeps or rakes are mounted on tractors, old trucks, or old automobiles and are used to pick the hay up out of the windrow and transport it to the barn, baler, or stack. With a large increase in hay acreage during the last few years, many farmers find it necessary to change meth[illegible]

USDA Purchases Cheese On Wisconsin Exchange

Purchases of cheese under the Food-for-Defense program are in the future, to be made on the exchange at Plymouth, Wis., according to an announcement by the department of agriculture. The new method follows the invitation of the Wisconsin Cheese exchange to use its facilities. The present method of buying cheese through the acceptance of bids from manufacturers and others will be continued in addition to purchasing on the exchange.

Department officials said that by buying cheese on the exchange to supplement the present bid method, purchase operations should be more directly reflected in cheese market prices with increased benefits to milk producers. Exchange officials have indicated that trading rules would be modified to permit buying in accordance with the department's usual specifications.

Between March 15, when buying operations under the Food-for-Defense program began, and July 16 the department bought over 46,760,000 pounds of cheese. Most of the purchases have been of large styles of cheese (cheddars and twins) which are preferred for export. Recent prices paid at midwestern points have been between 22 and 23 cents per pound, including differentials of age of cheese and kind of pack. Some daisies, or small styles of cheese, have been bought previously, with the usual trade price differential of one-half cent per pound over large styles, in order to make it possible for the industry to utilize all of its cheese-making facilities.

Manufacturers are now urged by the department of agriculture to shift from the manufacture of daisies to large styles of cheese in order to meet export requirements more adequately. Cheese buying operations of the department will continue to be concentrated on the large styles.

Cheese and other foodstuffs bought in the department's program can be used for domestic distribution to public aid families and for school lunches, to meet requirements for the Red Cross for shipment to war refugee areas, for transfer to other countries under the terms of the Lend-Lease act.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

Keep Pigs Clean for High Profit

A well-planned reception for newborn pigs often marks the difference between loss and profit, V. A. Freeman of the Michigan State college animal husbandry department warns. Not only should the farrowing pen be scrubbed and disinfected, he advises, but the sow as well should be scrubbed with soap and water just previous to placing her in the clean pen.

Such precautions, and using pasture that has been rotated to keep pigs from ground that has not been plowed since last used for hog pasture, are the first essentials for raising pigs free from round worms and pinworms.

Placing sows in their individual farrowing pens on the 110th day after breeding, usually gives them time to get acquainted with their quarters and feel at home before the restlessness that precedes farrowing. Gradually reduce the feed allowance by one-half and include more laxative feeds as bran and less heavy grain like corn. A small handful of epsom salts may be put in the feed if the sow is constipated.

The pen must be warm if the weather is cold. Electric brooders made from a large light bulb and reflector one foot above the floor, in a corner of the nest is a great help. In extreme weather or with a restless sow, the pigs may be placed in a lined box as soon as they come. They should be allowed to nurse within the first hour and be returned at least within each three hours. Quiet sows in normal weather are best left alone and nervous sows that try to get up every time you attempt to look after the pigs may save many pigs if left alone.

Give luke-warm water only during the first day after farrowing. Feed lightly with bulky feeds like bran and ground alfalfa the next day. Give water, as much and as often as they want it. Increase the feed gradually, taking 5 to 7 days to get the sow back to what was a normal feed before farrowing. Increase the feed thereafter according to the needs of the pigs. It is a good plan to self-feed sows with 6 or more pigs after they are 2 weeks old.

Over 3,000 Boys and Girls Hear Second Program on Conservation

During the past several days, Roy Skog, assistant state extension forester, gave an illustrated talk on forestry to eighteen northern Michigan schools. These talks are sponsored by the 4-H conservation clubs in each of these schools. Mr. Skog states that for the past several years 4-H clubs and schools of northern Michigan have done an excellent job in forest conservation education through their school forest program, which includes tree planting, forest seed bed planting, log scaling, timber estimating, leaf and wood study, and forest fire fighting. We need only review the world wide changes taking place today with respect to the uses of wood to realize the importance of this youth program. The youth of today will be the guardians of our forests tomorrow—forests that will become more than ever before an important part of our future economy.

Prior to the outbreak of the present war 50% of all the wood used in the manufacture of paper in United States was imported, either as pulp or cordwood unpulped. About 25% of our imports came from the Scandinavian countries, a source now cut off because of the war. Canada still supplies us much pulp but that supply may decrease because Canadian labor is needed for the armed forces and war industry. The loss of pulpwood imports means that this country will have to depend more and more on our own forests to supply our pulp wood needs. Already we have seen a great increase in the cutting of spruce, balsam, and poplar for pulp in Michigan.

Before the war started some of the oldest and finest managed forests in the world were in Germany, Austria, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Norway and Finland. Germany would find it difficult to wage an effective war today were it not for the fact that she now controls these tremendous wood resources. They are being heavily over-cut to produce such important products as explosives, charcoal for gas masks, high-test aviation gasoline, and lumber for knock-down bridges for fast movement of troops. In Sweden, and it is believed that also in Germany, considerable quantities of wood are being treated to produce a form of sugar used for cattle feed. Sweden alone has 75,000 automobiles with wood or charcoal burning attachments that generate a combustible gas to run the motor.

It should be kept in mind that plastics, charcoal, chemicals, fiberboard, paper, rayon and other wood products can be processed from trees of small size such as poplar, jack pine, balsam and spruce which grow abundantly in northern Michigan. It does not take large trees of big diameter and great height to produce these products. They can be made from any tree that produces usable cellulose fiber and lignin. This means that forest areas that some of us regard as more or less worthless, such as the jack pine and poplar, some day will become of considerable importance. In fact, some day, although, perhaps, not for several hundred years, when our non-renewable resources of oil, iron, coal, copper, etc. become scarce we may have to depend largely on forests to produce our motor fuels, building materials, and industrial and domestic articles of all kinds.

The term "the smoke lamp is lit" aboard one of Uncle Sam's ships means the sailors are permitted to smoke. In old days, before matches were invented, an actual oil lamp was lighted to provide the crew with a flame from which to light pipes and cigarettes. Today, the smoking lamp exists in a figurative sense only, but the name still survives. The U. S. sailor can buy his cigarettes at approximately half price. The "lamp" is always out when taking on oil or ammunition.

Group life insurance, although only 33 years old, now insures 12,500,000 workers of the U. S. A. in 32,800 different companies or employee groups, giving them an average protection of $1,500 from this source alone, in addition to the protection they have from their ordinary or industrial insurance.

The Service Schools of the U. S. Navy, where sailors are trained, are divided into three classifications. Class A schools offer elementary instruction in certain specialties to recruits; Class B supplement the training afloat by giving more advanced instruction in certain specialties to selected, experienced enlisted men; and Class C schools give advanced instruction in certain subjects not normally a part of shipboard teaching.

According to an R. L. Polk directory for 1882, 2,468 vessels sailing from the port of Muskegon handled 550,000,000 board feet of timber in that year, and Muskegon sawmills in that heyday of Michigan's "pineries" could cut 750,000,000 feet annually. Conservation department records show a 1940 production of only 25,000,000 feet of white pine in the entire state, and a state-wide production of lumber from all kinds of trees of 435,000,000 board feet for the year.

C. L. Conser has sold out stock of his notion store to Bergy Brothers of Boyne City, who are removing stock to their store.

Wednesday morning a horse drawing a load of wood slipped and fell on the ice hummock at the south approach to the swing bridge. The rig was going south, and absence of snow on the bridge roadway caused the sleigh to stick and the horse to slip. Several bystanders got the animal to its feet and on the way again . . . Seems as though someone should see to it that the bridge roadways are covered with snow. A man, a shovel and few minutes time would do it.

Miss Anna Wagnaar arrived Monday from Chicago. She expects to have the Hat Shop open for business the latter part of this week.

Supt. H. A. Craig certainly had a time with the bunch of cut-ups attending our institutions of higher learning. Now it seems they spread limburger cheese on the radiators, for in the high school notes appears an item concerning the visit of "Herr von Limburger" and farther along is a literary gem from which we take the following lines:

"Friends, Freshmen, and Sophomores, lend me your ears,
We came to scrub Limburg, not to spread it.
The evil that things do live after them,
The odor is oft scrubbed up with a mop:

When the radiators were turned on, Limburger melted,
Limburger should be made of sterner stuff—".

We pause to remark that the quality of Limburger is not strained, but moppeth up with soapsups from a pail.

Come and see Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in "Romeo and Juliet," Wednesday, March 14 at the Majestic theatre.

The days of lumbering are not yet over: Several sleigh loads of bill board timber was unloaded at Ellsworth on Monday of this week. . . . E. VanderStreek and H. Polare busy cutting down the shade trees on Rev. Haan's farm north of Atwood . . . M. VanderHeide has been hauling some more logs to Genett's mill at Jangleville . . . Elzinga Bros. have one of the largest skidways of logs ready to cut in the neighborhood. (And a few years later they had to start planting trees again.)

Daily train service was resumed over the Pere Marquette railway line on Friday last, after ten days without a train to Charlevoix. The big snow plow, pushed by two engines, came through just before noon and the track was opened to Petoskey. Thursday of last week, over four thousand pounds of mail was taken from Charlevoix post office to Petoskey by team, and about the same amount brought back.

Silverware and diary of the Rev. Father Pierre, first Jesuit missionary to become a permanent resident of the Straits region, has been presented to the Mackinac Island state park by Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall, daughter of George W. Bell, Cheboygan attorney who executed Father Pierre's will. The priest was in charge of the mission at Mackinac in the days of John Jacob Astor's fur trading operations there.

Benj. Brown and William H. Wallace have purchased the Oscar Mason property, corner Bridge street and Belvedere avenue, and soon will start excavation for construction of a modern oil service station.

The Klooster and Son general store at Ellsworth was entered and robbed of a hundred dollars cash and a quantity of jewelry last Wednesday.

"Harv Hess" must have sent in the Eveline news that week, as we note the following items: Ross Alexander speared a cat fish and two kittens last Thursday . . . The following named officers were not elected at the Eveline township caucus; highway commissioner, Dusty Rhodes; treasurer, Owen Moore Nichols; prohibition officer, Philip McCann; dog catcher, Frank Furter.

Capt. B. L. Gellick of Grand Haven, a former Charlevoix boy, has received the appointment of inspector of steamships, to succeed the late Capt. Robert Reid.

Hooker's garage was packed Monday evening with eager fans on hand to see the boxing show staged by the local American Legion post. Bouts between Gravelin and Dixon, Atchison and Allen won hearty applause.

The Oluf Nordrum residence on Park avenue was badly damaged last Thursday afternoon by a fire which started in the roof and burned through all partitions of the second story.

The old-fashioned native who committed suicide by going over into the Irish settlement and hurrying for the Republican party, has been succeeded by the gent who leaves the garage doors closed while he runs the motor to warm up the car on a frosty morn.

Arthur Bergeon was re-elected to his sixth term as mayor at the spring election, Monday. John Cook is treasurer, Ray Ashdon justice of the peace, William C. Palmer, of Clarion, won office of county school commissioner. A heavy vote of 508 was polled.

Mrs. Willard A. Smith, 77, died Thursday at her home on Park avenue. She had lived in this region since 1866.

Arthur Bergeon was nominated for his twelfth term as mayor at the primary election Monday. Arthur Ranger defeated Clair S. Webster for first ward alderman. Constables are Joe Howard, Hugh Brady and Charles Jefferies. A record vote of 998 was cast.

Boyne City high school defeated Charlevoix 27-12 to annex the Class C title at the district basketball tournament finals here Saturday evening. Ellsworth defeated Alba for the Class D championship.

Norman Ance and Joe Smith, local basketball stars, have been selected on the all-tournament Class C honorary team.

Capt. John Roen and Jack Purves are spending several days in Detroit on business for the Northwestern Sand & Gravel company.

Capt. J. H. Gallagher of Boyne City, and Albon Smith of this city, have gone to Buffalo, N. Y., to purchase a new boat for the Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail contract.

Whoopin' Holler: Miss Tillie Schnitzel is improving since her coasting accident. (Had to knock the tar right out of her to make her a good girl, evidently.)

Oh, to go back to 1932 and buy three pounds of sauerkraut for a dime, two pounds of frankfurts for a quarter!

FIND SUBSTITUTES FOR SWEET TOOTH

* * * * * * * * * *

No use for the cook to shed tears over curtailment of the sugar supply for there are means of using sugar more efficiently and of finding substitutes for soothing the "sweet tooth" that many favor.

Members of the home economics extension staff at Michigan State college endorse the recent suggestions summarized by Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Keep a weather eye out for sugar wastes, is one piece of advice. One of the most obvious wastes is the undissolved sugar in the bottom of a cup of coffee or tea. Others are oversweetened foods, cake failure—or failures of any product containing sugar.

Next, cut down on sugar in least noticeable ways first. Experiment to see if the amount you've been putting on your breakfast cereal or in coffee and tea is a matter of habit—whether you'd be just as happy with half a teaspoonful or so less. Naturally you'll need less sugar on a cereal that is topped with dried fruit.

Try eating fewer rich desserts—fewer pastries and very sweet cakes. Fresh fruits are among the most nutritious and desirable of desserts—and they carry their own sugar. Canned fruits come in the class of not-too-rich desserts. Dried fruits are one of the best sources of natural sugar. Custards and simple puddings are other desserts that use smaller amounts of sugar.

When you sweeten sauces, such as applesauce, put the sugar in at the end of the cooking time. It will take less sugar to get the same sweetness if you don't cook the sugar so long.

Most persons can get along on less sugar and still have nutritious meals that taste good. Sugar supplies food energy in an exceedingly palatable form. Any reduction in sugar can easily be taken care of by increasing quantities of other energy-giving foods in the diet. Other inexpensive energy-giving foods also supply valuable vitamins and minerals. Whole-grain cereals are one such food group. Starchy vegetables and dried fruits are others.

MICHIGAN COUNCIL OF DEFENSE

* * * * * * * * * *

More than 5,000 Michigan business, labor, industrial and medical leaders have been invited to attend an Industrial Protection Institute sponsored by the Michigan Council of Defense at the Masonic Temple, Detroit, March 26, 27 and 28, Lt. Col. Harold A. Furlong, administrator, announced. Purpose of the Institute is to explain the requirements for blackout equipment, camouflage, industrial fire brigades and other protective measures.

James M. Landis, director of the office of civilian defense, high army officers and regional directors of the office of civilian defense are being invited to participate in the program. Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner is among the scheduled speakers, as is Lt. Col. Furlong. Capt. Donald S. Leonard, commander of the citizens' Defense Corps, is supervising the program.

The Victory Garden program for Michigan will have three distinct phases: the family garden, the school garden and the community garden, George Tomlinson, secretary of the agriculture advisory committee of the Michigan Council of Defense, pointed out. Community garden projects will be encouraged for municipalities and neighborhood groups, using vacant plots of land and pooling garden efforts and tools. School gardens will be encouraged for school students on land adjacent to school grounds. Home owners will be asked to plant Victory Gardens.

An educational program will be launched, Tomlinson said, by means of pamphlets and literature and through cooperation of gardening clubs and other organizations, to aid the gardener in growing vegetables and other vital foods.

The farm gardens program will be directed by the U.S.D.A. war board.

A total of 9,464,126 man hours will be required to train the 358,795 men and women needed by the protective services of the Michigan Citizens Defense Corps, according to Lt. Col. Harold A. Furlong, administrator of the Michigan Council of Defense. This estimate is based upon the hours of training necessary to complete the minimum requirements of the 15 protective services in the Defense Corps.

"Some idea of the training job involved is gained from the following comparison," Lt. Col. Furlong added. "Working 40 hours a week (with no vacation), it would take one man 236,603 weeks or 4,550 years to complete the training hours necessary for Michigan's protective services."

If everyone in the family insists upon the usual "two heaping spoonfuls" in every cup of coffee, then mother may not have enough sugar for her baking when the sugar rationing program goes into effect this month, according to Arthur H. Sarvis, state rationing administrator of the Michigan Council of Defense.

Although the original announcement declared that each person would be allowed three-fourth pound of sugar each week, it is possible that this amount will be revised downward to one-half pound.

Simple research reveals that in every three-fourths pound of sugar there are 72 teaspoonfuls, or stating it another way, just 1½ cups. Assuming that there are three persons in the family, and each person uses four teaspoonfuls for coffee and cereal at breakfast, and two more at the evening meal, the total consumption for a week would be 126 spoonfuls. At that rate, mother would have two two cupfuls of sugar for a week's baking of cakes, pies, etc.

And if the OPA decides that one-half pound is enough, well, you figure it out.

DISTRICT HEALTH DEPT.

Proper Nutrition in The Home Vital to Our Defense Program

Homemakers everywhere should if they have not already done so, begin planning now how they can feed their families properly with many articles of diet becoming scarcer all the time. It may be a long time before we here in this district and the surrounding areas begin to feel a real pinch in the scarcity of foodstuffs, and we may never feel it. However, in the light of what has been happening we will be wise to plan now against a food shortage.

We will never go hungry as millions of people do in other countries but with a real food shortage it may take some contriving for each of us to get a diet every day that will give us proper energy, which will build and repair our tissues as we destroy them in our everyday activities and which will protect and regulate our bodies.

A list of foods that a family of five—two adults and three children under twelve—will need to accomplish these things; in other words, what we may call a good diet, follows: Milk—4 or 5 quarts; cream, 1 or 2 cups; potatoes, 8 to 10; green vegetables, one serving; yellow vegetable, one serving; oranges, four, or tomatoes, one quart; fruit, one serving; cereal (whole grain), one serving; whole-wheat bread, one half loaf; white bread, one-half loaf and flour, two cups.

Every week the family should receive in addition to the above foods, the following: eggs, two dozen; a chicken, a quart of canned meat, a pound of fish, a pound of dried beans, one-half pound of pennut butter, two pounds of butter, one-half pound of bacon, one-half pound of lard and four to six cups of sugar. In case meat cannot be obtained, more fish or cheese may be used. Children particularly need protein which is supplied by meat, cheese and eggs.

All of us should study this list of foods and compare it with what we actually eat. The time is coming when we must all eat to get the most good out of our food and not just because the taste appeals to us.

"Nothing But the Truth"

When Bob Hope makes a bet of $10,000 that he can tell the truth for twenty-four hours, you can bet considerably more than the price of admission to the Palace Theatre, that what will follow will be high-speed, gag-glorious comedy.

Hope makes the wager in the new Paramount farce comedy, "Nothing But The Truth," which gambols into the Palace Theatre beginning March 14, co-starring Paulette Goddard, and featuring a comedy cast packed solid with favorite names, including Edward Arnold, Leif Erickson, Helen Vinson, Catharine Doucet, Glenn Anders, Grant Mitchell, Rose Hobart and Willie Best. An added recommendation is the fact that the new laugh opus was directed by Elliott Nugent, comedy-wise director of one of the two previous Hope-Goddard adventures into the laugh sphere, "The Cat and the Canary."

"The Bride Wore Crutches"

According to all advance reports, "The Bride Wore Crutches" is a "must see" entertainment assignment for all movie-goers when it starts its engagement on March 18 at the Palace Theatre. The 20th Century-Fox film's lively story of newspaper reporters and gangsters has won much favorable comment at all previews.

Centering on the experiences of a cub reporter who has the inside track on trouble, "The Bride Wore Crutches" shows how a star newspaper gal risks her pretty neck to save him and help him win his spurs as a real reporter after a series of thrilling episodes. Lovely Lynne Roberts plays the "sob sister" and young Ted North is seen as the fledgling "newshawk."

Edgar ("Slow-Burn") Kennedy is seen as the police captain, Robert Armstrong as gang chieftain, Lionel Stander as mobster, and Richard Lane as the explosive managing editor.

CHALLENGE TO HOME TOWN MERCHANTS

The greatest shortage in the American economic system is rubber. As a result drastic changes in the American mode of living will probably be necessary. Most of Europe has gone back to the "horse and buggy days," except there are few horses and no buggies. The automobile for civilian use is almost non-existent.

In America the automobile greatly changed our living. It helped make cities bigger and small towns smaller, because people thought nothing of going 50 to 100 miles to shop. As automobile use is restricted, the small towns will become more important.

What does this mean to you, Mr. Small Town or Rural Business Man?

Doesn't it suggest that the small town is about to have a rebirth as a trading center, and in this change isn't there opportunity with a capital "O"? For these people "who have thought nothing of going 50 to 100 miles to shop" are going to think more about the wear and tear on their automobile tires. They are going to begin to think more about their shopping nearer home.

But do not think, Mr. Merchant, that people are going to be forced to trade with you because you are located where you are. It is not going to be as easy as that to get back the trade that has been going away.

The merchants in the cities aren't going to surrender that trade without a fight. They are going to bring their advertising message into your community and they are going to use every method they can—including perhaps the development of the mail order business—to hold on to that trade.

So you, Mr. Home Merchant, had better be stirring yourself right now before they get the jump on you.

Preaching the doctrine of "trade at home" isn't enough. Urging people to support "home enterprise" isn't enough. You have got to show them why trading at home means money in their pockets. That they can buy as good quality at home as elsewhere.

This car and tire crisis offers an opportunity for showing them. What are you going to do about it? And when?

The Courier can help you reach the people, no matter where your store is located in this county. You will always find us willing and ready to work for you as your salesman.—Marshfield Mail.

TELEPHONE RATES TO BE REDUCED APRIL 1

Charlevoix Exchange Effected by Michigan Bell Reduction

The Michigan Bell Telephone company announced today that Charlevoix is among 88 exchanges where local service rates will be reduced as a result of a uniform rate schedule which goes into effect with billing dates beginning April 1 at its exchanges of less than 10,000 main telephone stations.

C. L. Johnson, manager for the company, said that four-party residence rates here will be reduced 25 cents a month while switching charges for business and residence service stations will be cut eight cents a month each.

Johnson said that local service charges of about 28,000 customers in the 88 exchanges will be reduced a total of $134,000 a year as a result of the rate adjustment. The uniform schedule is contained in a recent order of the Michigan Public Service Commission growing out of negotiations with the company.

In effect, the order sets the maximum rates for exchanges of comparable size, Johnson said. It classifies exchanges of less than 10,000 main stations into seven groups and establishes maximum rates for various types of services in each group.

The seven groups are: Those with 100 or less main stations; 101 to 400 main stations; 401 to 800 (Charlevoix); 801 to 1,600; 1,601 to 3,000; 3,001 to 6,000; and 6,001 to 10,000 main stations.

Europe Turns to Wood Gas for Cars

Various Types of Choppers Devised to Cut Fuel.

VIENNA.—Center of interest to tens of thousands of visitors to the Vienna trade fair this fall was a wood chopper, which within the next few months may be a common sight in many parts of Europe.

The wood chopper, one of several types exhibited at the fair, is the chief part of the equipment of gas-wood filling stations for trucks and tractors now being constructed along many of the Old world's highways.

With the assistance and under the supervision of the German government, 700 such stations have been established and plans approved for 1,500 others.

Under ideal conditions this wood chopper hacks almost 300 cubic feet of cord wood an hour into small chunks and blocks which wood-gas generators require as fuel.

For pleasure cars it is not likely that either wood or coal gas will ever prove a satisfactory substitute for gasoline. For utility vehicles and stationary motors, however, a new adapted type motor with its own wood, coal or peat gas-generator appears to have a bright future.

To this potential market nearly 40 German firms exhibited at the Vienna fair one or more machines or spare parts which have passed the efficiency tests required by the government before any motor or vehicle can be offered to the public.

In Greater Germany and those parts of Europe now occupied by the German army, according to an official announcement, approximately 150,000 generator-gas trucks are in service. Through their use Germany saves each month more than 11,000,000 gallons of gasoline for military purposes. In some of these trucks coal or peat is the generator's fuel, in others it is wood.

'Flying Harvest Hand' Now Preps for Army Role

PASCO, WASH.—George W. Shoemaker, the "Flying Harvest Hand" of eastern Washington's wheatfields, has discovered a unique way of earning his commercial flying license.

He flies over huge tracts of wheat, searching for overlooked clusters of sacked wheat, and tells the farmers where to find them. This year the demand for his services rose a notch, because wheat had grown unusually high and therefore was being topped high. This makes it difficult to spot the sacks from the ground.

Because he doesn't have a commercial license, Shoemaker is paid by farmers to walk around the field looking for sacked wheat. He doesn't find any, but he gets paid for it—whereupon, he climbs into a rented plane and finds the sacked wheat from the air.

Shoemaker's income pays for the rent of the plane, but he gets his hours in the air. The farmer is happy; he gets his lost wheat.

The 23-year-old pilot hopes to become an instructor, then present himself to the army air corps or the Royal Canadian air force.

French Show Germans What Red Tape Really Is

LONDON.—French civil servants are competing with one another to "misdirect orders, muddle commands, and lose instructions," a newspaper in German - occupied Paris complained in an article quoted by the British Broadcasting corporation.

The newspaper described the methods as a "new kind of sabotage" and said they were being employed by all civil servants, "high and low alike."

"The chaos which results is caused by the fact that these people (civil servants) are Marxists, De Gaullists, democrats or Christians influenced by Jews—or all these things at once," the newspaper said.

The British Broadcasting corporation did not name the newspaper.

Britain Bans Hot Water In Government Buildings

LONDON.—Whitehall, whose civil servants are the most carefully protected workers in Britain, may soon become known as the Street of Dirty Faces as the result of a new government order.

The edict has gone out that there will be no hot water in government offices this winter. The new rule applies to 400,000 civil servants in 18,000 government buildings throughout the country.

Night workers are exempt from this Spartan order. Stokers have been instructed by the office of works to supply warm water—of a strictly limited temperature.

Family Ties of These Twins Are Numbered

KANSAS CITY, KAN.—It's easy for Mrs. N. Emerson Paton to remember her brother and sister.

The brother, Franklin C. Britt, lives at 1788 Holt avenue, Los Angeles; the sister, Mrs. J. M. Clark, 1788 Cambridge street, Baltimore.

Their phone numbers? Why, 1788, of course.

FARM TOPICS

SOIL ELEMENTS VITAL FACTOR

For Fertile Farm Lands And Future Yield.

By DR. W. A. ALBRECHT
(Department of Soils, University Of Missouri.)

If we Americans paid as much attention to our soils as we do to our cars or radios, the matter of soil fertility would not be the mystic business we often think it is.

It is high time we learned a little about soil chemistry — at least enough so that chemical terms such as calcium, nitrogen, phosphorus and potash are no more difficult to comprehend than other terms like carburetor, differential, superhetrodyne, static, radio beam.

There is nothing really mysterious about the elements which combine to promote soil fertility.

Calcium, or lime, that serves as part of the growing plant's protein-making activity and is needed so badly by most soils before legumes can be grown, is so common it ought to be a household word on every American farm.

Nitrogen, the distinguishing element in protein for which all forms of life struggle, is getting scarcer in our soils and should be more fully appreciated for its elusiveness. Phosphorus, which enters into combination with nitrogen to make protein, the secret stuff of life, growth and reproduction, must likewise be added to other items about which we must familiarize ourselves further.

Phosphorus is likewise becoming more deficient in our soils in spite of the fact that this country has more and larger deposits of phosphatic material than any other in the world. We must learn more, too, about potash which is the balance wheel that promotes healthy growth, enables the growing plant better to use the nitrogen supply and develop resistance to disease. Like the others, potash has been steadily drained out of our soils.

It is fitting that all of us should make closer acquaintance with the foundations of our farm crops and, in turn, the foundation of our very bodies—namely, the soil itself and the elements which make it productive.

Word from England states that the 1941 Christmas seal sale went over the top, despite more than two years of war. Dr. Harley Williams, secretary general of the England National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, declared that the public's support of this past Christmas seal sale was "an improvement on 1940, which again was an improvement on anything we had done previously."

Fear that crowded living conditions, mounting prices of necessities, increased mental, emotional and physical strain—inevitable by-products of war—would be factors dangerously favorable to the increase and spread of tuberculosis, was expressed recently by Kendall Emerson, M. D., managing director of the NTA.

FEWER CARS CARRIED STRAITS OF MACKINAC

Curtailment In Car Driving Reflected by Decrease

Although still heavier than a year ago, traffic across the Straits of Mackinac is beginning to reflect a general decrease in driving, it was indicated this week by figures released by the state highway department.

From an increase of 13.4 per cent registered in the number of vehicles transported by the state-operated ferry fleet in January over the corresponding month last year, figures dropped to a gain of 4 per cent for February over February of 1941.

This would indicate, highway officials believed, that the trend of curtailed driving brought about by rationing of tires and halt in automobile production has already begun.

For the first two months of 1942 total number of vehicles transported across the Straits numbered 12,709 as compared with 11,670, or an increase of 8.9 per cent.

In January of this year, 6,926 vehicles were transported as compared with 6,110, an increase of 816, while February figures were 5,783 as compared with 5,560 last year, an increase of only 223 vehicles.

Narrow escape of the pretty "White Angel" of China. How the refugee girl, who became a virtual Goddess to the Chinese by nursing their wounds, was saved by the talking eyes of a paralyzed old man. Read of her strange, spectacular career in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

The mistaken belief that tuberculosis can be inherited still tortures some people. But, tuberculosis is caused by a germ. Every person having the disease has "caught it" from someone else who had it.

SEEKING VOLUNTEERS FIGHT FOREST FIRES

Registration of Helpers Will Be Started On April 1st

Enrollment of thousands of volunteer "forest fire cooperators" to help in the anticipated stiff battle against high natural forest fire hazards and sabotage will begin April 1, the state conservation department announced today.

Enrollment will be open to residents of the north woods country, to semi-permanent residents who spend week ends there, and even to tourists there on a two-week vacation, providing, in all cases, they are citizens. Stressing the responsibilities of those enrolling, department officials will warn registrants that the department will be relying upon them in emergencies for supplementary forest fire protection in their area.

Registrations will be accepted north of Clare in all conservation department district headquarters, at the home of conservation officers and fire wardens, and in prominent business places displaying the green and white conservation trade-mark sign.

Ance, quarantines are in effect in nine townships.

Prosecutor Ance announced that townships which have established quarantines include Hay, Boyne Valley, Chandler, Charlevoix, Evangeline, Hayes, Marion and Wilson.

Quarantines will be continued until officials are assured danger of spread of the epidemic is over.

THREE DOTS AND A DASH FOR VICTORY

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

From Your Congressmon
Fred Bradley
11th Distriet, Michigan

More than a yeor ago, the speciol committee on un-American activities began an intensive investigtion of Japanese propagandn and espionage in this country. The Dies Committee report on Japanese octivities in this country was recently mnde public and crented no mild sensation in congress. For over three months before December 7th, the committee's investigntors hnd been in possession af irrefutable evidence that the Japanese contemplated an attnck on the United States. Mr. Dies made thot evidence avnilnble not only to the Department of Justice, lnt also to the army and navy intelligence services and proposed to hold public hearings in Washington, to which would be summoned some 50 or more witnesses from the Pacitic coast, who could testify not only as to the very complete and elaborate plans that the Japnnese army staff had prepared for an attack on our coun'ry, but who could also testify as to the extreme donger from possible Axis sabotnge. However, beenuse of the deliente international situation and the fact thnt our State Depnrtment wos still trying to mnintain peoceful relotions with Japan, the president and the attorney general deemed thot such public hearings would he inndvisnble nnd requested Mr. Dies not to hold them.

Still, it is alarming to nll of us in congress to feel that, having been possessed of thot information, our army and novy should havo been caught unawores and not have been on the alert in Pearl Harbor. Their plon of attack, which we must assume was worked out in coreful collaborotion with Nozi Germany, contemplated as their first phase of an invasion of the United States the attnck on Hawaii. This we now know was successfully carried out; perhnps, with n greoter degree af success thnn even Japan hoped for. The second phose of their plan is n combination of serious acts of sabotnge on the Pacific coast nnd an necompanying submarine warfare in that area. Acts of sabotage nre occurring and submarine warfare has nlready commenced near our Pacitic constline. The third phase of their plan is a large scale attnck on the Panama Cnnal, for which attack it behooves our country to be constantly on the alert.

A member of the special house committee appointed to investigate air accidents and safety of air lravel acquninted me with some interesting conclusions arrived at by members of thnt committee while an their air tour in South America lute lnst year. They discovered some very carefully laid plnns for a Nazi invnsion.

There are vorious ways an attnck on the vitol Pannma Canal could be attempted. The mnst logicnl one heing by way of Dnkar, Africa. A fleet of bombers, accompanied by convoy plnnes carrying gasoline could leave this point, landing nt nny point between Natnl or Recife, Brazil, some 1,600 air miles distant. At the mouth of the Amnzon river is a very large island, relatively flat, with few trees, which is whero planes of most any size could be lnnded, porticularly if some alight preporation were made beforehand to smooth out grass hummocks and ant hills. The bombers could then proceed from there to the great plains nrea directly south of Venezuela, where exist many ploces which by nature are suitable lnnding fields. This nren extends lo within five to six hundred miles of the Pnnama Canal, und is very sparsely populated; but in this Vichata country, in Colombia, are numerous cattle ranches upon one of which the former chief pilot and chief mechanic of the former German owned and operated Scndta Airlines has reportedly settled. It is very prabnble that Nnzis in that section would nssist any Nazi fleet in refueling nt lhat point. Abandoning their gasoline carrying planes, the fleet could proceed to the cnnal ond do their domage. They could then give up and be interned in some country such as Costa Rica or Guatamala.

The only place that this oir armada might be discovered in time to notify the canal would be on its first landing in South Americn nnd from what we know of that country, it would be n simple feat to screen thnt first lnnding in such a way that even it would not be known. Consequently the first warning that ottack planes were nimed at the canal would be received by our own canal patrol planes or by detectors. Germany has pilots which know this South American country like a book, hecause while she opernted the Sendtn Airlines, it wns her custom to rotate her flight personnel constnntly so that over the 20 some years she opernted this line, it is probnble she can now hoast of having in her air forces 150 to 200 active pilots who have had at least one yenr's experience in flying this South American territory.

Every possible precaution is being taken to guard ngainst any attack on our Panama Cnnal. Not only is and must thnt protection be extended all the way to Africa to prevent any such attnck fleet ever leaving Dakar, but likewise we must carefully watch and protect the canal from the west so that Japanese nttacks from aircrnft carriers on the Pacific cnnnot carry out n coordinated Axis plan for destroying the canal.

How Birds Protect Trees

Birds nre effective protectors af trees. It is interesting to watch nuthatches senrching the rough bark of a tree limb, as frequently upside down as right side up in their search. The lnte E. H. Forbush states that the white-breasted nuthatch is a particular guardian of deciduous trees, preferring oak, chestnut, elm and other hardwoods to pine. It frequents old orchords and finds many injurious insects in the rough bark.

The brown creeper is also nn industrious bird. There is a record of one of these inspecting 43 trees in one hour, 36 of these white oak and seven white pine. The downy woodpecker is another valuable frequenter of old orchards. Its food consists largely of wood-boring beetles and their grubs.

The work of the vnrious woodpeckers is well known, especinlly tn orchordists who have had weak or sickly trees generally infested by the common fruit tree bork beetle.

The writer has seen limb oreas several feet long which these birds had stripped of bark in their search for the destructive grubs and the delicate pupae in the numerous channels the borers had made in the inner bark and the outer sapwood.

Sparce feeding is rather common in winter and those who appreciato birds and delight in watching them might well eooperate to the extent of putting out lumps of suet, either tied or in wire cages to serve as supplementary food. Such an installation just outside a sunporch window is appreciated by the birds and gives pleasure to the watchers.

LANSING LETTER

come—two, three, five nnd possibly ten!

When present automobiles tires are gone, many of them cannot be replaced. And this realization, too, in 95 days.

One immediate effect of Malaya on Michigan is a reverse in the trend of mobile shopping, o return of trnde to hundreds of Muln streets.

Automobiles and good roads nade Michigan a land of gasoline go-getters. We thought nothing of traveling 10 to 50 miles, or even more, to the nearest large city—shopping in the morning, having lunch, enjoying a movie and hurrying back home in time for evening dinner.

Retail trends for luxury goods have been townrd larger centers at the expense of small towns. One exception has been the large metropolitnn centers—those over 500,000 population—where papulntion and trading trends have been in the direction of decentraliznlion.

Michigan Muin Street, which steadily prospered during the 1930-40 decade, has nn opportunity in 1942. Here is one of the unforesceen blessings in the wor readjustments now fast unfolding.

Although signs were ovoilable in 1941 of coming events, who among us was convinced thnt we must do without—even in 1942—such commonplace commoditiea as refrigerators, washing machines, stockers, radios and girdles? The mechanicol nature of modern warfare, plus the plain fact that we are five years behlnd the Germans in converting our Industrial plants for wor production, is bringing revolutionary upsets in dur easy-going mode of living.

In 95 days we lenrn thnt democracy must become dictatorial to snve itself from dictotorship, that we must deprive ourselves of freedoms so that we can snve them, that a dozen expeditionary forces nnd our home units will require upwards of ten million men by 1944, that lens of thousands of women must replace men in wnr plants everywhere. What a change!

The prospect of outright shortnges in many lines of civilian goods has brought on a wave of hoarding. Jnnuary retail sales were far ahead ot January, 1941.

Economists tell us thnt the national income for 1942 will be approximately 102 billions, taxes and savings 22 billions, leaving 80 billions to be spent. Yet the production of civilian goods, because of war prinrities, will decline to 65 billions.

Here will come the pinch; 15 billions looking for n market thot doesn't exist! MORE BUYING POWER vs. fewer things to buy. That's the mnking of inflotion.

Five dollar silk shirts absorbed some of World War dollars. Railroad and bus lransportatlon may combine to sove Michigan's vncationland from a wnr-time depression. Certainly we Americnns nre going to spend mare money for relaxation in 1942 than we did in 1941, surprising as this may sound. It will be the normal reaction to war nerves, and a healthful prescription to take.

The home-town merchant who makes the grade in this critical period of fast-made adjustments will be the merchant who keeps his head—and uses it, too.

Positive thinking, not negative thinking, is needed today.

All thinking must be subjected to one paramount objective: Winning the war.

Wnr is a temporary interruption to the normol wny of life, n call for common sacrifices to be made willingly ond cheerfully.

All this in 95 days!

We're taking it on the chin now. Soon we're going to be giving it, blow for blow, sacrifice for sacrifice, to Adolph, Bruno and Charlie Hirohito.

We peace-loving Americans are getting mad.

AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

The AAA couoty committee has ordered, from the Commodity Credit Corporation, 110 tons of surplus corn which hao been distributed to farmers in this county through the cooperation of the Boyne City and East Jordon Co-Operative associations. Additional orders for corn and also wheat will be placed providing that sufficient requests ore received from farmers to worrant placing the orders for shipment. Both corn ond wheat will sell far about $1.80 per hundred pounds.

The annual report uf the AAA farm program, released by the United States Department of Agriculture for 1941, shows that six million farmers throughout the notion have been helped to adjust their farm programs to war needs during the jast year. Through the cooperation of the farmers, vitamin rich foods will be produced in nn all-time high total, not only for the war of our nation, but also in an abundant surplus for supplying like needs of all of oor allies.

During the past eight years of the AAA program, formers have built up a surplus reservoir of fertility on their lands and thanks to thnt fertility, we nre going to he successful in producing our quota without the senseless plowing up of millions of acres of grazing land as during the last war with the subsequent result of loss of soil fertility and wasteful dust storms.

Though most deer in the woods near Cusino wildlife experiment station lose their antlers soon after the end of deer hunting aeason, one seven-year-old buck in the Cusino deer pens was still carrying his rack in the second week of February.

He looked around as though trying to discover the answer to some obscure enigma. "Where is he?" he asked. "Where's Peter and Tommy? Where are the natives? What's wrong here?"

She told him what had happened. When she spoke of Fritz Aulgur's first coming to hunt pearls, Richard asked quickly:

"Pearls? Did he find any?"

"Yes."

"Here? On this island?"

He frowned at his own thoughts as she went on. She told him she and George had half forgotten Fritz, because there were so many people sick on the island, and dying, and he asked:

"Where'd they catch it?"

"George had a cold when we landed here. He's not very well, even now. I'm afraid they got it from him." She went on to tell him of the other schooner, and how the men aboard her killed Aulgur, and shot George; and how the islanders surprised that schooner in the night and clubbed the men and borned her afterward.

She saw him more and more alert as she proceeded. "That's why they're hiding now," he decided. "They're afraid of us. They'll jump us too if we give them a chance. They're scared, and when natives are scared you can't figure 'em." He asked: "Mary, have you told Peter about the pearls?"

"No. I didn't tell him much of anything."

"Well, don't, then," he directed. "Don't tell him or anyone about the pearls. The men will be wanting to turn divers if they know."

"All right."

"Is your husband badly hurt?"

"I think he'll be all right. But he's sick, too, Richard."

"Richard, will you take us home with you?"

His eyes lighted. "Sure! Now you're sensible. You don't belong here, Mary. How about your husband? Will he go?"

"He wants to, yes." He swung to look vigilantly toward the Venturer at anchor half a mile off, and she said: "George doesn't know what happened. I mean about the massacre."

Then Tommy came down the path to tell Mary that George was awake and calling her; and a moment later Peter appeared. He saw Richard, and hesitated, and Richard said briefly:

"Father died about daylight, Peter. We'll bury him here this morning, and pull out this afternoon."

Peter protested: "What's the hurry?"

"The natives here killed three white men a couple of days ago. Traders." Richard looked at Mary warningly. "And burned their schooner. That was the smoke we saw. That's why they're hiding now. It wouldn't be safe to lie in the bay overnight."

Peter stared at his brother, and Mary saw his lips white. "Killed them?" he whispered hoarsely, and looked quickly around. "Say, are they laying for us?" He swung toward Mary. "Blast it, why didn't you tell me?"

"I'm not afraid of them," Mary explained. "I never thought of telling you." She said: "I must go to George. Don't tell him about the killing, Peter."

He nodded. At the house, she went in first. She found George in [illegible] he spoke to her. "What changed your mind, Mary?" he asked. "Has Captain Corr here persuaded you?"

Mary said: "No, of course not! I think I'm afraid to stay!"

"You can always hide," he protested. "And after what happened this time, the men's [illegible]"

The argument proceeded for so long that Richard became more and more impatient. He broke in at last on their long futility of argument and pleading.

"Mr. McAusland," he said, "this is no place for Mary."

"It's my place," George retorted. "I'm needed here; and Mary's place is with me, isn't it?"

Richard cried explosively: "Man, they don't need you! They need to get rid of you!"

Mary caught her breath; but before she could speak George asked sharply: "What do you mean?"

"Why, I mean you've killed a fair batch of them already," Richard told him.

She cried: "Hush, Richard!"

George lifted his thin, veined hand. "Be still, Mary," he commanded. Rage choked him; he began to cough heavily, and could not speak, and a red stain touched his lips. He wiped it away with his fingers, and muttered apologetically to Mary: "I guess the bullet must have touched my lungs."

Richard spoke in wrath. "Don't be blind, man. You've got consumption. You'll die of it if you stay here, and so will half the people on the island."

"Richard, don't! You're cruel. Be still. George, it isn't true."

"It is true, isn't it?" George asked, looking up at her. "What Captain Corr says? I can see it must be true."

She said slowly: "I'm afraid it is, my dear."

He nodded in a broken submission. "Very well," he said. "Then I've failed here. Worse than failed. We'll have to go."

After that surrender, as though crushed by his own defeat, by the collapse of his life and hopes, he did not speak. He was passive in their hands.

Once the decision to depart was made, Mary had begun to pack their belongings. When the last of the load was borne away down the path, Peter said urgently:

"All right, Mary, come along."

She bade him go. "I—want to say good-by alone," she said. Jarambo stood watching. Peter moved grudgingly down the trail.

She turned to Jarambo, and suddenly she felt like a little girl before this old man who had been her father's friend and hers. She said to Jarambo: "Keep this house well, Jarambo."

He assented. "Yes. But better you go."

They moved down the path together. Jarambo spoke to her, and she turned. He thrust into her hands a little twist of tappy cloth, and he said:

"You keep. Belong to you." She slipped the packet into her waist, and turned and faced Peter.

"Come along, Mary," he said. "It's late already."

She followed him toward the boat. When she was seated, she looked back and saw Jarambo standing alone where the path emerged from the trees. She touched the packet inside her dress, wondering what it contained, pressing it with her fingers. She felt in it some small, hard, round objects. Several of them. Her heart began to pound. She knew even then, without seeing them, that they were pearls.

The sun was already below the mountains when Peter's boat with Mary in the stern sheets came alongside the Venturer. George on his stretcher lay on the main hatch amidships, and Mary stopped with him there. Men were at the windlass, and aloft making sail; but before the anchor came aweigh, Richard picked George up in his arms with a feminine gentleness, and carried him like a baby aft and down the companionway.

Richard laid George for the present on the long bench in the common room. He felt the Venturer answer her sails and turned to go on deck. The sun was gone, night had fallen; but there was light enough to see the bold headlands at the mouth of the bay. He took the ship in hand, and Mat Forbes spoke at his elbow.

"A white man came aboard just now, Cap'n Corr," he reported. "He swam off to us in nothing but his pants, with a handkerchief around his head and a parrot hanging to it. Name of Corkran, he says, and calls himself a sailor."

Richard asked sharply: "Was he off that schooner the islanders burned?"

"No, he deserted from the Sunset, the ship that brought Mr. and Mrs. McAusland. He looks scared."

"Scared of what?"

"He didn't say. He doesn't look like one that's easy scared, either."

Later Richard met the sailor under the boat house.

"Your name's Corkran?"

"Aye, sir."

"Where did you come from?"

"Off the ship Sunset."

"Deserted?"

"Yes, your honor, sir."

"I've no use for deserters."

Corkran nodded respectfully. "Nor I, sir! But I did think himself and the young lady might be needing a good man with his fists some day, on the island, sir. Himself is a good plucked one, but he knows nothing at all, and such gets themselves into trouble they can't get out of."

"You weren't much use to him when he did need you."

"It's sorry I am, sir. Would your honor be telling me what happened?"

"You don't know?"

"I know 'twas bad." Corkran looked around. "They had me asleep, your honor, sir," he said in shame.

"Drunk?"

"I would not say so. I no more than noticed a queer taste to the cocoanut juice, not bad at all; so I drank it, and fell for a bit of a nap. The next I knew, an old man of them came to see was I still asleep. I was awake enough by that time to pretend to be asleep; but when a troop of them went up the trail past my house, I could look with one eye; and after that I sweated cold blood till I got away from that island, sir."

"What did you see?"

"Save me from remembering, your honor. Would your honor be needing a good harpooner, maybe?"

"You've served on whalers?"

"Aye, sir. Nineteen months. I can earn my way, you'll find."

Richard nodded. "All right, Corkran. The less talk about that back there, the better. Go forward now."

Richard went below. George still lay on the bench in the common room, Mary beside him; and Richard said: "We've a friend of yours aboard. Corkran, off the Sunset."

George exclaimed: "Corkran?" Mary looked up at Richard quickly.

"Yes. He swam off to us with his parrot on his shoulder."

"Swam off? You mean he was at Gilead?"

Richard was surprised. "Didn't you know it? He must have kept out of your way."

George looked at Mary, and saw confession in her eyes, and smiled understandingly. "You knew it?"

"Yes. I was afraid it would bother you to know he was there."

"It would have," he admitted.

Peter came down the companion, and Richard said to Mary:

"You'll want to give him supper here, I expect."

She nodded, and she stayed with George while Richard and Peter went into the main cabin. Mat Forbes came below to join them, and Tommy brought them their meals.

Later Tommy made the bunk ready; and Richard carried George in, and Mary made him comfortable for the night. When he slept, she went to her own quarters.

Alone there, beginning to undress, she remembered the packet Jarambo had given her. She unbuttoned her waist and drew the little bundle out and opened it. Although she had been sure what she would find, her heart clutched at her throat when she saw them.

In the dim lamp light, the little handful of pearls glowed warmly. She stirred them with her finger, counted them. Fourteen.

She stood looking down at them trying to understand. The men who killed Fritz must have looted his schooner before they burned the craft and sank it. Jarambo, in turn, had searched their vessel and found the pearls and kept them. Mary looked at them in a sort of terror; and when a knock sounded lightly on the door behind her, she turned with a gasp of surprise. The door opened.

Peter stood there. He looked past her, saw the pearls! Before she could move to hide them he stepped past her; took some of them in his hands with an exclamation of delight. He turned to her, his eyes shining.

"Where'd you get them?"

"Jarambo gave them to me."

"Where'd he get them?"

She remembered Richard's warning. "I suppose he found them somewhere."

He said huskily: "Maybe he got them at the island! Maybe there are more! Has anybody seen them?"

"No."

"Well, don't show them to anyone."

"I won't," she promised. She asked, suddenly wondering at his intrusion here: "Did George send for me?"

He shook his head, smiling. "No, I just stopped on my way to bed to make sure you were comfortable."

He touched the packet in her hand. "Better let me lock them up for you."

"I'd rather keep them. I'll hide them somewhere."

He did not urge her; yet he showed no disposition to go.

"I'm glad you're aboard. I'm a lone wolf on the Venturer, you know. The crew is down on me." He grinned as he spoke; but she thought he was not amused.

"Why?"

"Oh, it's that business about your uncle," he admitted. "They think I was afraid. Just because I used my head. I backed our boat clear of the suds so I'd have a chance to pick up the men, and after that they started calling me 'Starn all!'"

He added appealingly: "You know, Mary, I'm still a kid, in spite of this beard! I'm the youngest man aboard except Tommy. I sure need friends."

"Well, you've got one now, Peter. And really, they're all your friends, of course. You're just sensitive. For Heaven's sake don't go feeling sorry for yourself."

CHAPTER IX

Late that morning Captain Corr's body, sewed snugly in clean canvas, was brought ashore. Mary went to hear Richard read the funeral service, and she thought he was like a small boy floundering through a recitation badly memorized.

Mary went to hear Richard read the funeral service.

When the time came to speak to George of departure, Mary told him what they planned; but she found in him an unexpected opposition. He was weak enough to be stubborn; and he watched them all with dry burning eyes and said flatly that he would not go. Peter in his persuasions was gentle with the hart man; but Richard, uneasy for his ship, was brisk and stern. Sometimes his tone made anger rise in George's cheek.

"You'll never be really well here," Mary pleaded. "I want to get you back to clean, sunny, cold weather. That's what you need."

He looked past her at Richard, yet car or by shining at night went into effect January 10, and it is well law abiding sportsmen keep them in mind, too. One prohibits any unauthorized person to transport, or have in possession in or upon an automobile any gun or other firearm except a pistol or revolver from March 1 to October unless the same is taken down or enclosed in a case. The other provides that a permit to carry hunting arms during closed season is void from sunset until sunrise in the area north of Townline 12, which, incidentally, includes all northern Michigan. Thus you crow hunters want to be sure you have permit, and also that when carrying a gun in a car, it is taken down or in a case.

There was a time when sale of a new automobile was just an incident of passing interest. Today, however, with rationing due to wartime restrictions, the sale of a new car is headline news, thus this mention that the first new car rationed in northern Michigan went to Edward Grace, of Kewadin, and was a Ford sold by our Charlevoix branch of the Northern Auto Co.

Fred Keister, Jr., editor of the Ionia News, says: "'White Japs' are those birds who form picket lines around war industry plants and keep them idle while red blooded American boys are being killed in battle to preserve our liberty." He spoke the sentiment of most serious-minded American citizens with that assertion.

I think everyone will agree that if Monday's storm was Winter's last dying gasps, the Old Fellow is a tough loser. It's hard to realize spring is just 10 days away while digging out of the season's worst blizzard.

If crows may be taken as harbingers of Spring, then this season can't be far off despite prevalent weather. Numerous crows have put in their appearance during the past week. The "first robin" story is now in order.

Editor Al Weber of the Cheboygan Observer, voiced good logic when he ventured the opinion that optimism would get us more tourist business during the summer of 1942 than pessimism. He says: "There is a disposition on the part of lots of people that the motor tourist business will 'fold' up this year, that there will be no occupants for the thousands of Michigan's over-night cabins, that oil and auto service stations will thin out. That all can be made possible if we assist in the 'folding up.' If we are convinced we cannot do anything, contribute anything to get some of that business, then it will go some other place. It is just as important we get up on our hind legs and shout out loud about our summer vacation opportunities and possibilities as it is for us to devote all our time sobbing about sugar rationing, nuto tire rationing and other things we will be deprived of. A blue town and a blue attitude among its people will surely infect us with a case of blues that will be disastrous."

"Oh, daddy, can you tell me if Noah had a wife?"

"Certainly! Joan of Arc. Now don't ask any more foolish questions."

Just as if there isn't already enough trouble in this country, along comes John L. Lewis with the announcement that a campaign to organize dairy farmers into his United Mines Workers union opened Saturday. Just between you and me, the only connection between coal mining and dairying will be when the farmer foolish enough to join such an organization gets "milked" for the dues John L. seeks. You can be sure that Lewis wants only the farmers' money to jingle in his treasury and the membership such an organization would provide to wield as a "big stick" over the government in enforcing labor demands. Any farmer who is so gullible that he is unable to figure that out should have his head examined.

Novelists and poets to the contrary, every woman is a sight when she is gardening—that is, if she really gets anything done.

SUGAR RATIONING WILL BE DELAYED

REGISTRATION DATE IS SET AHEAD INDEFINITELY

Rules Governing Rationing When Effective Are Announced in Part; More Later

Arthur H. Sarvis, state rationing administrator, has announced that due to inability of printers to deliver a sufficient number of books, start of sugar rationing has been postponed indefinitely.

Registration for booklets was originally set for March 16-19 in public schools, but it is now expected rationing will be postponed until the last week of the month. While Charlevoix county's supply of coupons has been received by Fenton R. Bulow, chairman of the county rationing board, registration will be held up to comply with state-wide rulings.

In the meantime, Sarvis has released partial regulation covering machinery of the plan. They include:

Each person is to keep a record of the serial number of his book, because book No. 1 must be returned before a second book is issued.

Persons under 18 may sign for their own books, or a parent or guardian may sign for them. The office of price administration will designate the period during which stamps may be used, and the quantity allowed each person.

The books may be used in any retail store in the United States.

If a book is lost or stolen, the local rationing board must be notified.

Stamps must be detached in the presence of the storekeeper or an employe.

When a person enters a hospital for more than ten days, his book must be turned in to the person in charge until the patient is released.

When a person dies, his war ration book must be turned back to the local rationing board.

GLADWIN JUDGE SENTENCES 3 IN COURT

Prison Terms Meted Out by Judge Shaffer Last Thursday

Concluding the March term of circuit court for Charlevoix county Friday morning, Judge John C. Shaffer, of Gladwin, presiding as substitute for Judge Parm C. Gilbert, imposed sentence on four criminal law violators.

Marshall Tillotson, 38 of Boyne City, was given sentence of 5 to 15 years at Southern Michigan prison for breaking and entering at night. On parole for a previous conviction, Tillotson must serve 5½ years of a former sentence as well.

Raymond Eaton, 19, of Boyne City, involved with Tillotson, received a term of one to 15 years.

George L. Paquette, 32, of Boyne City, was placed on probation two years and assessed costs of $20 for carrying concealed weapon.

William Sharrow, of Charlevoix, charged with assault with intent to rape and found guilty by a jury of assault and battery, was fined $100 and placed on probation two years.

SIX MORE CCC CAMPS ARE CLOSED IN STATE

Fourteen Left Operating After Last Closing Order

Closing of six more civilian conservation camps March 15 will leave just 14 CCC camps of all kinds in Michigan, only three of them Michigan state forest camps.

Directly affecting conservation department projects is the closing of Camp Cusino, where enrollees have furnished labor for operation of the wildlife experiment station well known for its moose and deer work; and the closing of camp Hartwick Pines, a camp under administration of the national parks service which supplied labor for improvement of Grayling winter recreation area.

Camps remaining under conservation department direction are at Wolverine, Paradise and Higgins lake. Of six national parks camps that have worked on state parks projects, only the Dodge-Bloomer camp near Pontiac remains, and of the eight Michigan state forest CCC camps that have done some state park work, only the Wolverine and Paradise camps are left.

SUPPLY OF SUGAR FOR HONEY BEES GIVEN APPROVAL

Michigan honey bees will not face starvation because of the government sugar rationing program, according to a promise received by Leo V. Card, state commissioner of agriculture, during a visit to Washington.

When the sugar rationing program was set up bees were not included for an allotment, but it is necessary that they be given sugar as a food between now and the time when nectar is again available. A census was conducted among Michigan beekeepers and from this it was estimated that 600,000 pounds would be required.

When the situation was brought to the attention of government officials they agreed to provide the food, Card said. The commissioner was informed that orders requesting sugar for bees would be issued to each county war board and that during the period elapsing before this is accomplished a supplementary order would be given to the state war board authorizing the issuance of sugar upon applications approved by Card and Don Barrett, director of the state agricultural department's aplary division.

Bees are regarded as essential to the war effort. The honey they produce is a substitute for sugar and the wax is valuable in aircraft manufacture. More important, the bees are a pollination agent and without their busy help crops could not be produced commercially at a profit, nor as abundantly as war demands call for.

SALE CAR LICENSES LARGER THIS YEAR

Car and Tire Rationing Fails to Halt Demand for Auto Plates

Suspension of car sales and tire rationing has had no noticeable effect on the purchase of 1942 automobile license plates, according to Fenton R. Bulow, manager of the local secretary of state branch office.

As a matter of fact, more 1942 license plates were issued up to March 7 this year than for the same period in 1941. Sale of all type of license plates, full and half year, on March 7, 1942, totaled 1012, while on the same date a year ago, only 973 plates were sold.

The demand for licenses has slackened off to a large extent, although a few car owners are appearing every day for licenses.

OILY, PAINT RAGS CAUSE FIRE DANGER

Citizens Asked Not to Mix Them With Waste Paper for Scouts

Charlevoix citizens who have generously provided waste paper for collection by Boy Scouts can further aid this defense cause by not mixing other materials in the paper.

Fire Chief Charles Marshall has called attention to the fact that in many instances oily rags and paint rags have been thrown in with waste paper. Such materials in many instances cause fire through spontaneous combustion and thus create a constant danger.

It is requested that in the future such inflameable materials be kept separate from the paper.

As its answer to the challenge of increasing tuberculosis during war Michigan volunteers have swelled the Christmas seal sale to an all time high of $268,440. A board of directors consisting of doctors, famous tuberculosis specialists, and business men, volunteers its time to decide how to use this money most effectively for preventing tuberculosis.

What Makes the Difference

The wool on the sheep's back is comparatively cheap. When made into cloth and it lands on YOUR back, it costs a lot of money, yet it is the same wool.

The difference in treatment accounts for the difference in price. It's the same with dollars, for if you handle them carelessly, spend them foolishly or invest them poorly, they are worth but little to you. The dollars you handle carefully and invest safely will lay the foundation for a fortune. Their value depends on treatment, the same as wool.

CONFERENCE OFFICERS ARE NAMED

E. A. SCHIMKE, OF MANCELONA, HEADS "C" GROUP

All-Conference Basketball Teams Selection Made at Annual Meeting at Boyne City

E. A. Schimke, of Mancelona, was elected president of the Northern Michigan Conference of class C schools at the annual meeting held Monday evening at Boyne City.

Other officers chosen were: vice-president, Harry E. Bingham, of Charlevoix; secretary-treasurer, John H. Smith, of East Jordan. Faculty members representing all schools of the conference excepting Gaylord, included those from Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, Onaway, Mancelona and Grayling.

Members of all-conference first and second basketball teams, as well as players given honorable mention, were named by conference coaches as follows:

First team—Forwards, Thompson, Grayling, and McBride, Harbor Springs; center, Cosens, Harbor Springs; guards, Swanson, Charlevoix, and Kosequat, Harbor Springs.

Second team—Forwards, Stewart, Charlevoix, and Miller, Boyne City; center, Carey, Charlevoix; guards, E. Thompson, Grayling, and Barnes, Gaylord.

Honorable mention—Forwards, Smith, Harbor Springs, and LaChapelle, Grayling; center, Tooley, Boyne City; guards, Herrick, Harbor Springs, and Shearer, Boyne City.

The annual conference track meet was set for Saturday, May 9, subject to approval by the State Athletic Association. The secretary was instructed to make an appeal to the state association seeking more serious consideration of holding the quarter-finals of state basketball competition in a northern Michigan city. A move to give northern Michigan a greater voice in state athletic policy was the naming of a committee of three, headed by W. A. Camburn, of Boyne City, to plan a campaign for election of a northern Michigan school official on the Representative Council of the State Athletic Association.

Tentative action was taken on baseball, football and basketball schedules for the coming seasons.

YACHT REOMAR REMOVED FROM THIS HARBOR

Taken in Tow by Roen Steamship Co. Tug John Roen III

With its destination and future use a military secret, the R. E. Olds yacht Reomar was removed from Charlevoix harbor last week by the John Roen III, tow tug operated by the Roen Steamship Co., of Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

Capt. John Roen, owner of the steamship company bearing his name, was in charge of the 120-foot tug, largest, it is believed, ever to have entered this port. The tug is powered by a 1000 h. p. Fairbanks-Morse diesel engine.

Visit of the John Roen III to this port took on the aspect of a home-coming in view of the fact several crew members, including Ole Jacobson, Rass and Knute Svensdal, Jim Strickland and Henry Isaksen, served on the Str. Fred W. Green when Charlevoix was its home port.

START ICE CRUSHING IN ST. MARY'S RIVER

State Highway Department Ferry Began Oporations Wednesday

In an effort to clear upper lake channels of ice for early movement of war vital iron ore, the State highway department Monday ordered its leased ice crusher, the Sainte Marie, to begin bucking ice floes in the St. Mary's river Wednesday.

Sending the big craft out 10 days earlier than usual, the department said the vessel would attempt to open the St. Mary's river first, then would extend its operations to various northern lake ports.

It will operate under the supervision of the navy and coast guard.

The Chief Wawatam will succeed the Sainte Marie as ferry across the Straits of Mackinac and will operate on the following schedule:

Leave St. Ignace at 5:30 a. m., 8:30 a. m., 12 noon, 3 p. m. and 7 p. m.

Leave Mackinaw City at 7 a. m., 10 a. m., 1:30 p. m., 4:30 p. m., and 8:30 p. m.

MASONS WINNER CRIBBAGE MEET

SCORED SEVENTH VICTORY IN 12 YEARS OF PLAY

Losing Odd Fellows Foto Winners at Annual Cribbage Banquet Next Monday Evening

Monday night's play concluded the 12th annual Masonic Odd Fellow cribbage contest with a Masonic victory.

Next Monday evening, March 23, the victors will be guests of the losers at the annual cribbage banquet to be held at the I.O.O.F. hall. Prizes for high and low scores during the 10-game series will be awarded.

The Masonic victory was their seventh since the contest was inaugurated 12 years ago. They led throughout the contest just closed. While the Odd Fellows were victors in four of the ten contests, their margin was never sufficient to overcome the Masonic lead.

In the final contest, the Masons won by a margin of 258 points for a series lead of 595. There were seven tables participating and team scores were 12,718 for the Masons, 12,460 for the Odd Fellows. Evening high scores were turned in by E. E. Allen with 968 for the Masons, Walt Smith with 929 for the Odd Fellows.

When the series was inaugurated, a perpetual trophy was provided and each year name of the winning lodge is engraved upon it.

BOARD OF COMMERCE BANQUET APRIL 15TH

Roger Allen, of Grand Rapids, Obtained As Speaker

O. P. North, president of the Charlevoix board of commerce, announces that the organization's annual banquet will be held Wednesday evening, April 15.

3-A MEN OFFERED OFFICER TRAINING

NEW REGULATION ANNOUNCED BY DRAFT BOARD

Commission of Second Lieutenant Available to Those Successful Meeting Qualifications

Col. E. M. Rosecrans, state selective service director, announced Friday that local draft boards now are prepared to accept registrants who have been deferred from the draft because of dependency but who wish to become candidates of officer training schools.

The army recently announced such candidates would be accepted and if successful in meeting the qualifications, would be commissioned. If rejected, it is said, the candidate will be sent home and returned to his previous deferment status.

Rosecrans said such volunteers will be inducted among quotas sent to their local draft boards and given four months training in the ranks to determine whether they are prospects for a second lieutenancy.

To participate in the program, he said, applicants must file with local draft boards a waiver of dependency which must be signed by dependents over the age of 18 years. The registrant then will be given a preliminary physical examination if he meets other qualifications.

Then, he said, the applicant must go at his own expense to any army reception station for a qualification examination. If accepted, the candidate returns and is placed in class 1-A by his draft board, awaiting the next call for delivery of men in his area.

A minimum of six months training, including four months in the ranks will be necessary for training, Rosecrans said.

PAUL HELLMAN GETS RANKING OF ENSIGN

Local Coast Guard Station Commander Promoted at Chicago

Warrent Officer Paul Hellman, commander of the Charlevoix Coast Guard station, last week was promoted to the rank of Ensign after successfully passing physical examination at Chicago.

LIGHTHOUSE SERVICE OPEN EARLY

CREWS ARE TRANSFERRED TO LAKE STATIONS

March 15 Opening of Lighthouses Believed Earliest on Record; Heavy Traffic Expected

Marking the earliest date on record for opening of lighthouse service in the northern Lake Michigan area, crews have been or are being transferred to their stations on orders requiring start of service March 15.

Coas; guardsmen under direction of Ensign Paul Hellman, commander of the Charlevoix coast guard station, took keepers by boat Sunday to Grays Reef, Isle aux Galets and Grand Traverse Point. Awaiting transfer from Charlevoix are keepers for Lansing Shoals, White Shoals, South Fox Island and Beaver Island Head lighthouses. Little Traverse lighthouse at Harbor Springs and Beaver Harbor light were placed in operation Sunday, Old Mission Point on Monday.

Ice conditions in the north shore area of Lake Michigan has so far prevented transfer of crews to Lansing Shoals and White Shoals lighthouses and weather conditions Monday likewise prevented transfer to South Fox Island.

The early resumption of lighthouse service on the Great Lakes is looked upon as a forerunner of one of the earliest openings of navigation in history and a season which, under wartime emergency, will be one of the heaviest in volume ever recorded.

NO RE-TREADED TIRES AVAILABLE IN MARCH

Rationing Board Doubts If Provision Made for April

Although under the tire rationing regulations a large number of people are eligible for passenger car retread tires, no tires in this classification are available for rationing this month because the Office of Price Administration did not set up a March quota for passenger retreads, Fenton R. Bulow, county rationing administrator, has announced.

Mr. Bulow pointed out that it appears most improbable that a quota will be issued for April in view of the fact that the war production board did not authorize production of camelback in passenger car sizes in March. The only March quotas which federal authorities have authorized for retreads apply to trucks and busses.

"We have experienced a flood of applications from passenger car owners who believe they can have their tires retreaded," he said. "It would save their time if they understood that in spite of the fact they are eligible for retrends, no quota has been made available."

FARM BUREAU HAVING MEMBER DRIVE

COMMITTEES NAMED FOR TRI-COUNTY BUREAU

Cite War-Time Conditions as Need for Membership Unity to Meet Food Production Goals

In keeping with the program of state and county Farm Bureaus, the Tri-County Farm Bureau, comprising Charlevoix, Antrim and Otsego counties, is making preparations for its annual membership drive which will take place March 25 and 26.

The membership program has been arranged by the membership committee composed of Paul Doctor and Leonard Hillman of Ellsworth; LaVern McGhan, Clifford Struthers and Clint Blanchard, of Charlevoix. Paul Doctor has been selected as roll call manager.

Preparations for the membership drive will reach a climax at the annual meeting of the Tri-County Farm Bureau, to be held at Ellsworth community hall on Tuesday, March 24, at 10 a. m. A fine program has been arranged for this meeting. J. F. Yaeger, membership relations director of the Michigan State Farm Bureau, will be guest speaker.

Assisting the organization's leaders in arrange the roll call is Anthony Kreiner, district representative from the lower Thumb area. Mr. Kreiner reports many counties throughout the state are going far over their goals in enrolling new members. Some counties have better than doubled their Farm Bureau membership. "Farmers have never been so conscious of the need for membership in their own democratically run organization," Mr. Kreiner said. "They know that if agriculture is to do its part in the all-out effort for production and unity with other great groups, as essential to their very existence, then farmers must be unified in their own right in order that they may maintain a position of equality with other groups. Unless this equality with industry and labor is maintained, victory efforts of our nation will be impaired and complete unity will be lacking."

All membership solicitation will be done by farmers and interested individuals volunteering their time and effort to invite neighbors to become a part of this great program for agriculture.

Who ever would have thought that the purchasing of a new automobile tire would be the subject of a news item?

Harry Walstead is hereby given credit for 1942's first robin story. Harry spotted a red-breasted warbler chirping from a tree behind the Floyd Brown home last Sunday. Well, it can't be long now—unless the administration's order "freezing" everything is extended to weather, too.

Pa: "Well son, it's what some people have when their head aches."

Which reminds me: "This war is too big for even our best economists to comprehend and manage."

Editor William Feather writes in The Imperial Type Metal Magazine:

Elizabeth Hawes, the fashion expert, wrote in the newspaper PM that corsets were unnecessary.

One indignant lady retorted: "To my mind the woman is entirely out of her head."

Another wrote: "I never wore a corset in my life until I reached 38. Yet today, if every corset factory were bombed, I would set down and with cloth and shoe laces build another corset. Then I could walk with dignity, even if it was to my death. Don't you know a fat woman can't feel dressed up with her middle where her knees should be? . . . I rise to defend a woman's friend, a corset."

It's stuff like that that takes our mind off the war.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

While airplanes roared overhead hundreds of thousands of Michigan defense volunteers would be at their posts, ready for aid raid bombing and fires.

Air raid wardens would scan the skies.

Volunteer nurses would be available for emergency calls.

Fire and police assistants would report for duty.

On the theory that "it can happen here," mobilization of Michigan defense workers on the home front is being considered by state defense officials for a designated Sun ay this spring. Civil air pilots would take their army trucks. It would be a realistic test of Michigan's readiness to meet thrusts from the air.

Streamlining of the civilian defense program is proposed by Capt. Donald S. Leonard, state commander of the Citizens Defense Corps, who honestly believes that Michigan cities are in danger of attack from the air during 1942.

Taking a sensible viewpoint of the problem, Leonard plans to utilize all existing government agencies in behalf of home defense.

It is the responsibility of each community, he says, to enlist volunteers to assist police and fire forces—as a good example—to meet possible war emergencies.

Instead of bickering about federal and state aid, and otherwise "letting George do it," citizens should cooperate immediately with official authorities in "Aing plans for defense preparedness. So far, Michigan is far behind in meeting its quota.

Among the likely targets for enemy air raids, it is explained, are the Sault Ste. Marie locks in the St. Mary's river canal, the ore docks at Escanaba, Detroit munition plants such as the Chrysler tank arsenal, and the new Willow Run Ford bomber plant near Ypsilanti.

ANNIVERSARY OF KIWANIS IS OBSERVED

Seventh Year Represented by Charter Night Tuesday

Seventh anniversary of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club was observed with charter night Tuesday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall. The occasion was "ladies' night" as well. A chicken dinner served by members of the Rebekah lodge was a delightful feature.

Speaker of the evening was Kiwanis Lieutenant-Governor Charles Bye, of Sault Ste. Marie. Remarks were also heard from a former Governor of Rotary, Paul Bond, also of the Soo. Both dwelt in the theme that members of service clubs owe to their organizations a willingness to sacrifice a part of time devoted to recreation for community service.

Presidents of Charlevoix Kiwanis since organization have been in order O. P. North, Robert Bridge, Harold Hallett, M. A. Levinson, Floyd A. Supp, R. F. Sloan, R. L. Lewis and Harry E. Bingham. Of this group, Mr. North is a past Lieutenant-Governor.

Besides speakers of the evening, guests included Mr. and Mrs. James Block, Mrs. Nelle A. Hammond, Carl F. Kohler and Kiwanian Clifford McKibbin. Mr. and Mrs. McKibbin were welcomed as new members of the organization. Mr. McKibbin was presented as a regular member by Rev. Leigh Hagle, past president of the Ironwood, Mich., Kiwanis Club.

LETTERS FROM THE ARMY CAMPS

Athletic Office
Naval Training Station
Great Lakes, Illinois

Dear Ken,

Although there is much adverse comment floating around as to the amount of work we in the athletic end of the Navy are doing all of us can prove that we are as busy as the next guy, but I suppose as long as we all feel we are doing our part we can stand to take a little criticism. After all is said and done we are all working towards the same goal.

I have been receiving the Courier for about ten weeks now and each edition is greeted with more vim and vigor. I always read the letters the other boys in the service write to you and none of them are any more pleased to receive the 'ol home town paper than I am. Every Friday afternoon I can be found in the vicinity of the mail box waiting for the Courier to get in. I really appreciate it, Ken, and thanks a million.

Perhaps you have seen the March 16th edition of Life. In it there are several pictures of athletic events here at the station. The pictures were taken in the gymnasium of which I am the "boss." They portray a part of the work we are doing here. I wish Life could have devoted more space to us to enlighten the people as to just how much work is being done in the athletic field. Right now we are cramped for time and space, but in a few weeks our program will be in full swing, and we will be working twenty-four hours a day.

Good luck to you and all the Courier readers.

Sincerely,
Chuck Carey.

In addition to actual work experience, youth employed on NYA defense projects receive instruction in shop subjects through the State Board of Control for Vocational Education.

4-H CLUBBERS MAY GET CASH FOR FIRE ESSAYS

State-Wide Contest On Safety Announced for Michigan

Cash prizes in county and state competition for 4-H Club boys and girls who participate in a national 4-H fire safety contest in Michigan are offered through sponsorship of the State Association of Mutual Insurance Companies of Michigan.

The contest serves as a follow-up for the farm fire prevention campaign recently concluded in Michigan in which school children aided the state-wide farm to farm survey of fire hazards.

Any 4-H club boy or girl from 14 to 21 years of age, living on a Michigan farm or with rural background, can compete in the 1942 contest, the sponsors report.

According to the 4-H club headquarters at Michigan State college, the contest essentials include an inspection of not less than three sets of farm buildings. Reports of these inspections are to be filed on forms furnished by the insurance companies. The contestant is to submit a composition of not less than 300 words on the subject "What I Have Learned about Fire Prevention."

No county with less than 50 participants will be considered unless counties, by mutual agreement, are grouped for judging of that number of entries.

Cash prizes within the counties will consist of awards of $7.50, $5 and $2.50. State awards will be $15, $7.50 and $2.50. A national prize for one boy and one girl winner will be a free trip with all expenses paid to the annual convention of the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies. Entry blanks must be filed with county essay committees by May 1, essays and reports are to be completed by June 1, county awards named not later than June 15 and state winners by July 1.

IMMUNIZING CAMPAIGN UNDER WAY IN STATE

Protection of Children 9 Months to 10 Years Is Goal

Diphtheria and smallpox protection for every child in Michigan over nine months and under 10 years of age is the goal of an emergency immunizing campaign being carried on as a defense measure by physicians and health officials, according to the Michigan Department of Health.

"With families crowding into our defense areas, the danger of epidemics increases, especially among small children," said Dr. H. Allen Moyer, state health commissioner. "Parents are urged to take their children immediately to their family physician for immunizations if the children have not already been protected."

The immunizing program in Michigan is a part of a nation-wide effort to keep children healthy. President Roosevelt, in proclaiming May Day as Child Health Day urged that all children over nine months and under ten years of age be immunized against diphtheria and smallpox.

The toxoid and vaccine to be used in Michigan will be that produced and distributed free to physicians by the state health department laboratories.

Banks Township Caucus

The regular Banks township caucus was held Friday, March 13, 1942, at the community hall at Ellsworth. Only one ticket this year. A small crowd attended, only 44 votes cast.

The meeting was called to order by Gerrit Rubingh, who was chosen chairman, and H. J. Timmer secretary. William Dennis and Paul Doctor were tellers. The following ticket was nominated: Supervisor, Bert DeYoung; clerk, Tracy E. Boss; treasurer, Wm. Kooyer; justice of the peace, Wm. Dennis; member board of review, John DeGroot; constables, L. AT THE MOVIES

"Birth of the Blues"

One of the most colorful periods in American jazz music history, those days when that exciting new rhythm called blues music came careening out of Basin street and Beale street and started the country dancing with new spirit, will be depicted for local movie-goers when Paramount's musical milestone, "Birth of the Blues," arrives Saturday, March 21, at the Palace Theatre.

Topped by a cast including Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Brian Donlevy, Carolyn Lee, Jack Teagarden and his orchestra, and Rochester, "Birth of the Blues" was directed by Victor Schertzinger.

With fifteen songs featured, many of them favorite blues numbers, "Birth of the Blues" should be a jubilee of jive for us film fans. Some of the blues heard in the picture are the "St. Louis Blues," "Memphis Blues" and the "St. James Infirmary Blues." Other numbers, swung in Dixieland jazz style, are "Tiger Rag," "Shine," "Cuddle Up a Little Closer, Lovey Mine" and "Wait Till the Sun Shines, Nellie." By the way, that popular new tune, "The Waiter and the Porter and the Upstairs Maid" is from this picture.

"Hay Foot"

Following the smashing success of "Tanks a Million," Hal Roach produced a sequel to this laugh-packed story of Uncle Sam's draft army. The new production, titled "Hay Foot," stars the same cast of top comedians—William Tracy, Joe Sawyer, James Gleason, Noah Beery Jr. and Elyse Knox—and will have its local premiere at the Palace Theatre on Wednesday, March 25, through United Artists release.

"Hay Foot" traces the further screwy adventures of Dodo Doubleday, played by William Tracy, who has risen from the rank of Private to Top Sergeant in 24 hours because of a prodigious knowledge of army technique. This time, however, Dodo has only one admirer, beautiful Betty, portrayed by pretty Elyse Knox. For the rest he has to battle rival pistol champions, gets into the trouble with his colonel, and finally pretends that he possesses occult powers.

In Michigan last year there were 5,371 cases of tuberculosis found.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Farm Account Cooperators Will Close Records March 24

The farm account year for Charlevoix County Cooperators starts on March first. Some 28 books being kept by as many farmers will be checked in on Tuesday, March 24th when representatives of the farm management department will spend the day in meeting with the various cooperators.

A schedule has been developed which will permit the farmer to come to their nearest center and to spend at least one hour in checking over the book for the purpose of being certain that all items and transactions are included in the record. These appointments are only being made with farmers who have kept records for 10 years or less. After the books have been checked they will then be sent to the Michigan State college where they will be summarized and a very fine summary developed for the individual farmer. With this information the farmer can analyze the various departments and operations of the farm and concentrate his efforts on the enterprizes that make the most profit.

Much greater interest has been manifest in keeping some sort of a farm record than ever before. Most farmers realize as time goes on that they will have to file income tax returns. Certainly this is a very difficult task unless farm records of some type are kept.

This winter's second fire at the Hotel Michigan (Lakeview Inn) gutted all three stories of the central portion, from basement to roof, and much damage from heat, smoke and water was done in the rooms not burned. Mrs. Rollia Lewis was first to see the fire from the windows of her home on State street. Dr. Armstrong, returning home from an early morning case, also saw it and ran to the fire house to ring the bell there about the same time the big bell on the water tower boomed out.

The weight of tons of ice, formed after melting of the recent heavy snows, caused the rear part of Hooker's garage roof to collapse Monday afternoon. A couple of buggies were smashed to splinters, and a "Lizzie" belonging to Register of Deeds M. M. McDonald received some injuries near the top and a severe curvature of the fenders.

Dan W. Mather, who has been in charge of orchards and fruit growing at the Waller farm the last four years, left Friday for California, to work on a ranch near Los Angeles.

Percy Edwards and Miss Ruby Kirby, the latter of Central Lake, were married in Petoskey Friday evening, March 2, at the Presbyterian parsonage.

Eber Marshall, who returned to Flint with his family this week, sold his house on State street to Clarence Heise before leaving.

On March 21st, Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix high schools will debate on the subject, "Resolved, that a system of compulsory military education should be introduced into the curriculum of public high schools of the U. S." On the negative side are Miss Wilma Stevenson, Hugh Chaffin and John Walker; on the affirmative, Miss Lillian MacNeill, Odillon Weed and Kenneth Widdifield.

S. M. Rose was elected mayor in the spring primary election. C. J. Zeitler won by just one vote over J. L. Price for second ward supervisor.

Maple Hill: It is to be hoped that Banks township will vote next month to do their share of building the six miles of West Michigan Pike through here next spring. If not, the state will build three-fourths of the road, the township will be obliged to build the remainder.

It has been reported that Eveline farmers are going to buy cars this spring as fast as the companies can manufacture them. Cars save farm horses many miles of the hardest kind of work, that of driving on macadam roads. We are all glad that the farmer can get a car, for who can get more practical service from it? Cars have come to stay.

New Loading Coils Save Copper and Nickel for War

A LOADING COIL is a doughnut-shaped contrivance of copper wire wound over a ring of alloy containing nickel. Its job is to give your voice an electrical "push" as you talk over a telephone line.

There is about one loading coil for every mile of an average Long Distance telephone circuit in cable—nearly half a million in Michigan alone, besides about 200,000 on local circuits.

For years the Bell System's research has been making these coils progressively smaller, yet keeping them as effective as the larger coils. Now, as a further step to help meet the shortage of war materials, loading coils have been developed that use only about half as much copper and nickel as the former type. The pictures indicate the latest reduction in size.

From this single source, in 1942, the Bell System will save an estimated 40,000 pounds of each of those needed metals.

• In spite of material shortages that make it increasingly difficult to satisfy all service requests as promptly as in the past, Michigan Bell is confidently determined that every war need will be met.

CHAPTER IX

"The devil of it is not having anyone I can talk to."

"You can talk to me; to George and me." She laughed. "In the morning," she added. "I want to go to bed now, Peter."

"Right," he assented, and left the cabin.

During the first days aboard the Venturer, George slept much of the time, while strength crept back into him. When he was awake Mary stayed with him, giving him tenderness and strength from her store of it, and courage and comforting; but when he was asleep and did not need her, she was apt to come on deck. She learned to recognize some of the men in the crew. Some were good sailors, brisk, competent, and cheerful; but others, Richard admitted to Mary, were a poor lot.

"We recruited off the beach at Honolulu," he explained. "Father signed Hurd there. I wouldn't have taken him; and I don't let him aft at all. There's something I don't like about that man. He grins too much, maybe; and he's a poor hand to steer, anyway."

She led him to discuss other men aboard; and she watched him, as the days passed, develop into a mature and resolute man before her eyes, guarding his every word, speaking strongly when he gave orders, keeping himself a little aloof even from the mates. Peter, she saw, put himself under no such restraint. She thought sometimes he was too friendly with the men. When George was well enough, they brought him on deck. When he was on deck, Mary was always near him; and Peter spent much time near George's chair in cheerful talk. But she saw that whoever was with them when Peter approached was apt to move quietly away.

And the others aboard treated the mate with scant respect. He spent more time with George and her than was natural, seeming to turn to them as a refuge and a sanctuary, to escape from the dislike which met him elsewhere. She wondered whether it were true that others, like Tommy, blamed him for the tragedy of her uncle's death. There were questions she wished to ask. She chose to ask them of Corkran, since he presumably could not suspect what was in her mind. One day when Corkran had the wheel, Mary moved George's chair near the companion to catch the sun behind the after house and walked over to the wheel.

CHAPTER X

"Corkran, have you served on whalers before?" Mary asked.

"I have that, ma'am."

"Were you a harpooner?"

"Aye, ma'am, and I was."

"Does Cap'n Corr know it?"

He said with a respect which made her warmly happy: "If there's anything about any man aboard the Cap'n doesn't know, ma'am, then tha man don't know it himself. He's able, that one."

"Corkran, have you served on whalers before?"

She nodded in content, and she asked Corkran: "Did you have some exciting fights?"

"Aye, some; but mostly, a whale dies by the book, if they're struck right and lanced fair."

"When they get mad and wreck the boat and charge around, you can't do anything but keep out of the way, can you?"

"Well, an extra iron into him will turn him, like as not," he said. "With a fighting whale there's no knowing, but I've seen it come out so."

So, she thought, if Peter had harpooned that other whale, it might have saved her uncle. Her eyes clouded; and she felt Corkran watching her, but George asked a question that started the man on some new tale, and George listened with intent interest. Mary thought George was better every day.

She thought more often, after that, about the attitude of the others aboard toward Peter. Tommy Hanline was beginning to avoid her, as if he liked her in his mind with the mate. One day she made an opportunity to talk to Tommy about it. She said:

"You my, I don't see much of you lately."

"I'm pretty busy. Got a lot of work to do." He added sullenly: "I guess you've got plenty of company."

She decided to push the issue. "You mean Peter?"

"Sure."

She said gently: "I expect you're feeling I've sort of deserted you for him."

His voice suddenly was husky. "Well, you're my cousin, aren't you? And even that first night when I came ashore because I couldn't wait to see you, you just sat and talked to him all the time, didn't pay any attention to me!"

She smiled secretly, amused at his boyish jealousy. "Tommy," she suggested, "I know you think Peter might have saved Uncle Tom from being killed; but don't people get killed whaling right along? I'm sure if anyone could have done anything, Peter would have."

He cried: "Oh, all right! You can stand up for him if you want to!"

She decided that for her own peace of mind she must know in detail how her uncle died. The log was usually on the desk in the common room. She had never looked at it, but she went to do so now, turning back the pages slowly. Since the Venturer left Gilead, Richard had made the entries; and she thought his handwriting had changed tremendously in the five or six years since he wrote her that harsh note in reply to hers which Peter, with a boy's malicious cruelty, had given him. She turned back the pages of the log till she came to entries in Richard's father's hand, till she found at last the one she sought.

It did not make the matter clear. Nevertheless its implications were damning. Captain Corr had written:

"Day began fair, wind light and westerly. Sighted bowhead well out from the ice and lowered three boats. The mate, Tom Hanline, got fast; but the whale cut his flukes and smashed the boat, then swept the water. Tom Hanline was holding up Joe Bingham who could not swim. The whale smashed them. Third mate Peter Corr was handy. He picked up the other men. My son Richard came up fast and killed the whale. Cutting in tonight. The bodies were not found. Day ended as it began."

The words, Mary thought, carried an overtone of deep regret like shame.

She put the log away, wishing she had not read it; and during the next few days she tried to forget this cloud which hung over Peter's head.

Richard counted on filling their remaining casks among the right whales south of Juan Fernandez; but before setting his course that way he wished to provision the ship. When Mary looked out of her cabin window next morning, she saw an island close aboard; and after breakfast she brought George on deck to sit with her under the boat house and watch the rugged, luxuriantly wooded shore along which they were making. Isaiah joined them. Mary wondered why no canoes appeared.

"The anchorage is further on," Isaiah told her. "They'll be there to meet us, and a pretty covey of girls swimming out to come aboard. I've put in here before. The girls are a main fine lot."

George looked at him; and Mary said smilingly: "Such talk, Isaiah! I'm surprised at you!"

A little later he nodded toward the bay they were entering. "Here come the canoes to meet us now."

"I see them," Mary assented.

He seemed absorbed in the scene before them; chuckled, said: "Them canoes coming off are loaded down with what we'll want. That 'un off t'the lboard's got a live pig in it. Hear him squeal?"

The men were aloft busy with the sails; the canoes laden deep and full of eager islanders came racing near as the Venturer swung to her anchor. George and Mary went aft where Richard was; and Mary saw that Richard was frowning, looking uneasily at the canoes and the black heads of the girls swimming out to the ship. The men aloft finished their tasks there and tumbled down to the deck again and lined the rail. Swimming girls, their long hair streaming, came nearer; and the men aboard shouted to them in a robust and gusty welcome. Mary watched, smiling, catching the happy infection of their friendliness; and she turned to speak to Richard, and saw him watching George, and then Richard said suddenly: "Mr. McAusland, I wish you and Mary would go below."

George was looking at the girls, his face stern. He asked: "Why, Cap'n Corr?"

"Those girls will be swarming aboard here in another five minutes."

"Then why need you let them aboard? Keep the girls off the ship. Surely you can hold your men in hand?"

Richard shook his head. "Be reasonable, Mr. McAusland. Father always picked young men for his ships. They haven't seen a woman for over four months. You're young enough yourself to know that a young man misses the sight of a pretty girl. It's human nature."

George spoke with more restraint than he felt. "If men can't control themselves, shouldn't they be controlled?"

"Ever try to stop rain falling?" Richard challenged. "These men have to work for me. You know, Mr. McAusland, you can boss a man just so far, and you can do it two ways. I can have a ship full of fights on my hands, fists going all the time, bloody noses, whippings, and maybe killings before we're done. Or I can have a crew of men who know I'm fair and reasonable and try to be the same."

George said, "You're pretty cold-blooded."

"My job is my ship."

"You're responsible for your men, too."

Richard said grimly: "I've noticed a lot of trouble made, more than once, by trying to be responsible for other people's business."

"Do you seriously mean to bribe your men to obedience by turning them loose like wolves on these helpless girls?" George's eyes were hot. "Playing on their weaknesses, just as you played on my weakness at Gilead, told me I was killing the islanders in order to make me come away."

LETTERS FROM THE ARMY CAMPS

Esler Field, La.
March 11, 1942

Mr. Ken Usher, Editor
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan
Dear Mr. Usher,

I wish to thank you for sending me the Courier since I've been away from home. It is a grand gesture on your part, sending the Courier to the fellows in the army and navy. I know how much enjoyment I get from reading about the happenings in the home town, and I'm sure they all feel the same. I also want to give you my new address. The 12th Group has been stationed at Esler Field, Louisiana. We left McChord Field about two weeks ago, and traveled through Oregon, California, Nevada, Arizona, Texas, and now, here we are in the sunny south. We got here just in time to catch the spring rainy season, and if it's true about what I hear we'll be catching mosquitoes later on. I was not one of the fortunate ones to fly down, but we all had a swell time on the train and arrived here a week ago last Friday. We unloaded our equipment off the train and moved it out here to the field which is about 14 miles from the town of Alexandria. When we got out here to the field we discovered that we had an altogether different setup than at McChord. We are living in tents and eat out of our field mess kits. I thought I wouldn't like it at first but after we were in tents for a while I got to like it better than barracks. Of course there is plenty of disadvantages of which we're not accustomed to, but we are here for the purpose of getting the fellows used to roughing it. The men do a lot of kicking, but I believe the majority love it just the same.

When my recruit training was over at McChord Field, I took the physical examination for enlisted pilots training but didn't pass it because of poor teeth. Then I signed up to be an aerial gunner. I was on the flying status for two months and the war began. Immediately they gave us a physical exam qualifying us for members of the combat crew. I washed out on this also because my blood pressure was a couple points below the average. I tried to get a waiver on the exam but couldn't so I was put on aircraft armament maintenance. My duties were to see that the guns, bomb racks, etc. were ready for combat duty at all times. But when we moved down here I went to see our commanding officer and asked him to try to get me back on combat crew. I told him that I had not been feeling well the day we took our exam at McChord and that that had probably affected my blood pressure. He agreed and so got me a waiver. I took the exam over again day before yesterday and passed with flying colors. So now I'm an aerial gunner again, and next month I'll be back on flying pay which is half of my base pay. That is just about all of my life history in the air corps to date, but I might add that I enjoy the work I'm doing and am proud to do my part, however small it may be, to the great task to Keep 'Em Flying.

Sincerely yours
Corporal Stanley Evers

FARM BRIEFS

Cows must be fed well if they are to produce well.

Waiting until just before baby chicks are wanted to order them may result in disappointment.

It will be hard to buy canned vegetables this year because of a shortage of both vegetables (which will be shipped to our Allies) and tin for cans. Grow a garden.

The European corn borer is moving slowly westward despite strenuous measures to hold it in check. The number of Illinois counties reporting infestation increased from five in 1939 to 43 in 1941.

Because it is apparently easy to digest, goats milk is often recommended for infants, children, convalescents, adults troubled with digestive disturbances and those allergic to other milk.

Every farm needs a garden this year.

To avoid loss, test all farm and garden seeds for germination before planting.

Mimeograph supplies of all sorts handled at Courier office.—Adv 23 appeared three to six months ago, it is entirely feasible today in the opinion of army authorities. Lieut. General Ben Lear, visiting Fort Custer for an inspection, told reporters that enemy bombers could base in the Hudson bay district and easily fly to Michigan.

LANSING LETTER

Equally important in modern warfare would be its propaganda value: The home moral stimulant from such a raid to inland centers of the United States. (Imagine how we would thrill over newspaper headlines of an American air raid on Tokyo!)

The Yankee spirit of '42 is shown by the following public notice on the front page of a weekly newspaper in Wayne county, the Huron County Sentinel at Flat Rock:

"Have you a pail of sand in your attic and also a pail on the second floor of your home to extinguish an incendiary bomb? The village of Flat Rock has sand available for this purpose. Bring pails for sand to police headquarters. Merell Page, Village Clerk."

Farmers are faced with a severe labor shortage, so warns Dean E. L. Anthony, department of agriculture at Michigan State College.

Anthony says farmers do not apparently realize the seriousness of the situation, caused by selective service demands. The American army in the last war numbered 3,673,888 men on November 11, 1918; today military authorities are talking in terms of a 10,000,000-man AEF.

Michigan workers in industrial defense approximate 400,000, according to George H. Fern, state director of vocational education.

Today's labor surplus, due to conversion of automobile plants, is around 170,000. Within six months it will be replaced by a shortage, and Fern foresees greater employment of women in war plants. The Ford bomber plant at Willow Run is expected to employ 12,000 to 20,000 women.

Vernon J. Brown, state auditor general, recently bought a farm four miles east of Mason where he was born 60 years ago. As the Ingham County News at Mason heralded the event: "After a lot of hard work he has been able to get back where he was 35 years ago (when he abandoned the farm for city life). Last Saturday he bought the old homestead back. He intends to plant the farm to alfalfa, buy a half-dozen bees, and a hen or two and be a gentleman farmer."

In the opinion of Federal Judge Frank A. Picard of Saginaw, the state's liquor control commission should exercise more control, not less; the state should gain from the profit, not the private merchant.

As reported by Guy H. Jenkins, ace Booth correspondent at Lansing, the 1943 legislature may get recommendations to this effect from the three-man study commission appointed recently by the governor and headed by Picard.

Curfew regulations for sale of gasoline and oil are expected soon, reports William A. Palmer, director of the Michigan Petroleum Industries Committee. Reasons: Reduced consumption of gasoline, due to automobile and tire restrictions, is inflicting hardships on gasoline dealers; saving of electricity for industrial needs.

But no rationing of gasoline is in prospect for Mid-West states.

In fact, it's just the other way. Today's surplus of refined gasoline is the largest in many years.

A court decision on the civil service commission's interpretation of the new state amendment is expected at Lansing this week. Approximately 2,800 state employees, formerly sponsored by political friends, are involved in whether they were discriminated against by the commission which accepted certain merit systems (state police and state conservation departments, for example), results of examinations conducted in 1937 and 1939, but required them to take competitive examinations.

RATION REGULATIONS GIVEN EXPLANATION

Start Rationing Typewriters April 13; Sale Used Ones Banned

Men ordered into the armed services now are permitted to sell their new automobiles, the state rationing administration announced Monday.

Such cars, including 1942 models or any car with less than 1,000 miles of travel, may be sold to any purchaser but the transaction must be passed by the local rationing board. Sale of such vehicles was stopped March 9.

The rationing of used typewriters was ordered Monday to start April 13, and meanwhile the sale of used machines is forbidden. The administration said dealers, wholesalers, manufacturers and persons who repair, recondition or rebuild machines may purchase them with the understanding they will not be resold until rationing has begun.

Used typewriters may be rented but they must be returned to the dealer any time the office of price administration may demand. The rationing order says that when rationing starts used typewriters may be sold upon approval of local rationing boards to prime contractors producing war materials.

One item regards removal of the Ohls yacht Reomar, the other fails to signify, while telling that Bruce Withers and Bob Fochtman have reached Australia, any reference to the branch of military service they are connected. When news items of this nature appear incomplete, censorship is the reason, for a copy of this paper can easily reach the hands of our enemies.

K. P. LADIES ENTERTAINED AT BANQUET

Turkey Dinner and Entertainment Program for Hundred Guests

Each year the local Knights of Pythias entertain their wives and sweethearts with a party, and this year's banquet was exceptionally good, according to Fay A. Bradley, fraternal correspondent.

Monday night at 7 o'clock, approximately a hundred guests were seated for a full course turkey dinner at the lodge hall. Arlo Wickersham, Ronald Fairbanks, George Cook, Frank Novotny and Bud Gill proved to be real chefs.

The entertainment committee consisted of Ralph Nutter, Earl J. Shapton and J. C. Marshall. E. J. Edwards, district deputy, gave a welcome to the ladies. Mrs. Frank Bird gave the response for the ladies. Eileen and Eddis Leigh Hagle sang in a manner to make the K. P's. really proud of the P. K's (Preacher's Kids). Max Smith and his German-American band "turned the blitz on Fritz." Remainder of the evening was spent in playing bingo, cards, ping pong and dancing. It's rumored that now the ladies are being more lenient when the fellows come home late on Monday nights!

FARM BUREAU OPPOSED TO CIO DAIRY UNIONS

Labor Organization Control Seen As Unfavorable Condition

The Michigan State Farm bureau's board of directors at Lansing, went on record formally Monday, declaring itself a foe of the Michigan Dairy Farmers union, an affiliate of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

The board adopted a resolution declaring farmers should not "become involved in membership in a farm organization fostered and possibly controlled by a labor organization or any other non-farm group."

"Whose voice can we expect to hear when such a farm organization speaks?" the resolution demanded, asserting that the organization would bring dairy farmers into a "miscellaneous conglomeration of such unions as workers in plastics, public utilities, casket manufacturing, drop forging, cosmetics, etc."

SUGAR RATION TO BE HALF POUND A PERSON

Expect Registration Will Be Held Second Week In April

State rationing officials were notified Friday by the office of price administration that the sugar rationing probably would be delayed until the second week of April in order to permit a thorough distribution of sugar stamp booklets.

"It is now definite that the amount of sugar which will be available under the rationing plan will be one half pound per person per week," Arthur H. Sarvis, state rationing administrator said.

"While the word 'sugar' does not appear on the rationing booklets, the first eight stamps in the booklet will be good for one pound of sugar each, and each stamp will be good for two weeks. This means the amount to be available will be one-half pound per person.

Sarvis said every school in Michigan now was ready for the four-day intensive registration which originally had been set for March 16.

THE FARM BUREAU

An Organization Of, By and For the Farmers

We all know that industry and labor are organized, why not farmers? What can farmers expect if we do not join hands for the betterment of agriculture? Farm Bureau means you and your neighbor joining hands. That is what it is. Why not join now to make your farm organization stronger to meet the coming problems which we are sure to face in the future? Your neighbor cannot thresh alone, neither can he fight the battle for agriculture without the help of his neighbor farmers.

We understand labor unions (CIO) are organizing farmers in some parts of the state. Now the question is: Do you want to be governed by an organization which does not think that agriculture should have a parity price or would it be the thing to do to join your own farm organization — The Farm Bureau — with your member farmers where you have the voting right to elect your own officers?

Now is the time to give some thought to the future. If we are not organized stronger we will be in the same position we were in after World War I. If we are not organized to stand up for agriculture, there is one thing sure, no one else will. All farmers have had the benefits of the Farm Bureau's efforts the same as the member that has made these things possible. Now, the Farm Bureau is asking you to join the organization that has done much for agriculture in the past and will continue to fight for equality of farmers.

SUGAR RATIDNING PLAN IS OUTLINED

REGISTRATNON FOR PUBLIC SET ON MAY 4, 5, 6, 7

Sugar to Be Taken Off Market From April 25 to May 5 As Preparatory Step In Plan

Details of the sugar rationing plan, information the public has awaited since earlier announcement that this commodity would be curtailed, were released last Saturday.

John E. Ham, acting chief of the Office of Price Administration, reported that sugar would go off the market on April 25 and would not be nvailable to buyers agnin until ubout May 5. The action is taken as a step preparatory to sales under rationing, which will go into effect as soon as the moratorium on sales ends.

Registration of individunl or fumily consumers will be held May 4, 5, 6 and 7 at public elementary schools, nnd registration of wholesalers, retailers, bakers, confectioners and other industrial users will be held at high schools April 28 and 29.

It has not yet been determined whether the weekly individual ration would be a half pound or three-quarters of a pound.

Thv hour of registration on the May dates is to be set locally and will be announced. One member of a family can register the entire household. He or she will fill out and sign nn application giving the name, age and address of each applicant and the amount of sugar on hand.

Each person will receive a war ration book. It will contain 28 stumps. Each stamp represents a two-week sugar allolment. (That is, each will permit the holder to huy a pound or pound and a half of sugar during the period.) If the stamp is not used in the buying period, it will not be good thereafter.

The registrar will tear out of the book a sufficient number of stamps to cover the amount of sugar in excess of two pounds per person on hand at the time of registration. Consumers will give stamps to storekeepers when purchases are made and the storekeepers will use the accumulated stamps, in turn, when they buy fresh supplies.

It was estimated that registration would require five minutes for each person.

Industrial users will use certificates instead of stumps. The exact formula for their allotments has not yet been fixed.

STOP DISTRIBUTION STATE HIGHWAY MAPS

War Department Order Effective for Duration of War

State Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy this week ordered distribution of official state highway department msps discontinued for the duration of the war.

Kennedy's action followed receipt of a communication from Major General J. M. Cummins, commanding officer of the Sixth Corps Area, in answer to a query made by the department relative to further distribution of maps.

"Upon inspection of the latest highway map," Cummins said, "it seems advisable to discontinue general distribution of Michigan highway maps, except tn nfficial agencies and to various defense organizations upon determination of the purposes for which they will be used."

In explaining his decision, Cummins said "this is an exceptionally fine, well-detailed map which would be of great value to unfriendly ngencies were it to be given general distribution."

LOCAL FISHERMAN DROWNED FRIDAY

DON CAMPEAU, 28, LOST LIFE WHEN BOAT BURNED

Don Cross, Owner of Fish Tug Violet, Swam Half Mile to Shore on North Manitou Island

Don Campeau, 28, local commercial fisherman, was drowned in Lake Michigan n short distance east of North Manitou Island early Friday morning when the fish tug Violet, owned and operated by Don Cross, this city, burned.

Cross, age 31, swam ashore nnd walked some distance before meeting assistance. He was later taken by coast guard plane to Traverse City for treatment at Munson Hospital for third degree burns, shock and exposure.

According to Cross, the tug, laying at anchor, caught fire when gasoline which was being transferred from an auxiliary supply drum into the tank splashed onto a stove used to heat the boat and ignited. Both men were forced to dive overboard into a blazing sheet of oil. Campeau, apparently taken with cramps, sank a short distance from the boat. His body was recovered by South Manitou Island coast guardsmen Tuesday morning. Cross, forced to dive beneath the water at first to escape being burned, swam 75 yards to shore fully clad and wearing shoes.

Word of the tragedy was transmitted by telephone from the Manitous to Frankfort and relayed to Traverse City, bringing the coast guard airplane patrol to the scene. Attempts by the plane and coast guard crews with surf boats to locate Campeau's body were unsuccessful.

Campeau, a former resident of Pellston nnd Petoskey, had resided here for some time. He was to have been married last Saturday to Maude Seaberg, it is understood.

Incidentally, this marked the first public appearance of the quartet, selected from local devotees of the art of barber shop quartet singing.

Rev. Leigh H. Hagle was speaker. His subject was "Hypocrites," and in his talk he defined a new kind of hypocrite, the man who is too satisfied and contented with the world and will make no effort to improve nny part of it. He urged his listeners to shake off complacence and to give their best efforts toward the making of a better world, in whatever way possible for them, as well as to strive to improve their own personal condition in life.

BOARD COMMERCE PROBLEMS AIRED

FIRST GENERAL MEETING HELD WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Large Attendance Out For Session; Many Subjects Concerning Welfare of City Discussed

The first general meeting of the Charlevoix board of commerce following the annual election was held Wednesday evening at the city hall with a large attendance and interesting discussion of matters relating to welfare of Charlevoix.

Earl A. Young reported one convention secured for 1942, that of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, to be held at Belvedere Hotel.

Reporting for the fish and game committee, Ray Ranger related 963,000 lake trout were being reared at the federal fish hatchery, that Oden state hatchery officials had promised fish for the Stover creek rearing ponds and downtown parks.

John Nordrum, member of the marine committee, suggested lengthening Round lake yacht slips 10 feet and making docks higher, provision for a childrens diving board and equipment for water recreation. These items will be included in the budget.

Charles Hamlin, vice-president, showed a petition originating in Eveline township and protesting discontinuance of the Ironton ferry service during a long period this winter, as well as general dissatisfaction with the ferry service. Mr. Hamlin, together with John Nordrum and Earl W. Miller will appear with others at the next meeting of the board of supervisors on this matter. The advisability of making city-owned lake frontage accessible to the public by opening roads to the water's edge was discussed.

ASK FARMERS TO BURN MARSHES BEFORE APR. 1

Protection of Nesting Wildlife Aim Conservation Department

While reiterating its stand against spring burning of the marsh and roadside type that annually destroys many nesting birds, rabbits and other game, the conservation department is advising farmers and woodsmen who have legitimate burnings of slash to make to finish them before April 1 whenever possible.

The department is tightening restrictions on issuance of burning permits, without which no brush fires may be started in the northern counties after the snow goes. Towermen and fire wardens will be on the alert for sabotage in every unauthorized brush fire.

Marsh and roadside fires, set "to clean things up" even though they burn the fertility out of the soil, sometimes get out of hand to do great damage, conservation officials say. These fires are reported decreasing, however, as modern ideas of soil management become better understood.

LAKE TROUT REARING IS UNDER WAY

NEAR MILLION FRY AT FEDERAL HATCHERY

Planting at Length of Between 3 and 4 Inches Expected to Take Place in July

A lake trout rearing program is again under way at the Charlevoix hatchery of the U. S. Fish and Wild Life Service following transfer of fry from the Oden state hatchery.

Lige Geer, hatchery superintendent, stated today that 936,000 fry transferred on March 2, 3 and 4, by Emerson Kreig, of the Oden hatchery are now occupying the hatchery's battery of rearing troughs. The transfer this year was the same date as a year ago, and a month earlier than in 1940. Since arrival the fish have nearly doubled in size, now averaging around an inch in length.

Food given the fish this year is liver provided by Wilson & Co., Inc., of Albert-Lee, Minn., at 14c per pound, allowing considerable savings over previous years. The liver is treated with a preservative to prevent spoiling and is unfit for human consumption.

Barring unforeseen difficulties, the fish should be ready for planting around July 1st. They are expected to reach a length of between 3 and 4 inches by that time.

In addition to Mr. Geer, Dan Potter, regular hatchery employe, is assisting with the work.

This season will mark the fourth year of operation of the local federal hatchery as a rearing unit. Last year's program was an outstanding success, with several hundred thousand fingerlings between 3 and 4 inches being reared.

The fry was hatched at Oden from spawn taken by local and other Lake Michigan commercial fishermen last fall.

GREATER APPRECIATION OF NATION'S NEED RESULT

Necessity of Civilian Cooperation In War Effort Stressed by Visiting Speakers

A keener appreciation of the need for civilinn cooperation in the nation's defense effort has resulted from a patriotic rally held here Sunday under auspices of the National Council of Catholic Men.

With forty in attendance, including officials of nearby cities and heads of local civic organizations, a luncheon at Parkside Dining Room opened the afternoon program. Floyd A. Supp, toastmaster, introduced Thomas Walsh, Grand Rapids airport manager, John A. Collins, mayor of East Grand Rapids, and Edwin K. Ruehling, of East Jordan, chairman of the Charlevoix County Defense Council, speakers at the rally, also other guests.

Postmaster J. M. Foster, president of the sponsoring organization, was chairman at the rally held at the gymnasium. The program opened with invocation by Rev. John W. Collins, followed by pledge of allegiance by the assembly, "America," played by the city band, assembly singing and the Boy Scout oath. Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Legion members attended in a body.

Mr. Ruehling gave a report on activities of the county defense council, stressing particularly progress toward establishment of civilian fire and police departments to protect highways, bridges, water and electric utilities in case of emergency.

Mr. Walsh, speaking on the topic, "Wake Up, America," stated winning of the war hinged largely on a 4-point policy urged for many years by the American Legion, which included a two-ocean navy, large standing army, great air force and universal military service including draft of wealth nad labor if necessary. He stressed importance of the Soo locks, and told of a system of airports built in Michigan to provide air protection for this vital area.

Mr. Collins, member of the Kent county defense council, urged citizens to enter civilian defense duties as a means of aiding conservation of materials, health, labor, nutrition.

The program was concluded with the national anthem.

Two motor boats and a small sailboat, as well as furnishings of a clubroom on the second floor of the structure burned. The loss is estimated at several thousand dollars.

Chinese Tombstone: "Me, in person. No movie. No talkie."

Saturday was the first day of Spring and, just as if the calendar wasn't enough indication, Mrs. Ray Faulkner rolled to tell me she'd put a couple a daffodil and crocus blooming on the south side of her home at the corner of Petoskey avenue and Nettleton way. Mr. Harry Hilton reported seeing robins Wednesday and I saw a couple Saturday morning myself. So whether you want to believe it or not, Spring's here.

And that remind me it's just 60 days before the trout fishing season opens.

If you can't anything about going around looking natural, you'd better buy some new pants or a suit of clothes before March 30th, for after that date cuffs on pants are out and I understand they're going to make suits without lapels. I asked a man who'd spent most of his life making suits if any material could be saved by eliminating lapels and he said absolutely there wouldn't be and I'm wondering also what in the world the good will be of cutting off material made into perhaps millions of pairs of pants after they have been made. It looks as if Washington was full of guys thinking up just such crackpot schemes as this to justify holding down a job.

One remedy for the shortage might be to rubberize the pavements so that cars don't need tires.

It's mighty nice to have the commercial fishing fleet back with us again and quite in keeping with the season to see Round lake clear of ice. The boats kept picking away at the southwest corner until it now is all clear except for occasional cakes floating around.

Speaking about absence of ice in Round lake recalls the fact that all-winter communication by boat between the mainland and Beaver Island has established a record.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

If the fall elections were to be held today, many Michigan officeholders would be buried in a landslide protest.

Fortunately for these public officials, in Washington as well as in Lansing, we're still going to have an election in November, not this spring.

Right or wrong, the man on the street is pretty mad today. He is mad about the way the war is going. He is mad about labor's insistence of double pay for Sunday work, while the government asks him to buy bonds cheerfully and to pay more taxes. He is mad about a 40 hour week, while his son serves in the army for $21 a month.

He is mad about Congress. He is mad about the state defense officials.

He is just plain mad—fruit at rot, peeved, and sore.

The popular protest is a reaction to several war developments.

We are losing a war, and we don't like it a bit. The idea of Americans being beaten isn't natural to us. Hence, we would like to kick someone in the pants, toot sweet, and if a Nazi or Jap isn't handy, we'll take the next best thing at home.

We read headlines that the CIO in Detroit automobile plants must be paid double time for work on Sunday, and that Michigan sons who get $21 a month are killed in Java. That doesn't make sense.

Nearly 400,000 Michigan men registered a few weeks ago for selective service. On March 18 many of the boards received telegrams at a letter y at Washington. We have possible military action, and that brings the war home to us better than ever.

Our income taxes are higher, too. That is a real pain, but it makes us think a bit more.

Governor Frank Murphy, fair old fellow to labor during the sit-down strike, was caught in a protest wave at the following November election.

ROCK ELM

Mr. Slough and Jesse Lawton are making maple syrup this spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie O'Dell and Miss Beatrice Teboe made a trip to Northport Saturday.

If there is anything in signs the weather for the next three months won't be very pleasant.

Elmer Jensen recently purchased a team of horses to replace the team he had the misfortune to lose last fall.

Sunday's storm didn't shut us in for so long as the one that came the 7th. The plow came through Monday afternoon.

Lawrence Jensen now has his yard light, which was put out of commission by the recent storm, in working order again.

Leslie O'Dell started out with his car Monday morning to go to Ellsworth. But he hadn't gone far before he found himself stuck in a snow drift and on looking ahead decided it would take too much shoveling to open the road so he backed up and decided to wait for the snow plow.

AT THE MOVIES

"The Corsican Brothers"

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., one of the screen's most popular personalities, returns to the screen as the swashbuckling hero of Edward Small's lavish production of the Alexandre Dumas classic, "The Corsican Brothers," which will have its local premiere March 28 at the Palace Theatre.

Directed by Gregory Ratoff and based on the screen adaptation by Howard Estabrook, "The Corsican Brothers" not only brings Doug Jr. back to the screen after a fourteen-month absence but stars him in a dual role. His leading lady in the film is Ruth Warrick, and others who are featured in the supporting cast include Henry Wilcoxon, Akim Tamiroff, J. Carroll Naish, John Emery, H. B. Warner and Gloria Holden.

"New York Town"

"New York Town" Paramount's all-star comedy drama which arrives April 1 at the Palace Theatre, is a gay comedy of life in the Big Town—especially among those folks who make up the majority of the city's heartbeats.

Fred MacMurray appears as a sidewalk photographer whose only interest in life is to click with his customers and find new angles to outsmart the world. Mary Martin is the small town girl on whom Fred focuses all his attention in a brotherly sort of way until Robert Preston, wealthy young playboy, gives him some competition.

"Secret of the Wastelands"

It's Oriental intrigue — vieing with the machinations of gold-crazed desperadoes for the hidden treasures of a long vanished race on the great American plains which call "Hopalong" Cassidy, the screen's greatest cowboy, into the saddle for his latest action romance "Secret of the Wastelands" which opens April 1 at the Palace Theatre.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

By Roth Edwards

Though starting from almost scratch, the Girl Scouting movement in Charlevoix has climbed on to new heights. Five new leaders were secured through the efforts of Mrs. Ladd and the older Girl Scouts. These leaders are: Mrs. Evans and Miss Thomas for Troop 1, the older girls; and Mrs. Bleha, Mrs. Novak and Ruth Edwards for the younger girls in Troop 2. The new division of troops, according to age, was advocated by national headquarters.

The next great step was the organization of an active troop committee. None of the women on this committee have ever been scouts, but are diligently striving to find out all there is to know. At the last meeting with the leaders, members were assigned to special tasks. They are as follows: Mrs. A. Wexstaff, general committee chairman and chairman of the training committee; Mrs. Webster, chairman of the program committee; Mrs. Trina Nelson, chairman of the knitting and flower committee; Mrs. C. Hamlin, chairman of the public relations committee; Mrs. North, camp chairman; Mrs. See, finance chairman; Mrs. J. C. Marshall, finance committee; Mrs. S. Coleman, Juliette Low Member.

An all out effort is being made to prepare Charlevoix Girl Scouts for this great emergency. Rev. Haglo willingly accepted the position of first aid instructor for Troop 1. He has had considerable training and practice along this line. The girls are reaping full benefit. The topic for this week is "Fractures—Simple and Compound."

Nor are the younger girls going to be called "slackers." Miss Stokum, a nurse at the hospital, graciously agreed to teach them first aid. This course will not be as extensive as the regular course. So far they have learned what first aid is and the few basic musts. Bandages for minor wounds will be practiced this week.

Later on members of both troops will make defense kits and equip them.

Of primary importance at present is the annual national cookie sale. Orders for the cookies (they're super) will be taken during the spring vacation. Help us make this a real success! Will you?

Camping time has always been looked forward to as a time of great experience. It is a time when you really find out of what a girl is made. "You never know a person until you've camped with him." Two cabins have already been promised the older girls for a period of a week so they may benefit from a camping experience.

The Girl Scouts of Troop 2 will have a cookie sale on April 20-22. These cookies will be the regular Girl Scout cookies.

The girls of the Lily of the Valley patrol went on a hike lead by Miss Ruth Edwards last Saturday.

In first aid they have learned what to do for burns, small cuts, etc. This week they will learn how to bandage different parts of the body. Each girl is to make a small first aid kit, which can be carried very easily.

The Girl Scouts hope to be of some value to the community.

CHAPTER X

Richard said after a moment quietly: "Maybe I was wrong. Maybe I'd best have let you stay." He hesitated, said at last curtly: "Mr. McAusland, do as you like; but I'll have to run the ship my way."

He turned away. Peter had joined them in time to hear the last word. "Dick takes his job too hard. He's all blown up with it!"

Mary ignored him, urged: "Perhaps Richard's right, George. And even if he isn't, he must do as he thinks wisest. Come down to the cabin with me."

But George declined to do so. "I'll not shut my eyes," he said. "I'm not a coward."

So they stayed on deck that day while the work of provisioning the ship went forward.

They could not be ready to depart that afternoon; and the boats stayed ashore well into the night. Next morning they made to sea.

Mary hoped that once they were away George would forget his anger at Richard; but he did not, and for days after they left the island, the few minutes they all spent together at the table were made awkward by her husband's wrathful silence, and by Richard's defensive dignity.

The stop for provisions had altered not only the humor of the crew but the very appearance of the Venturer. They had taken on tremendous quantities of fresh fruits. A huge cask lashed to the port rail was full of green coconuts. Bunches of bananas hung under the boat house and wherever else room could be found. The potato room where Tommy Hanline slept was so full of yams and plantains and breadfruit that Tommy had to crawl over them to reach his bunk.

Another change took place in the routine aboard after they left the island. George remembered his calling, and with the air of one expecting a refusal, asked Richard's permission to hold a Sunday morning service on deck. Richard consented, and the thing was done. Mary suspected that Corkran was responsible for the quiet and respectful demeanor of the men when they assembled; but when George began to speak, he held them. George, facing an audience, had a spiritual authority and dignity that were fine to see. She realized, while she listened, that her attitude toward her husband had always been protective; her tenderness a little condescending.

She told him afterward how proud she was, and Richard also spoke to George gratefully and appreciatively. She hoped the constraint between them would be forgotten. But George did not relent at all; and matters were still thus tight and strained in the cabin, on the day when at last they sighted a whale.

A whaler may kill and save in the course of a voyage two or three dozen whales; and she may kill others and lose them by sinking or in a sudden gale. Most of her captures are routine; but now and then a whale makes trouble. What happened to the Venturer today was one of those extraordinary and isolated phenomena which become legends; and it would take its place in whaling lore.

One of the sailors aloft, a New Bedford man named Gibbons, called down to the after deck:

"Sparm whale on the port quarter, sir, about two miles off."

There was at that a quick and instant stir upon the Venturer. Mat Forbes at a word from Richard ran halfway up the mizzen ratlines and shouted to the men aloft to make haste with the topgallant sails. Richard came to the port rail to look off across the leaden sea. Mat Forbes spoke quietly to Richard on the deck below him.

"Sharks at him, Cap'n Corr."

Richard nodded.

"All right. Clear boats and stand by to lower."

Feet moved along the deck to obey. Mat Forbes, descending to the deck, said quietly:

"Whale's moving this way, sir."

Richard looked at the weather to the westward.

He watched the work, watching the Venturer come to and fall off lazily.

The whale drew nearer; and even from the decks they could see now his efforts to beat off his attackers. He surged to and fro, flukes now and then rising ponderously; and as the fight came steadily nearer them, they could hear the thrash of the flukes, the sigh of the spout, the broken water when he drove this way and that. Peter, standing with George and Mary although his men were ready by his boat yonder, moved restlessly.

"There's something wrong with him," he muttered, "or he'd have driven them off by now. Might be he's hurt or sick or something. Maybe he's got an iron in him." He licked his lips in a nervous tremor.

Richard said just behind them: "Weather coming, Peter; but we'll try for him anyway. Ready to lower?" The Venturer, counter-braced, still made a little way. He called to Mat: "Back the cro-jack yard, Mr. Forbes."

The men leaped at Mat's command.

"Dick, he's a crooked jaw," Peter exclaimed. "He's ugly. He'll be a fighter; and if he busts a boat, the water's full of sharks."

His voice cracked as he spoke, and Richard looked at him briefly. "Mr. Forbes and I will lower," he decided then. "You keep ship, Peter."

Peter cried sharply: "He'll bump us, the way he's headed!"

The Venturer was almost motionless, the whale now close aboard. Mary had been watching Peter, sick and ashamed at what she saw; but at his word she turned to look and saw the whale, close now, rolling blindly on its back to bite; and she saw the thrashing body of a great shark caught in its jaws and cut in two. She cried out in awe and terror at the sight.

CHAPTER XI

The whale righted itself and came quartering toward their bow in a sudden rush. Richard leaped forward into the waist as though with his own hands to fend the creature off; and an instant later it shouldered against the Venturer's side. Mary, looking down, saw the great black bulk in the water, and the slender gray shapes of the sharks in attendance. George clung hard beside her, and Peter gasped:

"Godfrey, Dick! He'll sink us!"

Richard ran aft toward where his boat hung. The whale drew off, circling slowly, lifting his head as though in an effort to locate the ship for a new attack. Richard called briskly:

"Lower away, Mr Forbes! Peter, get the Brand gun. Stick a bomb into him if he comes near the ship again."

His boat struck the water with a small [illegible] were carried to [illegible] farthest [illegible]

Mary felt young Tommy Hanline hanging to her arm, his small hands tight as a tourniquet. Mat's boat hit the water; but Richard had already darted away from the Venturer's side, the long oars bending as the men put into them every ounce of strength. Mary thought for a moment the boat would meet the whale head on; and she heard a voice scream a warning, and knew it was her own.

Then she saw Richard swing the steering oar in a great sweep, and the whaleboat swerved on a pivot to let the whale slide by; and instantly it darted in again till she thought the bow would ride up on that huge body just aswash. Richard's great voice was like a trumpet.

"Sock him, Pip!"

She saw Big Pip, knee braced in the clumsy cleat, the heavy harpoon poised, drive it in and down; and instantly, before the boat veered off again, he sank the second iron. Big Pip swept the loose coils of the box warp overboard. He and Richard changed places, scrambling over the oarsmen, who bent low over the thwarts to let them pass. By the time Richard was in the bow and Big Pip at the steering oar, the whale saw the boat riding there, and lunged toward them; and the men swung hard on the oars, and Big Pip dodged out of the whale's path and in again. Mary saw Richard drive home the lance, deep into that black side.

Mary saw only a smother of confusion, action too swift to follow; but the men on the Venturer and in Mat Forbes' boat, watching more wisely, knowing without seeing what went on in that fury of torn water, saw that Richard was as wild with the heat of battle now as was the whale.

For after a desperate minute or two of this in-and-out fighting, he closed with his antagonist. Under his strong commands, the men hauled in on the line till the boat was close against the whale's side. Richard reached far over the bow to grip the line and draw the boat further forward along the whale's body, and while close-alongside, Richard drove the lance deep and deep again, searching for that huge reservoir in which the whale stores fresh blood for his long stays under water and which whalemen call the "life."

The whale could not bite them, nor could its flukes strike the boat. But if it rolled toward them, they must be crushed under its body and left helpless in the water. Big Pip bawled:

"Ware roll, Cap'n!"

Richard, braced and firm, as much a part of the boat as though he were nailed to it, drove his lance again. Tommy screamed:

"There he rolls!"

But the whale rolled away from the boat, not toward it; and in so doing, its under parts were for a moment exposed.

War Order LIMITS
Telephone Installations

For more than a year this company has met an unprecedented service demand and generally has installed telephones when and where they were wanted. Material shortages now make it impossible to meet some requests for telephone service.

The expansion to care for past service requests was accomplished, despite a greatly curtailed supply of vital materials, through emergency engineering methods and the use of alternate materials.

Now, the War Production Board has issued an order that expands those practices and places further restrictions.

SOME EFFECTS OF ORDER ON TELEPHONE USERS

1. PARTY LINES, only, can be installed in many cases.
2. EXTENSION TELEPHONES cannot be installed in residences except where needed by those responsible for public health, welfare or security.
3. TELEPHONES of wall or desk (upright) types cannot be changed to hand sets.
4. MANUAL TELEPHONE SWITCHBOARDS may not be changed to dial except where the work is well advanced.

Michigan Bell will endeavor to administer the order equitably and regrets any inconvenience the public will experience.

IRON MINERS VS. WATERWAY

Upper Michigan's iron ore industry faces the plan to deepen the St. Lawrence as the greatest threat in its history, according to Floyd E. Drake, secretary of the Railroad Co-Operative League of Michigan, which has aggressively fought the water project.

"The day which sees the beginning of n deeper St. Lawrence marks a day when Michigan's iron industry is liable to face disaster," Drake declares, adding "the shovels that dig a deeper waterway may halt the shovels that are digging ore in our upper peninsula mines. Beyond that stop and think what this condition would mean to the whole of Michigan in business and taxes." The railroad league is circulnrizing thru the upper peninsula thousands of copies of a pamphlet just issued in which the alleged damages to the iron ore industry are outlined.

"Some people wonder how a deeper St. Lawrence could affect the upper peninsula's iron industry," Drake declared. "A bit of study will show bow it can.

"For instance the average iron mine wage in the north country is 72½ cents an hour. In England common steel labor is paid 20 cents an hour. In Brazil iron ore miners earn 5 cents an hour, in India 4 counts an hour. These countries, and Sweden, Russia, Chile and Cuba have vast iron ore deposits. Their cheap labor can get those deposits to the surface at costs vastly below those in northern Michigan. And those and other foreign countries can underaell us right here in our own American markets.

"For instance, before the war Belgian and German steel was delivered in New York for about $5 a ton less than domestic steel, Chilean Bessemer ores at Atlantic ports for less than $2 a ton, and low Cuban ores even recently have been delivered at the same ports for less than $2.50 a ton. In contrast, Michigan hessemer ores were being delivered at lower lake ports last year at approximately $5.40 per ton.

"A deeper St. Lawrence would only aggravate this condition. Only tramp steamers now use the river's 14-foot channel. Deepening it would permit larger foreign steamers to enter into the Great Lakes. Foreign ships pay an average of $24 a month to their sailors. In contrast the minimum deck hand wage on U. S. lake ships is $06 per month. It would simply mean that bigger foreign ships, with their under-paid, under-fed, poorly-quartered crews, would bring in larger quantities of cheap foreign iron and could even dump it on the docks at Marquette, Houghton, Escanaba, the Soo and Menominee at prices as low as it takes to get the iron ora out of the mines that in many cases adjoin these towns.

"Deepen the St. Lawrence, and America's $300,000,000 iron ore industry, with its $300,000,000 of affiliated ships, docks, railroads, etc., and its $150,000,000 a year payroll and ore handling expenditures would be most seriously affected and America from that point on might be dependent for its iron on foreign countries just as it is today for its tin and rubber."

 3 FACTORS RULE * CARE OF RUBBER

Elastic fabrics, household gadgets rimmed with rubber and any other home equipment of which part is rubber needs extra care these days against the three principal enemies af rubber.

Members of the home economics extension staff at Michigan State college suggest homemakers remember that heat, light and oil or grease are these three factors, according to the federal bureau of homo economics of the United State Department of Agriculture.

The higher the temperature, the more quickly rubber gets weak, cracks, becomes sticky. Sunlight is especially harmful because it combines the destructive action of both heat and light. And rubber, left in contact with oil or grease for long, swells and becomes weak.

Rubber used in elastic fabrics, such as foundation garments, is more easily damaged by oil and grease than other kinds of rubber. If these garments are worn next to the skin, the body oils may cause them to weaken unless they are washed frequently.

Rubber goods can he kept clean with warm water or with water and soap. Any kind of soap will be safe on articles made solely of rubber. But if the garment is part fabric, a mild soap protects the fabric. Rubber articles or garments should be dried in a cool or only moderately warm place, never near a radiator, stove, or hot pipe. Direct sunlight is harmful. If a garment with rubber in it needs ironing, it should be pressed as lightly as possible.

"Never dry clean any garment that has rubber in it," warn those who know. "But if you can't get oil, grease, or tar off rubber with soap and water, a dry cleaning fluid will remove them. Sponge the rubber lightly with the fluid. Even in stubborn cases, never leave rubber in fluid more than two or three minutes. Be very careful of the rubber while it has the fluid on it, because it is weaker and tears more easily. Carbon tetrachloride is recommended as an efficient fluid. If you use any other dry-cleaning fluid, be sure it evaporates quickly and leaves no deposit as it evaporates. Never use gasoline motor fuel."

Rubber should be stored ia a cool, dark place. If the storage space is not dark, drap the rubber in thick paper or put it in a covered box. Try to store the article in as natural a position as possible. If you must fold it, dust the surfaces that come in contact with each other with talcum powder or cornstarch.

Cherry Growers Perfecting Statewide Organization

A plan to collect and distribute accurate cherry crop and market information was farthered at a meeting of representative cherry growers at Shelby Thursday. Twenty growers elected in county meetings made plans to set up a state-wide organization to cooperate with the New York Cherry Growers association and similar groups in other states.

It is expected that accurate crop and market iaformatioa will place the indivldual grower in a stronger bargaining position when selling bis crop.

The growers' representatives divided the state into three districts for administration of the plan. District I, northwestern Michigan, will include Benzie, Leelanau, Graad Traverse, Wexford, Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet. District II or west central Michigan, will include Manistee, Mason, Oceana, Muskegon, Ottawa, Kent, Newaygo, Mecosta and nearby counties. District III or southwestern Michigan will include Berrien, Van Buren, Allegan and other southwestern counties. Each of the above districts will have five members on the board of directors.

A fourth district was created in southeastern Michigan including Jackson and other small producing counties. One director will be seated from this area.

It is planned that the principal office of the association will be at Shelby in Oceana cauaty.

Growers' delegates attending the meeting from the various areas were as follows: Elmer Morse, Shelby; Clayton Riley, Mears; Wendell Gamble, Hart; Ernest Steen, Shelby; Gerald Rouse, Shelby; Tom Moss, Ravenna; Edward V. Gross, Grand Rapids; Percy Anderson, Fremont; Jonathan Woodman, Paw Paw; Roy Dukesherer, Benton Harbor; Henry F. Bartz, St. Joseph; W. E. Garland, Berrien Springs; Clyde J. Smith, Bangor; W. Paul Day, Hartford; A. L. Darbee, East Jordan; Homer G. Waring, Kewadin; David Murray, R. 1, Traverse City; James Dymond, Honor; E. C. DeLong, Northport and Ralph Foreman, Northville. County Agricultural agents in attendance were Harry L. Lurkins, St. Joseph, Lylo E. Tompkins, Hart and Carl H. Hematreet, Traverse City.

The directors of the association will be elected by the members at tha annual meeting to bo held in the month of May.

Membership in the association will be open to cherry growers in Michigan. Annual membership fee will be fifty cents up to five tons; one dollar up to ten tons; two dollars from 10 to 20 tons; three dollars from 20 to 40 tons; four dollars from 40 to 75 tons; five dollars from 75 to 100 tons; $7.50 from 100 to 200 tons; and ten dollars for all over 200 tons. The tonnage figures shall be based on the previous year's crop.

Money collected is to ba used for general operating expenses such as postage, telephone, telegraph, office supplies and directors' travel.

The delegates plan to follow the New York pattern by holding weekly meetings starting two months before harvest. These meetings to be attended by selected representative growers. Each grower at the first meeting will give his previous year's tonnage and his best estimate of his 1942 tonnage. These estimates will be changed from time to time as pollination, weather, frosts, drought and rainfall effect the size of the prospectivo crop. These reports will be exchanged by phone between the different districts and the compiled figures sent out by the state organization to all members.

There will be included with these crop outlook statistics, all available information such as amount of carry-over from the previous crop, prices offered to growers and outlook for cherry crops in other producing states.

Another meeting is being planned for the near future to complete the organization.

In order to conserve tires and time it is planned that each producing county will be broken down into two, three or four communities for the purpose of holding crop estimate meetings.

The proposed method of forecasting the cherry crop was demonstrated by 40 Grand Traverse growers on July 1, 1941. These growers were able to estimate their growing crop of red tart cherries within 11 per cent of the actual harvested crop. This was especially good since the red cherry crop was very spotted, and light in volume due to spring frosts.

The nearly normal sweet cherry crop was estimated by the same growers within 5 per cent of the actual harvested tonnage.

Two Rural First Aid Groups Now Fully Organized

Judging from the enthusiasm and interest manifest at the first lesson the success of the project is already assured. The two groups, namely, the Star district on the peniosula and the Charlevoix group at Charlevoix, received their first lesson on first aid last Friday afternoon, March 26th from one to five. The membership in each group numbered approximately 30 which really is about the right size to have for maximum results.

Miss Notari, member of the East Jordan teaching staff, is directing the activity in the Star district. In the Charlevoix group, several leaders are cooperating together to make the project successful. William C. Palmer, commissioner of schools, and George R. Hemingway, county first-aid chairman, will cooperate together in supervising the program. Doctors Mark Giffords and F. F. McMillan and others will assist in giving the instruction.

To meet the needs of the rural groups this project has been organized somewhat differently than the usual procedure. The work will be concentrated in five lessons and the period is from one to five Friday afternoons each week until the end of the course. It was felt that farmers would be so busy with their regular farm work that a ten week period was too long and that they could aot attend. Likewise, the transportation problem was considered in making this decision. If this activity works out as nicely as is anticipated several more farm groups will be organized next fall and winter to enlarge upon this program. For further particulars in regard to these two classes contact the two chairmen, Mrs. Ray Loomis of the Star community and Mrs. Ernest Ecklund, representing the Charlevoix group. They will be only too glad to give you additional information.

Newly Selected 4-H County Council to Meet March 26

The 4-H club program in Charlevoix county will receive greater attention this year as a result nf our national emergency. The 4-H County Council will meet Thursday night, March 20th in the Boyne City postoffice building at 7:30 to develop plans for a larger and more comprehensive activity in order ta help win the war.

These members of tha county committee have been selected from all townships and insofar as possible from all communities. It is hoped that the organization will be continued so that every township in the county will assume a definito responsibility in correlating the efforts of the young folks. It is now time to develop the Victory Garden project so this will be one of the larger topics for consideration. Likewise, it is just as necessary for our young folks to develop livestock projects as well aa canning and food preparation activity for the coming months.

We would like to solicit the cooperation of all folks in the county who will offer their services as leaders or supervisors of 4-H club projects. Never have we had a time when it was so necessary to work together in the interests of our young folks as today. The farmer has a definite responsibility to raise sufficient food not only to supply our needs but to help our allies wherever they may be in winning this war. Thus the friends of 4-H club work look forward to this important meeting on Thursday night, March 26 in the Boyne City postoffice building and anticipate a larger and more efficient program will ba devoloped.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

The Small Vegetable Gardeo

There's a great deal of talk at this particular time about the "Victory" gardens. It's a swell idea to grow your own vegetables and everyone should who has even a small amount of space and time to devote to it. But don't get over-enthusiastic and decide to plant every kind of vegetable known for your first venture.

Vegetable gardening, like any other gardening, isn't a thing that can be learned overnight. But you can save yourself a great many disappointing mistakes and much valuable time by learning from the mistakes of others, a few of the most important factors of success.

Six of the most tried and true points to success for the beginner are as follows: 1. Don't attempt too much the first year. 2. Select the sure-fire things to start with. 3. Have the ground adequately prepared. 4. Get planting done on time. 5. Keep weeds under control, ground well cultivated. 6. Be prepared to fight insects before they get started.

If these points are kept in mind and followed, even the beginner, who has never before grown vegetables, can be guaranteed satisfaction.

Start out slowly at first for it is more satisfactory to succeed with 10 or 12 varieties than to half fail with twice that many. Attempting too much the first year is one of the commonest causes of failure. You'll need a spot that will get at least 6 hours of sunlight a day.

A few vegetables which can be grown with the greatest assurance of success are tomatoes, beans, broccoli, beets, carrots and New Zealand spinach. In a larger garden with space and time not so much at a premium a half dozen more may be added: onions, corn, lettuce, bush squash, peppers and cabbage. More next week about the preparation of soil and planting.

CHAPTER XI

The whale rolled over and over in a smother sway from them; and suddenly its flukes lifted high and then it was gone, and the tossed water began to quiet where it had disappeared.

"Sounded!" Tommy cried.

Mary could see the line now snaking out over the bow of the whaleboat, the bow sagging downward and then rising with a jerk as Joe Sassnet kept a strain on the line around the loggerhead, yielding only when he must. Richard in the bow was leaning forward to look straight down into the water, lance in hand.

The bow of Richard's boat rose suddenly as the strain upon the line was eased. "Haul hard!" Big Pip shouted. Sassnet took line hand over hand. Richard spoke over his shoulder, not turning his head, watching the water under them.

"Ready oars!" he said crisply. Then men poised. Suddenly he cried: "Starn all! Hard astern!"

The oars bent like bows; the boat darted backward like a squid. Then for a moment from where Mary stood on the Venturer's deck, boat and men were alike blotted out of sight, hidden behind a vast black column with a blunt end which rose ponderously out of the water, the white mouth gleaming, the bent jaw opening and closing in a vicious futility.

That black mass that was the whale's head rose and rose, slow and slower till it was above the level of the Venturer's decks, till Mary thought it would never stop ascending. It seemed to poise and hang for a moment, and then ponderously toppled forward, parting the water like a plow; and she saw the boat sale, secure, beyond the flukes.

Then the whale spouted, and its spout now was a thick crimson cloud; and Mary saw Richard strike a sharp blow at the line with a hatchet, saw its free end disappear.

She cried, sick with sudden disappointment: "Oh, he's let it go!"

"It's dying!" Tommy Hanline told her, proud of Richard. "He always cuts before the flurry unless there's another boat that might get fast. He don't take chances when there's no need of it."

The spout was a fountain of blood as the whale again began to move, but there was no long flurry. Too much of the creature's strength was already spent. It surged a little forward, lay still, seemed to turn half on its side, laboriously righted itself.

"Fin out!" said Tommy Hanline, and he looked up at Mary with shining eyes.

She tried to speak and found her throat dry and constricted. She whispered: "Is it dead? Did Richard kill it?"

George, at her tone, looked at her quickly; but Tommy said in high pride: "Yes! That was pretty wonderful, wasn't it?"

"Yes," she said, not seeing her husband's eyes.

Richard's boat was near the dead whale, moving to and fro, Richard standing high in the bow and pointing this way and that to guide Pip at the steering oar; and Mary could see now and then a man leap overside and pick something up out of the water with both hands. Mary looked around for information. Peter was aft; but Isaiah was here with them, his elbows on the rail, squinting at the boats yonder. Mary asked him what they were doing.

"Mast's cutting a hole in the small so's he can tow her in."

"I mean, what's Richard picking up?"

"Oh, might be grease," he suggested. "You see it sometimes, where a whale's costive."

Mary, looking down into Richard's boat, saw that it was half full of some strange stuff, noisome in appearance, a mass of gouts and chunks and fragments deep gray in color, from which an unpleasant odor rose. The stuff was piled around the feet of the men, the whole whaleboat messed with it. Peter came here beside them; and he called down to his brother:

"What's all that gurry, Dick?"

Richard looked up at them with calm eyes; but then his own excitement made him grin like a proud, triumphant boy. He threw up his hand. "Greasy luck today, Pete. It's ambergris!" he cried.

Mary remembered vaguely having heard someone at some time speak of "ambergris." She had an obscure impression that is was valuable, and she decided now with an amused grimace that it must be, or Richard would not have brought this boatload of ill-smelling stuff back to the Venturer. He leaped to the deck beside them, dripping with his exertions, and drunk with the hot taste of victory; and as the men swung the whaleboat aboard he spoke to Peter.

"What's ambergris good for, Richard? It smells awful."

Richard chuckled reassuringly. "It'll get over that as soon as it dries out. They use it to make perfumes!"

"Where does ambergris come from?"

"I guess nobody knows just what it is. A whale gets rid of it while he's dying, just the way a trout will clean out its stomach on the hook. You'll see chunks of squid half as big as a man floating around a whale after he's fin out; and sometimes you find ambergris the same way."

Mary watched him, her eyes still as woodland pools, remembering what she had seen this tall young man do a while ago. When he came toward her again, she could not face him, and like one waking she looked around, and realized for the first time that George was no longer here beside her. She saw him by the cabin skylight aft.

Richard returned past her. "Got to go get dry," he said. She followed him toward where George stood; and George stopped Richard, said in unstinted praise:

"That's the finest thing I ever saw or heard of, Cap'n Corr."

Richard flushed with pleasure; and Mary linked her arm through her husband's and held tight to it, and echoed: "Did you ever see anything so wonderful?"

Richard grinned. "It was a pretty good fight," he admitted.

"It was great," George agreed. "I didn't take a full breath for ten minutes." He smiled. "If that's whaling, Cap'n Corr, I'll stick to the ministry."

Richard chuckled in shy pleasure. "Shucks, most times it's like heeling a steer. Nine whales out of ten just make a little run and then take it; and the bowheads don't even do that."

"A bowhead killed Uncle Tom," Mary remembered.

"Oh, sometimes they'll act bad."

The business of cutting in the dead whale was pushed at top speed to beat the threat of weather. Mary watched the long spades slice through blubber and flesh and gristle as easily as hot butter. Peter, she saw, was shrewd and skilful at this business.

Mary watched the whole operation, from the first cut into the black carcass scarred white by the sharks. The sharp blades the men used lasciviated her. Hiram was kept busy grinding them, Tommy turning for him. She and George watched proceedings together; and once when Richard stopped near them, she said:

"All these spades and harpoons and lances are pretty deadly, aren't they. I should think you'd be nervous, having them around."

"Well, they're our tools," he reminded her. "We get used to them." And he said:

"You know, Peter's the best I ever saw on the cutting stage." She thought he wished to restore Peter's stature in her eyes, and said agreeably:

"I could see that. He knows just where to cut, doesn't he?"

All that night the decks were a red-lighted inferno of smoke and flame, and the smell of hot oil penetrated every part of the ship.

It would be days before the Venturer was spick and span again. The whale, beside the ambergris, added sixteen barrels of spermaceti and forty-odd of oil to their cargo; but the ambergris had captured the imagination of every man aboard. That single small barrel which a strong man could lift and carry away was worth thousands of dollars. No one could be sure exactly how much, and every man aboard was wondering.

After they found the ambergris, Richard, who had till then maintained a careful dignity, as though to support his new part as Captain of the Venturer, became more expansive. Mary thought his luck had given him a sense of his own powers on which now he could build. At table he was more ready to talk about himself, and about the things he had seen in his ten years of seafaring. When he spoke of whales and whaling, even George was interested and attentive; but sometimes, chuckling at his memories, Richard spoke of brawling days ashore.

One day he related a rather gay tale of wine and women that netted George. Leaving Richard in the outer cabin he stalked out, Mary quick on his heels. George led Mary into her own cabin and closed the door and he said at once:

"Mary, I don't like that talk! Captain Corr ought to mind his tongue."

She hesitated, seeing how anger shook him, wondering in embarrassment whether Richard could hear. Then she heard Richard go on deck. "Don't you think you're a little unreasonable, George?" she pleaded. "Of course, you're a minister, and a fine one; but Richard's fine in his way too. Don't you think there are two ways, at least, for men to live?"

He said, after a moment, with that humility which a consciousness of his own errors always woke in him: "Yes. I know, Mary. But I hate his attitude toward—well, toward women. The relationship between men and women—isn't a game, to be played for fun. When a man does things like that, and brags about them . . ."

"I don't think he was bragging," she argued. "I thought he was just telling some of the foolish things he used to do."

"Mary, are you trying to justify him?"

LETTERS from the ARMY CAMPS

March 16, 1942

Dear Sir:

I'm thanking you for sending your paper to me. I have been receiving it ont here from Camp Davis.

I enjoyed the letter of Captain Bartholomew in the March 4th issue very much. I was acquainted with him at Camp Davis, where we were both members of the 95th Regiment. I was then a member of Battery A—95th Reg. Since then we have been changed to Battery E of the 93rd C.A. (AA). I couldn't think of a better class to be in than the coast artillery (anti-aircraft) and I'm sure Captain Bartholomew would agree with that statement.

After the 95th Regiment left Camp Davis in December Battery A became Battery E of the 93rd C. A. (AA) and then on January 5th we left for California, where we are now stationed in the Mojave Anti-Aircraft Range Camp. It is all desert here for miles. We are located 75 miles south of Death Valley. It's very beautiful out here now, especially as spring has now arrived.

I sincerely hope that Captain Bartholomew and his regiment reached their destination and that they will serve their country well. I might add by asking "are there any tires left in Charlevoix?" and that I enjoy Mr. Usher's jokes very much, as the old saying goes "anything for a laugh."

I remain, sincerely,
P.F.C. Edwin Gregory.

Dear Ken:

Just a line to let you know how much I have enjoyed the Courier. There are several boys here from Michigan including one from Petoskey, no other than Bill Pierson, the football flash of several years ago. You probably remember him. You may be sure the Courier gets a "good going over" including the want add section.

I sure appreciate your kindness, Ken, and if you care to send the paper to my new address, I will always be in your debt.

We expect to leave here sometime for foreign service and when we do I will notify you at once, if possible.

Sincerely,
Ed. Golden.

Too Little; too late; too bad! There still is time to buy U. S. Defense Bonds and Stamps.

John C. Warner of Mt. Pleasant, representative of E. B. Muller & Co. of Port Huron, who spoke last week at J. R. Cooper's store in behalf of the chicory industry, left without having been able to get a single farmer to contract for chicory acreage in this vicinity. No enthusiasm was shown despite the fact that if enough chicory could be raised here, we might soon expect a factory to take care of the district's output.

Ney P. Smith has sold his livery barn property, formerly belonging to Henry O'Leary, corner of Bridge street and Belvedere avenue, to Mrs. Grace Wilson of Saline, Mich. He took in trade the Williams farm, four miles out on the East Jordan road, north of Nowland's lake.

Rev. Lloyd Vinyard, pastor of the Baptist church for two and a half years, will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday. He plans to return to his old home in southern Illinois.

Earl Miller won first prize in the guessing contest at Erickson & Fowler's garage, Saturday, on how long a Maxwell motor would run on a gallon of gasoline. Lawrence McCann was second, and Will Hampton, Jr., John Martin and Frank Supernaw of Atwood divided third prize. Oh yes,—the engine ran one hour and fifty-two minutes.

Malcolm A. McDonald has purchased Chris Solsburg's modern home on West Antrim street.

Ellsworth: Atwood has a live-wire correspondent, but consciously or unconsciously he has neglected to state that A. Bos & Son have bought a Ford. (An item of importance then, as now).

Hillerville: Bert DeYoung took a load of beans to town one day last week. Wonder if he had any guards. $7.50 per bushel!

Ellsworth: The store at Essex closed last Thursday night, marking the end of a flourishing lumbering community. Essex sprang into being 18 years ago when a saw mill was built there by the Central Lake Lumber Co., and a branch line put in by the P. M. railrood. At one time there were two stores, a pool room and a blacksmith shop. Will Crago, Art Meech, August VanderArk and others have operated stores there. Eight years ago the saw mill was removed. No trains have run over the Essex division since 1913, the rails and ties are all removed and the road bed plowed under and planted in some places.

Barnard: What happened to Clyde Smith's cutter? Was it a bomb from a German submarine?

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. have leased the vacant store in the See building, and will open for business the end of next week. The store was formerly occupied by Wood Brothers.

Permission has been granted by city and government authorities for erection of a fine new boat house by Logan Thompson on the shores of Round lake adjoining the property of Roy Ranger. The building, 40x123 feet, will house Mr. Thompson's new yacht recently purchased in New York.

An index of names of Michigan counties, compiled by Dennis E. Alward, state senate clerk, reveals that Charlevoix county was originally titled Keskkauko county. The old name was changed in 1843, as were several others. Emmet's first title was Tonedagana; Antrim, Meegisee; Otsego, Okkuddo; Roscommon, Mikenauk; Grand Traverse, Omeena; Alpena, Anamickee.

Once more the annual discussion over daylight saving time has started, not only in Charlevoix, but in various Michigan cities and villages. Nobody knows without inquiry what kind of time prevails in any other town.

Fire Chief H. D. Marshall says the siren fund is close to $175, following the St. Patrick's dance at Bank hall. Many favor placing the siren on a steel tower on the new city lot.

George Glados, of the Sugar Bowl, is constructing a 22x24 foot addition, two stories high, at the rear of his Bridge street store. The present kitchen will be converted into a serving room, thus enlarging the seating space.

Pearl Durance arrived Friday from Flint, where she has been attending school this winter.

Get your car license, five gallons of oil, fill the gas tank and get an extra tire.—adv. (Turn backward, turn backward, O Time in thy flight).

Plans for Charlevoix's new school building were approved by those who attended a mass meeting called by the board of education last Friday evening. Consolidation of north and south side ward schools into the new unit was favored by many residents.

The Min-Eva lunch room opposite the post office has been redecorated during the past week and presents a pleasing appearance.

The Misses Elsie VanderWall and Juanita Secord, teachers in the Lincoln school, spent the week end at the Secord home near East Jordan.

Norwood: Kenneth Pierce has purchased the Chas. A. Richardson farm, which will be known as "Sunset View Farm."

Ironton: The three-day shingling bee at Rev. B. G. Mattson's Ironton church last week was a notable example of good will and hearty team work by men and women of the neighborhood.

The second Legion boxing contest will be held Monday evening at Hooker's garage. Main event: a six-round bout between "Bulldog" Allen and "Kid" Atchison.

Charlevoix's 1931-32 basketball squad was defeated in semi-finals of the state tournament at Lansing, Friday, by St. Augustine of Kalamazoo. Ance and McSnuby are veterans of last year's Red and White team which also invaded the state finals.

A Pere Marquette Railway company bridge crew is doing repair work on railroad property here this week. Wreckage of the Belvedere depot, burned last year, has been removed and the ground levelled off. Work of re-building is expected to start as soon as the weather permits.

Eveline township: Michael Kowalski is still enjoying good health at the age of 102 years, though an invalid as the result of an automobile accident five years ago. He served 11 years in the German army before he came to the United States at the age of 25. He then fought in the Civil War.

The Charles Ferguson residence at Norwood, one of the oldest landmarks of that once thriving village, burned to the ground Sunday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Nickerson occupied the house.

An intensive membership campaign to raise necessary funds for the Charlevoix Association of Commerce was launched at a special business session Friday evening at the Odd Fellow hall. Business places will be assessed according to a plan of classification worked out by the membership committee.

* HOW TO USE YOUR *
* WAR RATION BOOK *
* * * * * * * * * * *

Before the stamps of the war ration book may be used, the person for whom it was issued must sign it as indicated in the book. The name of a person under 18 years of age may be signed either by such person or by his father, mother or guardian.

For future reference, make and keep a record of the serial number of your book and the number of your issuing ration board as indicated in your book.

Your first war ration book has been issued to you, originally containing 28 war ration stamps. Other books may be issued at later dates. The following instructions apply to your first book and will apply to any later books, unless otherwise ordered by the Office of Price Administration. In order to obtain a later book, the first book must be turned in. You should preserve war ration books with the greatest possible care.

1. From time to time the Office of Price Administration may issue orders rationing certain products. After the dates indicated by such orders, these products can be purchased only through the use of war ration books containing valid war ration stamps.

2. The orders of the Office of Price Administration will designate the stamps to be used for the purchase of a particular rationed product, the period during which each of these stamps may be used, and the amounts which may be bought with each stamp.

3. Stamps become valid for use only when and as directed by the orders of the Office of Price Administration.

4. Unless otherwise announced, the ration week is from Saturday midnight to the following Saturday midnight.

5. War ration stamps may be used in any retail store in the United States.

6. War ration stamps may be used only by or for the person named and described in the war ration book.

7. Every person must see that his war ration book is kept in a safe place and properly used. Parents are responsible for the safekeeping and use of their children's war ration books.

8. When you buy any rationed product, the proper stamp must be detached in the presence of the storekeeper, his employee, or the person making delivery on his behalf. If a stamp is torn out of the war ration book in any other way than above indicated, it becomes void. If a stamp is partly torn or mutilated and more than one-half of it remains in the book, it is valid. Otherwise it becomes void.

9. If your war ration book is lost, destroyed, stolen, or mutilated, you should report that fact to the ration board.

10. If you enter a hospital, or other institution, and expect to be there for more than 10 days, you must turn your war ration book over to the person in charge. It will be returned to you upon your request when you leave.

11. When a person dies, his war ration book must be returned to the local ration board, in accordance with the regulations.

12. If you have any complaints, questions, or difficulties regarding your war ration book, consult your local ration board.

NOTE

The first stamps in war ration book one will be used for the purchase of sugar. When this book was issued, the registrar asked you, or the person who applied for your book, how much sugar you owned on that date. If you had any sugar, you were allowed to keep it, but stamps representing this quantity were torn from your book (except for a small amount which you were allowed to keep without losing any stamps). If your war ration book one was issued to you on application by a member of your family, the number of stamps torn from the books of the family was based on the amount of sugar owned by the family, and was divided as equally as possible among all these books.

Heat Ruins Wire Fence

Another score against widespread burning of fence rows has been found by agricultural engineers. Damage to wooden posts was obvious and now the engineers report that heat ruins the temper of wire fencing and the wire becomes soft and easily broken. During the war emergency, purchase of new wire fencing has become difficult. Soils and crops authorities previously scored the burning process as a cleanup method that often did more harm than good. Conservation specialists have been pleading against the practice which destroys wildlife cover and nesting facilities.

So We'll Make Our Wartime Sugar Grow on Trees

If the rationing of sweets becomes too sour, there's a remedy! An article in The American Weekly with this Sunday's (March 29) issue of The Detroit Sunday Times tells how scientists promise to replace all the sugar crop we lost in the Philippines by processing only 10,000 acres of woodland. Be sure to get The Detroit Sunday Times this week and every week.

Politicians will tell you that the late Frank Fitzgerald wasn't elected by an uprising of citizens who went to the polls to vote for Fitzgerald. He won because a lot of folks were mad. They expressed their anger at sit-downs by voting against Murphy, and in so doing they had to vote for his opponent.

We are not saying that Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner faces the same fate. The situation is not parallel.

But a lot of people are restless today. And voters usually do irrational things when they are in a mood to kick someone in the pants—whether the fault lies at Washington or at home. By November they may feel differently about it.

That Harry F. Kelly is going to toss his hat in the ring is conceded at Lansing.

The question is: What ring?

Will he run for governor or for United States senator?

The secretary of state would like to go to Washington. His inclinations are reported to be more in the direction of national service chiefly because of the war. And yet Harry is a good soldier, and he will abide by the party's decision.

An announcement is expected in the very near future.

Another factor in today's unrest is the grim realization that Michigan's part in World War (with its army of less than four million men) will be greatly eclipsed by today's military demonds for war manpower.

Washington is talking today in terms of 8,000,000 to 10,000,000-man army, while another 1,000,000 will be needed for our navy.

To get that many men the government is lifting selective service restrictions. Col. E. M. Rosecrans, director for Michigan, announces that Uncle Sam will furnish eye glasses and even teeth.

An army of eight or ten millions will take many men with family dependents. (Sixty-four per cent of all registered men have been deferred to date because of their dependents.)

More taxes and more bonds are inevitable, too. War spending is now around $2,300,000,000 a month and is due to reach $4,500,000,000 by the end of 1942. By next year this outpour of dollars will reach $7,500,000,000—a month! Inflation is already here; standards of living are going down; regimentation is certain.

United Automobile Workers (CIO) demand from General Motors Corp. $1 day pay increase, 30-minute paid lunch period, double time Sunday and holidays, 10% premium for work between 3:30 p. m. and midnight; 15% premium for work between midnight and 8 a. m.; 60 days' pay if a worker enters the military service instead of two weeks; $100 bond in lieu of two weeks' vacation.

Right or wrong, justly or unjustly, the public is going to hold labor to blame for acts of everyone attached to the labor movement. If war production is stopped by strikes, labor will be responsible — in the public's mind. The public also favors limitation of profits by management as well as by labor. Post-war pensions for war veterans are now being conceived.

Such is the unrest which is evident everywhere in Michigan today.

We are losing a war, and we don't like it.

SHOT AT RANDOM

Since the Mary Margaret was taken off the run, Capt. Ernest Smith has made regular trips with the fish tug Bonnie, shifting his mainland port to Northport only on the few occasions the bay off Charlevoix was ice-bound. It's been an awful long time, if ever, that boat traffic was maintained to the island throughout the winter.

Charlevoix's drug stores have a depository for empty tooth paste tubes or any other type of collapsible metal tubes. The purpose is to salvage tin for war use. It is estimated that the total of tin tubes on the shelves of American medicine cabinets runs to 6,000 tons, of which 20 tons are thrown away every day.. It is my understanding that 60 toothpaste tubes will furnish the amount of tin required in the solder needed for a bomber. Thus it can be readily seen why it is so important to reclaim this precious metal. Every American home can do its part.

One good thing about the discontinuance of automobile manufacturing is that it will give a lot of people a chance to catch up on their car contract payments.

Have you started your "scrap book" yet? Well, ask the boys at the postoffice for one, then fill it with Defense stamps to help Uncle Sam with his "scrap."

The large deer herd being seen almost daily at the Waller farm north of town was decreased by one Tuesday morning when a yearling buck broke his neck attempting to jump a fence near the Durance farm. Despite this elimination the herd appears to be on the increase, for Wednesday morning a member of the Willis family reported seeing 21 deer, which is no doubt the largest number ever congregated in the area close to Charlevoix. This writer saw 13 in two herds Monday evening.

Minister: "So God sent you two little brothers, Dorothy."

Dorothy: "Yes, and He only knows where the money's coming from. I heard daddy say so."

This paper has been waiting for some time to herald to its readers as an item of news the filing of petitions with the county clerk for recall of our three county road commissioners. These petitions have been in circulation for many weeks, but the thing has turned out to be one of those "In again, out again, Finnegan" affairs, inasmuch as William Tryon, president of the Boyne City branch of the Fur and Leather Workers Union and county CIO organizer, has been in and out of the clerk's office with them at least twice to our knowledge, but yet hasn't officially filed them. One thing certain is that the recall, if it does come to a vote, will not be on the April 6th ballot and county taxpayers are going to be saved the hundreds of dollars of expense, for a while at least, of providing for the special election this matter will require. It is to be hoped that the many persons who admittedly signed the petitions without reading them, will be more careful in the future.

The flag turn-out at the board of commerce general meeting last Wednesday night was a good sign—an indication of interest in the work of this organization for Charlevoix's betterment. Now if this interest can be turned into actual work to attain some of the goals set forth in discussion, instead of reverting to the customary "Let George do it" attitude, things should really pop for Charlevoix.

Everybody seems to know enough arithmetic to figure out what's coming to him.

NORTH COMMUNITIES AWAIT SMELT RUNS

Good Dipping In Stover and Loeb Creeks Is Anticipated

Many northern Michigan communities, Charlevoix included, are awaiting annual spring smelt "runs" as melting snow promises proper conditions for the customary migration.

At Boyne City the townspeople are waiting until the spawning fish show up in Boyne River before they invite the smelt dippers in to celebrate. Escanaba will limit its jamboree this year to one day, April 11. Menominee and Marinette already have chosen queens for the Twin City smelt carnival April 10, 11 and 12. No word as to a celebration at East Jordan has yet been received.

Last year phenominal smelt runs occurred in all streams emptying into Lake Charlevoix. With ice fishing for smelt good off the west shore of Lake Charlevoix the past winter, heavy runs are expected in Stover and Loeb creeks. Dipping is expected to start the last week of March or first week of April.

WAR RESTRICTIONS ON LAKE WEATHER SIGNALS

Warning Flags to Replace Those Indicating Wind Direction

Navigation weather signals maintained by the Coast Guard service have been changed for duration of the war under orders of the Department of Commerce.

The small craft storm warning, a red pennant, will be shown as in the past, but signals indicating wind direction will be discontinued.

Under wartime restrictions, storm warning will be two red pennants, one above other, indicating wind of gale force up to 54 miles per hour over the open lake.

Hurricane or severe storm will be indicated by two red flags with black center, one above other, for wind of 55 miles per hour or higher.

Navigators and small craft operators are advised to keep this change in weather signals in mind.

LELAND HIGH WINNER STATE CHAMPIONSHIP

Defeated Whitehall for Class D Basketball Title Saturday

Leland high school basketball team, winners of the Petoskey regional title and undefeated this season, copped the state class D championship at East Lansing, Saturday night.

Leland defeated Whitehall by an 18 to 13 count. They were never headed after taking an early lead. It was Leland's 28th victory for the season.

Traverse City and Harbor Springs, other regional winners, fell in earlier competition. Harbor was eliminated from class C competition by Reed City last Thursday night at Big Rapids, while Traverse City dropped a 24 to 22 decision to Ecorse Saturday night. Traverse earlier had eliminated Alma.

Culminating its year round educational work the Michigan Tuberculosis Association has set aside the month of April for its 15th annual Early Diagnosis Campaign with the slogan, "Tuberculosis: find it, treat it, conquer it."

INCREASE IN LUMBER PRICES HIKE CUTTING

Lumbering Operations Increase Up to 200% In Some Sections

Rising market prices that reflect the tremendous demand of the war effort on Michigan woods operations are being matched, for timber cutting on northern state lands, by increases of 20 to 200 per cent in basic stumpage prices approved by the conservation commission.

Since June the price of spruce pulpwood has advanced from $2 to $2.75 a cord, balsam and jackpine pulpwood rose from 75 cents to $1.25, and hemlock pulpwood jumped from 40 cents to $1.20. Hemlock and cedar ties advanced from 10 to 15 cents apiece, cedar posts doubled in price and hemlock sawlogs are up from $2.50 to $3 per 1,000 board feet.

These classifications cover 90 per cent of the state-land timber cutting in the upper peninsula, though dozens of other forest products are harvested from state forests, state game areas and state lands outside administered units.

The new stumpage scale applies only to timber cut under permit and according to state cutting restrictions on species and minimum diameters, in the upper peninsula. Actual prices are higher or lower than the basic scale as the particular stand to be cut presents a better or worse than average logging problem.

Besides keeping a sharper watch over its own lands because of the increased number of lumberjacks at work in the woods, the conservation department keeps watch over three times as much private land on which lumbering operations have been stepped up also.

CITE NORWOOD SCHOOL FOR XMAS SEAL SALES

Established Highest Record for Campaign During 1941

Among the Charlevoix rural schools that sold tuberculosis Christmas seals, Norwood school boasts the 1941 record, its nine pupils having sold an average of 61 seals each. This honor was revealed in a letter to Miss Marion Brooks, teacher of the Norwood school, received today from Miss Lois Kempf, director of the rural school division of the Michigan Tuberculosis association.

"Congratulations on your achievement," Miss Kempf wrote. "We hope your pupils feel that they have made a real contribution towards Victory . . . Tuberculosis kills more persons of military age than any other cause; and it works faster in time of war. That is why the Christmas seal work is so important."

The Hayyard school won second honor for the average seal sale among the Charlevoix rural schools, its nine pupils averaging 58 seals each under the leadership of their teacher, Mrs. Florence Novotny. Twenty-two rural schools in this county took part in the seal sale Miss Kempf stated. However, they were not eligible for per capita honors unless their full reports were in by January 15.

The Early Diagnosis Campaign, an annual educational drive carried on by Christmas seals, is scheduled for April. Slogan of this year's campaign is Tuberculosis: Find it, treat it, conquer it.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE ENROLLMENT HIGHER

Increase of More Than 50,000 Over January Noted for Month

Michigan had 211,887 persons enrolled in civilian defense activities at the end of February, a gain of more than 50,000 over figures announced for January, the monthly survey of the Michigan Council of Defense revealed.

Of this total, 100,407 persons are enrolled and already assigned to study courses or duty in the Citizens' Defense Corps, the survey shows. With minimum personnel requirements for the active protective services estimated at 358,000, according to formulas laid down by the Office of Civilian Defense, Michigan is less than one-third of the way along towards its quota. Lt. Col. Harold A. Furlong, administrator, said, pointing out the need for further volunteers.

Several counties had not reported their figures when the survey records closed, leading to an estimate that totals would be some 15,000 more when all reports are in.

TRUCK LOAD RESTRICTIONS NOW IN EFFECT

Decrease of 35% In Load Mandatory on Unpaved Highways

A true harbinger of spring was the announcement by the state highway department this week that special truck loading restrictions are now being enforced.

The spring loading restrictions are provided for by law at the discretion of the state highway commissioner during the period from March 1 to May 31. These special restrictions represent a 25 per cent decrease from normal load limits in the case of concrete pavements and a 35 per cent decrease on gravel roads or pavements without a concrete base.

COUNTY BOND SALES HOLD LOW AVERAGE

Charlevoix Leads Boyne and Jordan But Race is Slow

Charlevoix is holding its lead in the county-wide Defense bond and stamp sale, but sales here, as in Boyne City and East Jordan, have dropped to a very low average in the last month.

During last week, $975 in bond sales was recorded here, and $120 in stamps. Boyne City sold $1,025 in bonds, $413 in stamps. East Jordan's bonds amounted to $750, stamps, $158.

Charlevoix's total now shows the sum of $50,889.60. East Jordan is in second place with $43,815.25. Boyne City places third with $43,430.45. These totals, formerly leaping up by the thousands of dollars, are now climbing too slowly.

AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Wheat marketing quotas will be voted on by the farmers on May 2, in a national referendum. This referendum is for the purpose of regulating the marketing of the huge supply of 1,428,000,000 bushels of wheat during the coming year.

More wheat is not needed at present in our war effort. To produce more wheat at a time when we need more of other commodities is a waste of time and resources.

The great problem at present is storage space for the coming harvest. Elevators and other storage facilities are filled to capacity with grain. The releasing of surplus wheat by the Commodity Credit Corporation is assisting in relieving this situation and will help to make available space for the 1942 crop. This plan also provides feed grains to farmers at reduced prices which is necessary at this time in producing "Food for Freedom."

The orderly marketing of the past few years has advanced the price of wheat from about 50c per bushel to over $1.00 to the farmer. As an example of what our AAA program has accomplished, a comparison on wheat prices is interesting. On January 23, 1942, No. 1 Dark Northern wheat was selling in the U. S. for $1.42 per bushel, No. 1 Manitoba, a wheat of like quality and type was selling in Canada for $1.19 per bushel. No. 1 Dark Hard Winter wheat was selling in the United States for $1.37 per bushel, comparable wheat was selling for 57 cents per bushel in Argentina.

RELIEF FROM THREATENING FARM LABOR SHORTAGE IS SOUGHT

Possibility that city women, business and professional men and school children will work on Michigan's farms this season was indicated today as the Michigan Council of Defense announced a plan designed to meet the threat of a serious farm labor shortage.

The problem of farm labor, created in part by the migration of farm workers into war industries and the drafting of farm laborers into the armed services, has been under study by the agriculture committee of the council for two months. Although a complete report is not yet available, preliminary study led the committee to predict "a severe shortage unless a solution is not found."

Under the program now being put into effect throughout the state, the United States Employment Service will assign an agriculture placement director to each of the heavier-producing agriculture counties. In the lighter-producing sections, the director will cover a larger area. The county councils of defense will designate a representative who will assist with the recruiting phase of the work. A third member of the committee will be selected by the USDA war boards who will aid in determining demands and placing laborers. The employment service director will serve as chairman.

In a report made to the council, C. V. Ballurd, chairman of the agriculture committee, cited as sources of supplementary farm labor: factory workers (either unemployed or with spare time), older men (recipient of old-age pensions), school children, women, migrant laborers, and business and professional men.

ANGLING ON JORDAN APPEARS IN STORY

Ben C. Robinson, Fur-Fish-Game Magazine Editor, Is Author

Ben C. Robinson, fishing editor of the Fur-Fish-Game magazine, made a fishing trip into northern Michigan last summer that paid dividends.

Ben collected his dividend in the form of fish at the time and northern Michigan now collects by way of stories appearing in the March and April issues of the magazine. "Brookies of the Upper Jordan" in the March issue is a swell story and in the April number "Among Those Michigan Hills" takes the reader up into Antrim county for some really fine fishing.

"With its wealth of lake and stream waters," Ben says, "I believe that the hilly part of western Michigan offers perhaps some of the best sport to the angler of any place in the country."

Enforcement of the ordinance is vested in the superintendent of the electric light department. He, or persons authorized by him, may enter any premises in the city at any reasonable time to inspect installation and working of apparatus coming under terms of the ordinance.

RECALL ROAD COMMISSION IS SOUGHT

PETITIONS FILED MONDAY WITH COUNTY CLERK

Turned in by William Tryon, County CIO Organizer; Election Awaits Legality of Petitions

Petitions seeking an election for recall of Wm. F. Tiadall, of Boyne City, S. E. Rogers, of East Jordna, and W. K. Straw, of Charlevoix, members of the Charlevoix county road commission, were filed Monday with County Clerk Fenton R. Bulow.

The petitions, in circulntion for several weeks, were filed by William Tryon, county CIO organizer, and president of the Boyne City local, United Fur and Lenther Workers' Union. Circulation was started, it is understood, during a county-wide strike of road workers in February. The petitions contained signatures of electors of the 25 voting precincts in Charlevoix county.

Members of the road commission are charged with nonfeasance, malfeasance and misfeasance on the basis of charged failure to properly maintain and keep passable in winter time certain county and township highways, with Melrose and Chandler townships named specifically; failure to take bids on projects costing over $500; that agents of the commission coerced and intimidated certain employes in their attempts to join a union.

Mr. Bulow stnted that petitions and signature are being examined for legality by his office and by Prosecuting Attorney Norman D. Ance during the 10-day period provided by law, and that calling of special elections, probably requiring recall, primary and regular, would be based upon such findings.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By KEN USHER

If you happen to have a road map among your possessions, you'd better hang onto it, because they aren't going to be issued like in the past for duration of the war.

There was a time, too, not so long ago, when a man was consaidered well off if he had lots of money, but today his position is based on the excelleace of tire equipment on his autamobile.

Saw at a distance last Thursday some long-legged, lanky fellow getting in a round of golf at the municipal course. Can only think of one guy who has such long legs and the golf "bug," too, so venture a guess it was Bill Supernaw initiating the season.

Aaother think I noticed was Floyd Supp pedaling a bicycle down towards where The Inn used ta be located. Sort of practicing, I guess. I wasn't particularly amused, and you needn't laugh, either, 'cause we'll all be doing it sooner or later.

I hear the smelt are "running" in Jordan river, so it won't be long before there'll be dipping in Loeb and Stover creeks. Boyne City is planning on a smelt jamboree again this year, but they're waiting uatil the smelt are definitely in the river before notifying folks about it.

If you intend to dip smelt, don't forget to have a 1942 fishing license with you. A license is required for this type of fishing, too.

The war is really coming home to all of us and sooa even the schoolboy may be rationed on his paper wad throwing.

The following communication from Sam King, World War veteran, will probably strike a responsive chord with many former vets. LANSING LETTER

Michigan industrial workers are thankful (or should be):

That the state unemployment compensation law is the most liberal in the country, following changes made by the state legislature. (Source: Social Security Board, Washington, D. C.)

That benefit checks are far sums larger than payments in either New York or California.

That conversion of automobile plants to war use is proceeding at a faster rate than predicted.

That the average weekly wage was $44.92 in January, compared with California's $40.37 and New York's $35.75.

And yet labor unrest continues. Why?

The CIO demands an extra dollar daily from General Motors Corp., alleging huge profits from war contracts.

The corporation proposes that contract negotiations be opened to the public through the newspapers, inasmuch as public money is involved.

How labor unrest is being fanned may be illustrated by the following:

Revelation of war profiteering by certain manufacturers. Case: Jack & Heintz, Inc., Cleveland airplane parts company, gave out $600,000 in honuses in 1941. The boss "earned" $145,845; his secretary received $39,356.

World War 1 produced mnny millionaries. Workers remember this. So do farmers.

The Nye congressional committee (1934) reported that "the record of the present shipbuilding companies during the (World) war, wherever examined, was close to being disgraceful . . . Huge bonuses were paid to officers. Profits were concealed as rentals." The American Legion also made a clamor about "taking profits out of war."

While the Clevelnnd case of 1941 is an exception rather than the rule, it provides labor organizers with much needed ammunition for wage negotiations. Farm-

Plenty of boiling in the big shallow pans is required to thicken maple sap to the legal density of 11 pounds to the gallon, and the big outdoor evaporators like this one in Leelanau county soon will be steaming night and day in northern as well as southern Michigan sugar bushes. After a premature start in southern Michigan before the early March blizzard, "sugaring off" is now getting in full swing, and the season's production, spurred by impending sugar rationing, may with favorable weather amount to nearly twice the 74,000 gallons produced in 1941.

KEEP YOUR CAR ROLLING

You May Have To Drive It

5 MORE YEARS

YES SIR! Your old bus will have to keep on rolling or you'll be walking or riding with the neighbors. WILL YOUR CAR LAST 3-5-10 YEARS? Your car is in for the duration, maybe 3, 5 or even 10 years. Factories won't be changed back until the war is over. Then it will take months — maybe years — to fill the demands.

GET YOUR CAR SET FOR THE DURATION — NOW—The sooner you get your car tuned up for the duration, the less it will cost and the longer your car will last. It is vital that you keep your car in good condition, for yourself, and for defense.

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE—MAYBE TEN. Even a new car should be tightened up and gone over. Minor adjustments prevent wear, and if parts are needed, get them now when you know they are available.

SAVE YOUR TIRES — YOU'LL BE NEEDING THEM! Wheels frequently get out of alignment, even on new cars. This means dangerous tire wear. Bad breaks cost much vital rubber. And tires should be switched from wheel to wheel for maximum wear.

THE LIQUOR PROBLEM

(Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of two articles from the Michigan Liquor Control Commission, designed to acquaint you with problems of liquor law enforcement and what you as a citizen can do to make conditions more to your liking in your community.)

In these war days, demands come to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission for a tightening of enforcement.

The commission is entirely in sympathy with these demands. It believes its rules and regulations entirely fair and it holds no brief for those who deliberately violate them. However, framers of our present liquor laws never meant the commission to be the enforcement agency.

Appropriations sufficient to provide only 15 investigators have been given us. That allows one investigator for all of the upper peninsula, two for that area of the lower peninsula north of the Bay City-Muskegon line. Obviously, they can do little more than their routine work of answering complaints, making required inspections and investigating applicants for licenses.

Power and funds for enforcement were given local authorities.

For instance, 85 per cent of all license fees—$500 for every by-the-glass liquor establishment, $150 for each beer garden, and up to $1,000 for each hotel—is returned to the community for enforcement purposes.

However, the commission has no authority to compel the use of this money for enforcement. If your township board diverts this money to new buildings or other purposes, it is within the law in doing it. If you want it used for enforcement, you must say so and if you do not insist this money be used for the purpose intended by your own local officers, the commission is powerless.

If minors are being served in your community, if gambling is allowed, lewd shows permitted, or other regulations violated — the commission wants to know of it. It will see that action is taken. But first responsibility rests with your local officers and although the commission stands ready at all times to call off an investigator from routine work and assign him to investigate a complaint, it would prefer that citations for violations come through your sheriff or chief of police.

Experience in other states has proven that most effective enforcement is obtained through enforcement agents operating directly under the commission — Ohio has 125 such enforcement agents and Pennsylvania even more compared to Michigan's 15.

If you are dissatisfied with present conditions in your locality, demand of your city council or township board that license fees returned to them be used for enforcement. You can make specific complaints to the commission. Or you can ask your representatives in the legislature to amend the law or appropriate sufficient funds to provide for an adequate enforcement agency.

Next week, exact power of local authorities over granting and revocation of licenses and permits for dancing so every citizen may know to whom to appeal for correction of any condition needing attention will be outlined.

THE HOME FRONT

"We're all in this war together . . . If any of us lose our freedom, all of us lose it."

These words of WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson were spoken to CIO representatives in Washington. They might be directed equally as well to the farmers of Michigan—or to the doctors, bankers, lawyers, storekeepers or housewives.

Men working together will win this war.

— United We Stand —

Another bit of sound philosophy was given last week by Walter Reuther, UAW-CIO leader, when he told Michigan labor and management representatives, "Victory lies ahead, not behind us."

Quarrels and grievances of labor and management in the past must be forgotten as they put their shoulders together in the drive for increased production.

Joint labor-management committees to boost production have been set up in many of Michigan's war plants since the regional conference last week in Detroit.

— There's a Job to be Done —

One of the WPB representatives from Washington fittingly described the production drive as a two-man crosscut saw, with labor on one end and management on the other. They have to pull together to get any sawing done.

— It's Up to You and Me —

Behind the recent OPA order, which fixed maximum retail prices for seven household appliances lies a determination that "the public shall not be compelled to submit to unreasonable and inflated prices simply because supplies are short."

Preiously, although OPA had placed price ceilings over many products at the manufacturer's or wholesaler's level, regulation of retail prices had been restricted to autos, tires and—in 19 states—gasoline. The recent order fixed maximum retail prices for new mechanical refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and attachments, heating and cooking stoves and ranges, typewriters, radio sets and phonographs. As a result, price control for the first time becomes of direct and personal interest to millions of us.

As a result of the war, already we must work differently and play differently, eat differently and dress differently, travel differently and build differently, do business differently and live differently.

— Work and Sacrifice —

Hungry steel mills still are crying for scrap metal. It is estimated that there is an average of a quarter of a ton of scrap on each farm in the U. S. This means that lying around on Michigan farms are 46,897 tons. Think of the bullets and tanks that would make!

The WPA is going to help the WPB Bureau of Industrial Conservation get this scrap from the farms. All you have to do is gather it together in a pile and a WPA truck will come and get it.

— Scrap Hitler —

Business men and industries throughout Michigan will receive help with their priorities problems without the necessity of going to Detroit, under a new field service established by the WPB's Michigan Priorities Division. Two consulting analysts from the Detroit office have been assigned to visit cities of the state on regular schedule, beginning March 30.

Earl W. Allen will cover the eastern half of the state on the following schedule: Monday, Pontiac and Port Huron (alternating); Tuesday, Flint; Wednesday, Saginaw; Thursday, Bay City; and Friday, rotation among Ann Arbor, Alpena and Sault Ste. Marie.

Joseph V. McQuillan will cover the western part of the state on the following schedule: Monday, Lansing; Tuesday, Grand Rapids and Muskegon; Wednesday, rotation among Kalamazoo, Traverse City, Petoskey and Cheboygan; Thursday, Battle Creek; and Friday, Jackson.

AT THE MOVIES

"Henry Aldrich for President"

With freckle-faced Jimmy Lydon in the title role, the third of Paramount's immensely popular Aldrich Family pictures, "Henry Aldrich for President," will arrive on April 8-9 at the Palace Theatre.

According to all reports the film is a delightful bit of entertainment, better even than its predecessors, "What a Life" and "Life With Henry," which were universally acclaimed because of their homely but uproarious comedy, deft characterizations and rollicking stories.

"Buy Me That Town"

Hailed by preview critics as one of the year's funniest films, and by all odds the giddiest gangster yarn to ever hit the silver screen, Paramount's uproarious romantic comedy "Buy Me That Town" will arrive on April 8-9 at the Palace Theatre.

Smooth Lloyd Nolan and luscious Constance Moore have the heart interest roles, ably aided by fiev tough cupids, Albert Dekker, Sheldon Leonard, Ed. Brophy, Warren Hymer and Horace MacMahon. Barbara Jo Allen, the zany Vera Vague of radio fame, contributes to the side-splitting comedy by portraying a small town spinster who reads too many detective stories.

"Skylark"

The Broadway box-office stage hit, "Skylark," has been turned into one of the merriest movie romances of the season, starring Claudette Colbert, Ray Milland and Brian Aherne. "Skylark," which shows April 10-11 at the Palace Theatre, is a gay comedy of the matrimonial errors of a modern young couple and a handsome, footloose bachelor.

Spotlighting Claudette Colbert as the screen's foremost comedienne, critics predict she'll top her performance in the unforgettable "Arise My Love," in which she also co-starred with Ray Milland.

CHAPTER XI

"Yes, I am," she admitted. "I think by his standards Richard's a pretty fine man. Just as you are by yours. I think if you did things like that, you'd feel ashamed and degraded; so of course you shouldn't do them. But when he did them, he didn't feel ashamed. He just thought they were fun! They were foolish, perhaps; but all young man do foolish things, don't they?"

"Most of them, I suppose. That doesn't make them any less fools!" His voice was tight with rage.

She protested, herself half angry now: "You surely don't expect ma to be like you, stiff, and disapproving, and hardly speaking to him at all."

"I don't expect you to defend him!"

"Richard doesn't need defending!"

George said rigidly: "I expect you to remember you're my wife, Mary."

She told him wearily: "Oh I do, George. You know I do." But something in her tone made him look at her with bleak eyes; and he turned without a word and went out of the cabin, closing the door harshly behind him.

She dropped on her bunk, lying on her back, her eyes open, and it occurred to her after a little that she was very tired. She wondered why; and her eyes filled, and she rolled over, her head in her arms, crying quietly. When the door of the stateroom opened and then closed, she thought it was George returning to make his peace with her; and she lay still, waiting for him to speak. She felt his weight on the bunk as he sat down beside her, his hand upon her shoulder; and she turned over to look up at him and saw not George but Peter.

He bent close above her so that she could not rise; and he whispered hotly: "I knew darned well you'd be crying! Blast him! If he were man's size I'd take him apart!"

She shook her head from side to side on the pillow. "He's all right, Peter. I was just tired, that's all. I don't know why."

She tried to sit up, put her hand against his chest to thrust him aside; but he did not move. He laughed, in a comforting fashion. "Poor little Mary! You always were a sweet kid. It was crazy about you, at home."

"You were sort of mean to me, always teasing."

"Sure. That's the way boys do! That's the way they show it." He said quickly: "I'd do a lot to see you happy."

And he bent and kissed her.

CHAPTER XII

He said hoarsely, his lips against her ear: "I could do anything, with a woman like you."

He was pressing her down. She had to fight away, to fight to her feet in a sort of blind panic, to face him with blazing eyes, scrubbing at her lips which again now he had kissed, crying in low tight tones:

"I knew darned well you'd be crying!"

"Stop it, Peter! Stop it! Get out of here!"

She flung him back. He stood against the door, muttering brokenly. "I'm sorry. I couldn't help it. You're so sweet! I lost my head!"

"Get out of here!"

He said in sudden sullen wrath: "You're not fooling me, you know! You've always been crazy about Dick! You never would look at me!"

She took a quick step toward him, so angry that he recoiled; and he opened, behind him, the cabin door. She said: "If you ever come in here again, I'll . . ."

He exclaimed in quick alarm: "Sh-h! Don't yell, Mary. George will hear . . ." He turned and ran up the companionway to the deck.

After that whale which Richard killed had been tried out, and the decks scoured clean again, there were long lazy days when the ship and those aboard her seemed asleep. Sometimes Mary, looking up at the men on watch at the crosstrees, saw them nodding on their lofty perch. When the Venturer was on whaling ground, she carried at night only enough sail to make her handy; but now Richard was making a passage, counting on picking up enough oil to fill their casks off the coast of South America.

Richard for the sake of warm weather did not yet turn southward and the sun shone fair and fine, and the winds were favoring. The watch on deck might be busy with scrimshaw, listening perhaps to one of Corkran's yarns; and the squawk of the parrot sometimes came aft. Richard, standing with Mary one day, watching Corkran and his listeners, said:

"He's a good man, a good sailor; and a story-teller in the fo'c's'le helps keep the men contented. Someone to tell 'em stories keeps 'em amused."

Mary reflected thoughtfully: "You know, Corkran's really fond of George. That's why he deserted the Sunset at Gilead, in case George needed him."

"George is a fine fellow, Mary. I like him too."

"The queer part is, he likes Corkran," she said. "Corkran lived with the natives on the island and George knows it, and yet he doesn't seem to blame him."

Richard looked at her. "You know, you may not understand George yourself," he said. "He's about the bravest man I ever saw. He's pretty small, and frail; but he's never afraid." He added: "He wants to go in one of the boats next time we strike whales."

She was astonished. "Honestly? After seeing that fight the other day? He said then he'd stick to being a preacher, don't you remember?"

He chuckled. "That was partly to make me feel good, and partly because he saw how—impressed you were, and he was trying to please you by agreeing with you. George is a grown man, Mary, small as he is."

"Will you let him go in a boat?"

"Maybe."

George had long since made his peace with Mary after that ugly hour in her cabin when by defending Richard she roused his anger. He was humble and contrite and ashamed of his harsh word. Peter too came to her with apologies; and Mary guardedly forgave him, as a woman can always forgive a man for loving her; but sometimes when she looked at him suddenly she surprised a sultry hunger in his eyes that made her wary. She tried not to be left alone with him again.

There were other reasons too why her nerves drew tight and tighter. She saw much low-pitched conversation among the men forward.

Even Corkran was changed. Mary, when he had the wheel, sometimes talked with him, puzzled by the difference in his bearing. She and George discussed it too.

Mary asked Corkran straightforwardly one day why he had changed. He was, he confessed, uneasy. "I don't like the looks of things forward," he said. "Nor the talk I hear."

"What talk?"

"They're saying there's a packet of pearls aboard this ship that's worth a fortune." His eyes touched hers. "You mind, pearls made trouble enough back there at the island, for himself and you. I don't like the pretty little things."

Mary felt herself tighten warily. "Pearls? Who says so?"

"I'm naming no names, ma'am. I have to sleep amongst 'em. A man has to sleep sometime, and it's easy to slide a knife into a man asleep."

She protested: "You're trying to scare me!"

"I'm scared myself, ma'am," he insisted. "I was in a ship once that came near mutiny; and you could smell it coming days before. It was wanting to get ashore to the gold fields that was the trouble then; and it's pearls they're talking now. Pearls as big as chestnuts. And they're saying that barrel of ambergris would make the man rich that had it safe ashore."

"But I don't believe a word of all that about pearls, Corkran," she declared. "If Cap'n Corr had any pearls aboard, I guess I'd know it! And nobody with any sense would want that bad-smelling stuff in the barrel; so if that's all you're worrying about . . ."

He looked at her briefly. He said in a flat tone, grave again: "It's not all, if you want the rest of it. Ma'am, I've served many's the year at sea, and I never did see a mate playing lickspittle and "polish your boots, mister" with his men that harm didn't come of it in the end."

Mary's pulse leaped. She knew suddenly that she had thought this same thing, without knowing her own thought, as she watched Peter day after day about the ship.

She tried to persuade herself thereafter that Corkran was afraid of shadows; but she could not forget his uneasiness, and a day or two later she repeated part of what he had said to Richard. She did not quote Corkran's criticism of Peter, but she told Richard about the pearls.

He was interested in the pearls, but he did not ask where she had hidden them; and he made light of Corkran's fears. "Men are bound to talk when they've nothing else to do," he said.

Since the day he killed the whale, he and Mary had drawn happily together, finding pleasure in this new companionship, each at ease with the other. His confident dismissal of her fears reassured her; and their talk turned at random now, turned back to the years in New Bedford. Mary laughed at a sudden memory and said:

"You know, Richard, I really hated you for a while when we were children."

"Me?"

"Yes. When Peter gave you my letter."

He looked at her in a puzzled way. "What letter, Mary?"

"Forgotten, have you?" She smiled.

He shook his head. "I guess I'm dumb. What was in the letter? Who was it to?"

She looked away from him, absurdly hurt and unhappy because he had forgotten; but then she remembered that Peter said Richard kept her letter, that he even read it aloud to people, and laughed at it with them. She turned away from him, her eyes suddenly hot with tears; and he saw them and caught her arm and protested:

"Here, wait a minute, Mary. Listen . . ."

Then he stopped, for George was just emerging from the cabin companion close beside them, seeing her crimson, with tears in her eyes and Richard's hand restrainingly upon her arm.

If George was disturbed by what he had seen he did not show it. He kept them together in talk with him a while. When Richard presently left them, Mary tried to make some explanation, but George stopped her.

"You don't need to explain to me, Mary," he said, gently and honestly. "I'm beginning to get hold of myself. There's a jealous devil in me. I hate to have any man look at you. I've made you unhappy because of it more than once; but I'm whipping it. I know you and Cap'n Corr are old friends; but I know there's nothing else."

She was so grateful to him that thereafter she loved him more and more.

Richard told them one morning at breakfast his plan to cruise a while on the right whale grounds among the islands off the South American coast, and perhaps fill their casks before refitting to round Cape Horn homeward bound.

Peter was eating slowly, sewing at the tough salt beef, not raising his eyes. He said resentfully: "This salt horse's tough as witchet, Dick. It's about time we put in somewhere for fresh stores."

THE LIQUOR PROBLEM

(Editor's Note—This is the second and concluding article of a series from the Michigan Liquor Control Commission, designed to acquaint you with your powers and responsibilities as a private citizen in making Michigan's Liquor business more to your liking.)

Authority to make the liquor business in your community exactly as you want it—including the authority to prevent any sales by the glass—is vested in the hands of your township board or your city council.

If you object to dancing in liquor establishments, if you believe any establishment is so conducted that the community interest would be better served by revocation of its license, if you object to the location of any such liquor place—the power to remedy the situation rests with your local officials.

It was the intent of the legislature that local communities should have maximum control over the business in their communities and it has been the policy of the commission to carry out this intention.

Outside of Detroit, where different regulations are necessary because of the metropolitan nature of the section, your township or city officials have the following powers of control over liquor sales and licensing:

1. All by-the-glass licensees must have approval of their township, village or city boards or councils before a license will be issued.

2. Upon receipt of a resolution asking it from any local governmental unit—city or village council or township board—the Michigan Liquor Control Commission must revoke a license. This is mandatory and the commission has no discretion. This applies only to by-the-glass places and not to clubs and package liquor vendors.

3. Local legislative bodies may prohibit sales of all alcoholic liquors on Sundays, election days, or holidays. They may also pass ordinances providing for distance from churches, schools, or playgrounds at which establishments must be placed.

4. No dance permits will be issued without approval of the local village or city council or township board and also the approval of chief of police or sheriff. The permit can be revoked immediately at the pleasure of either the local council or board or the chief law enforcing officer. Singinaw has limited the number of dance permits in the city to five and requires a $500 license for each permit.

5. Sale of spirits in any locality is possible only after removal at an election unless such sale was legalized by the local legislative body in 1937.

Local outstate officials have no legal control over the following:

1. Local officials are without legal authority to set closing hours. However, in several smaller cities where licensees have cooperated voluntarily, midnight closing hours have been established under a "gentlemen's agreement."

2. Local officials have no legal control over issuance of SDD or SDM permits. However, police chiefs are asked to pass on each permit or club license granted and although legally the local unit has no power as a matter of practical fact, few such permits are ever granted without the approval of the local chief, the agent of the local legislative body.

REQUEST FLAG DISPLAY FOR ARMY DAY

Legion National Commander on Radio Sunday Evening

In accordance with President Roosevelt's request that next Monday, April 6, be observed throughout the nation as Army Day, Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, is requesting that a full flag display be made in Charlevoix during that day.

The post also calls attention to a radio broadcast Sunday evening at 8 o'clock at which Legion National Commander Lynn U. Stambaugh speaks on the subject of "Truth in War."

LOCAL HISTORICAL MUSEUM IS PLANNED

Four Clubs Will Co-operate in Collecting History

Members of four local clubs will meet at the public library Friday, April 10, to lay plans for organization of a city museum. The Shakespeare Study club, Charles Dickens club, Tuesday Study club and Garden club will be represented.

Documents, articles or pictures, anything of local historical value, is sought by the group. A vacant room in the library basement will be used as a temporary storehouse.

Anyone who possesses articles of a historical nature of local interest, which they would like to contribute to the museum is asked to see Miss Minnie Payton, librarian, secretary of the group.

The NYA operates 60 workshops in Michigan providing youth with experience and training to help them obtain jobs in war industries.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE SAYS HOLD FAIRS

Wickard Avers Such Expositions Serve Useful Purpose

Impetus to plans for the 1942 Charlevoix county fair has been received by officials, according to Jess Smith, president, in the form of an urge from Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard.

Wickard's statement, addressed to the International Association of Fairs and Expositions, and sent to fair officials throughout the nation, read:

"Because fairs and expositions serve so useful a purpose, I hope the members of your association will be encouraged to proceed with your plans for 1942. There may be areas where for military reasons it will be unwise to encourage large gatherings, but such areas will be relatively few and in any case can be determined simply by consulting with the appropriate corps area commander of the U. S. army. The 1942 fairs and expositions can and I am sure will be a powerful force in carrying to the general public the facts and the needs of America's war effort."

NO RESTRICTIONS ON LUMBER, PLUMBING

Local Dealers Still Able and Ready to Supply Needs

Although a warning has been issued from Washington that bans may be placed on building materials and plumbing and heating supplies, local builders, lumber yards and plumbing plants have received no such word, it was stated this morning.

Local dealers are operating as usual and have supplies on hand for immediate needs upon which no restrictions have yet been placed.

The announcement from Washington gave the impression that a ban had been placed on all building, plumbing and heating supplies when, actually, it only said that such restrictions might become necessary. Thus far none have been made.

SHORTAGE CIVILIAN DENTISTS IS SEEN

Requirements of Armed Forces to Drain Suburban Areas

A possible shortage of dentists for civilian needs because of increasing demands by the armed forces was forecast for Michigan on the eve of the annual meeting of the Michigan State Dental Society.

This observation was made by Dr. C. J. Wright, of Lansing, president of the society, who also declared that this year's session will be one of the most important in the eighty-six year old history of the organization.

The convention is to be held April 20, 21 and 22, in Detroit, at the Hotel Statler.

School Easter Vacation

Charlevoix public schools will close at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon for a four-day vacation during the Easter week end. Classes will resume at 9:30 Tuesday morning, April 7.

Patrol Boat Outfitted

Michigan Conservation Department Patrol Boat No. 1 was given a trial run Tuesday afternoon following completion of outfitting here for routine patrol duty.

One a minute—every twenty-four hours is the rate at which the NYA is turning over experienced workers to industry. An average of 43,000 workers a month are leaving NYA projects for production lines in the nation as a whole.

DEFENSE THEME KALKASKA'S TROUT FETE

"Victory Rally" for 40 Northern Counties Is Planned

Free "hunting licenses" will be a feature of the national trout festival at Kalkaska April 24, 25 and 26, and while they are good only for Japs, the United States Marine Corps officers who are dispensing them promise all takers free ammunition, equipment and pay, besides.

Chief occasion for the festival remains the opening of the trout fishing season on Saturday, April 25, but the national war drive dominates the festival opening, with a "victory rally" on April 24, at which representaties of 40 counties are to view conservation department forest fire fighting equipment which is suitable for rural fire defense.

Anglers heading north for the year's first week end of trout fishing will find the festival's conservation exhibits and events abundant, as in earlier years.

EARLIER PLANTS SPEED GARDENS

Gardening tricks that have been practiced for many years by the veterans are being broadcast for use in all of Michigan's farm and suburban Victory gardens early in 1942. Some crops need an early start to beat hot weather, others need a longer than average growing season. An answer to these needs lies in use of hotbeds or cold frames or even in small soil flats which get their warmth and sunshine through a pane in a house window, according to members of the horticulture department at Michigan State college.

Those who start plants early should schedule the planting indoors or under glass so that plants are ready at the proper planting time and not too much ahead of outdoor planting, warns Perry Bowser, college extension specialist in horticulture.

Tomatoes require six to eight weeks in the protected plant bed.

Cantaloupes and other vine crops can grow four or five weeks before they are set out, but cabbage can be field planted at a much earlier date.

Details to observe, Bowser suggests, are those of selecting good seed, treating seed and perhaps soil to prevent disease, proper soil selection and attention to seeding, watering, ventilating, transplanting and hardening.

Warm season crops commonly planted early under protection include tomatoes, peppers, eggplants and cantaloupes. Earlier harvests can be obtained by early planting of early cabbage, broccoli, leaf lettuce and early celery, transplanting later. Cauliflower and head lettuce are typical of those crops that are hurt by midsummer hot weather, so that early seeding and replanting bring on maturity before hot weather arrives.

CARE OF WASHER A WARTIME NEED

Now that home washing machines have become more difficult to purchase with restricted output because of material shortages, the care of such machines has become sensible home economy.

How to make a washing machine last longer and serve better is reviewed by members of the home economics extension service at Michigan State college from information provided by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Follow the manufacturer's directions for oiling the motor, wringer gears or other parts of the machine. Do not over-oil any part.

Keep the washing machine clean. Rinse the machine, drain it well, wipe out any lint and dry inside and out. To keep the outside frame of the machine from rusting if it's of steel or iron, rub it occasionally with a little light oil. Between washdays leave the drain faucet open and prop the lid up an inch or two. Cover the machine if it's out where it can collect dust. Never use harsh scouring powders on any part of the machine, especially the inside.

Now that rubber is scarce, be especially carefu lwith the rubber wringer rolls. Be sure that the pressure on the rolls is evenly distributed when using the wringer. Don't stall or strain the wringer by putting too much clothing through at one time. Fold buttons and buckles to the inside of the clothes before wring them. And every time a washing is finished, be sure to release the pressure on the wringer rolls.

Wipe the rubber rolls clean and dry after you use them. You can remove most discoloration with a cloth dampened with kerosene. But be sure to wipe the kerosene off right away. It softens the rubber.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

From Your Congressman
Fred Bradley
11th District, Michigan

This week I wish to direct my remarks in the main to the boys and girls of our schools.

I hope you are all busy on this nation-wide program to build immediately 500,000 aircraft models requested by the navy for training military personnel. The secretary of navy recently transmitted a letter to the United States Commissioner of Education, stating that "the bureau of aeronautics has need for a large number of model planes built to scale for such purposes as recognition, range estimation, and determination of cones of fire," and he asked that these model planes be constructed in the nation's schools. The U. S. Office of Education has sent out to the various state departments of education exact scale planes for approximately 50 types of aircraft. In our state of Michigan, the director is Dorr Stuck. In our state the superintendent of schools in some 375 cities and towns have been appointed as local directors of the program and hundreds of sets of these scale planes have been forwarded to the local communities. Michigan schools have been asked to contribute 22,000 planes to this program. I was very gratified to learn through the district papers coming to my office that the Sault high school was asked to build 100 of these planes and the St. Ignace high school will participate in the program by building 50 planes. I hope a great many of the high schools in our district are participating in this worthwhile program.

I was more than glad to learn, in discussing this program with the national director here in Washington that the responses from the school superintendents have been most encouraging.

These little models are built to an exact scale of 1 to 72, or in other words they are 1/72 of the exact size of the actual aircraft. The smallest of these models has a wing span of 5½ inches and the largest is 25 inches. The majority of the models will have less than a 12-inch wing span. All the models are constructed of solid wood—white pine, poplar and bass—and they are comparatively easy to make and do not require any exceptional amount of skill. It has been noted, however, that in actual practise, the students become so familiar with the silhouette and the design of all of these various aircraft from all the nations that by this very program they themselves will be of great value to the nation in being able to identify any planes which they may see flying overhead, and by this familiarity with all of these types of planes, will be quickly able to detect whether planes overhead are friendly or hostile. This program is but the start of a huge program which we shall have to adopt—and adopt quickly—to put into our nation's school system courses in aviation.

When Adolph Hitler rose to power in Germany and conceived of his fiendish plans for conquest, one of his first ideas was to make Germany air minded. You will recall that by the terms of the Treaty of Versailles, the German air force left over from the last war was wiped out, and if I recall correctly, the Germans were permitted to build no powered aircraft. Consequently Hitler embarked on a program of teaching the youngsters in the schools the theories of aviation. He taught them what made an airplane fly, and practically every boy and girl who graduated from the elementary schools had some fundamental knowledge of aviation. As they progressed in high school, the courses in aviation became more technical and by the time the youngsters graduated from high school, they were fundamentally well grounded in aviation. Then he organized these youngsters into glider groups. Literally hundreds of thousands of German boys and girls learned the art of soaring in gliders. They learned how to take advantage of the air currents by means of which soaring birds of the air—such as our seagulls—can float seemingly for hours with little or no wing effort. Finally, when Hitler was ready with this fundamentally sound training imbued in these youngsters, he announced to the world that he was kicking over the Versailles Treaty and would restore the German air force, and at that time every last officer in the German air force was required to have had glider training before he was permitted to take up powered flying. This Hitler did. This the Russians did—and in fact as far back as 1926 there were four million paid memberships in their semi-official glider clubs. But this we did not do and neither did our friends the British. At least what little we did do, we now know was tragically "too little and I hope not too late."

Why did not we do it? We did not do it principally because it was not the military policy adopted by the high commands in our army and navy. Billy Mitchell was crucified for daring to challenge the judgment of his superior officers. As late as May 27, 1941, our navy high command told the house naval affairs committee that glider training was not worthwhile. But today, eight months later, we are beginning to wake up; but we still are not fully awake and neither are the British. After the debacle of Crete, when the British Mediterranean fleet was crucified from the air, the commander-in-chief of the British navy told the famous Associated Press correspondent, Larry Allen, who went through all of that debacle, who was wounded in the battle of Crete, that he would still rather have one death-trap battleship afloat than any 100 bombers in the world today.

Now, my friends, it is high time that we wake up—and we must wake up by starting to educate our children—boys and girls—in aviation from A to Z. There isn't a trained mind that I know of in Washington today that doesn't recognize that we are in a most serious war which may last anywhere from five to ten years; and it might be necessary before we win this war to put every last boy and girl in our high schools today in the cockpit of a fighting airplane.

The British have learned that they require five full crews, or approximately 50 trained aviators to keep every single bomber in the air. The boys can't stand the nervous strain and they must be relieved. We have set a goal in our nation for 125,000 airplanes by next year; 50 times 125,000 is an air force of almost six and one-half million men out of a nation of 130 million people. Think that over. A nation which cannot fly cannot live in the world of today!

If past performance can be taken as a guide, banks will be an important—and even a major—factor in the future growth of our country. It is certain that America will expand, and develop, and flourish. It is equally certain that each bank, in its community, will contribute its specialized ability and experience to help make this inevitable development of the future a sound and lasting one. We know that our bank, for one, will do its full share.

Fruit Growers to Study Spraying and Pruning of Trees

All fruit growers of Charlevoix county nre invited and urged to attend two fruit meetings scheduled for Wednesday, April 8th. The forenoon meeting beginning at 10:00 will be in the cherry orchard of John Noble, East Jordan, and will consider pruning and trimming of cherry trees. The second meeting will be held in East Jordan in the new city building to start at 2:00.

We are glad to announce that H. D. Hootman and T. C. Stebbins, specialists in horticulture, will be present at both meetings to give to the fruit growers the latest information relative to their many problems of production and marketing. T. C. Stebbins is the new specialist in horticulture and this will be your first opportunity to get acquainted with him. We will be particularly interested in the progress of the new state wide organization of cherry growers. With the difficulty in obtaining spray materials it will be to your advantnge to attend and determine what type of material might be available and yet do the job satisfactorily.

In the orchard of John Noble, East Jordan, (who lies on the Advance road) you will find trees of various ages. It is always in order to visit every tree in the orchard at this time of the year and do the little pruning that is always necessary for best production. Everything looks promising for a good production of fruit this year so certainly every fruit man should attend these two meetings and have a real constructive fruit program developed for this year. Our present emergency calls for increased productioa of canned goods.

Remember the date of April 8, with the forenoon meeting at the orchard of John Noble and the afternoon session in the city building, East Jordan.

Livestock Meetings Scheduled for Friday, April 3

As a result of a great interest in beef and swine enterprises, we are glad to announce that a series of two meetings will be held Friday, April 3rd to discuss the problems of general livestock. This is the first time in several years that meetings have been arranged for farmers who are specializing in beef cattle and in raising hogs. The beef cattle business has been greatly increased during the past several years so Mr. Moxley has been secured to assist these farmers in many of their problems.

The first meeting will be held in the city building, Charlevoix, to begin promptly at 10:00 (war time). The second meeting will be in the city building, East Jordan, at 2:00 p. m. Mr. Moxley, who will be the speaker, has been well known for his work with horse improvement in the state. He has conducted colt breaking demonstrations in nearly every county. These meetings will include discussion relative to horses as well as other types of livestock. A cordial invitation is extended to all farmers in the county to attend the nearest of these two meetings. Today, as never before, farmers should feed efficiently, use the latest information possible to increase their operations as far as humanly possible in our "Food for Freedom" fight. If you have neighbors who may not have rend this notice kindly bring them with you. Let's have a real discussion on the above topics.

Farmers Urged to Order Young Pine Seedlings Now

Of all practices recommended for earning payment in the AAA certainly the setting out of young pine seedlings on land not adapted to general farming ranks near the top. On every farm there are certain small areas of land that can best be used for this purpose.

Fortunately, a variety of young seedlings are still available if they are ordered at once. Generally speaking, we would recommend the Norway or red pine for nearly all types of land. On good soil that is not too light nor too wet, perhaps, white pine would be very satisfactory. Then on land that is too poor for the above mentioned species one may use jack pine, which will grow most anywhere, and especially on land that is exposed to the wind and hot weather such as steep hillsides where there is very little vegetation. The red pine and white pine seedlings cost $3.00 per thousand, while the jack pine cost $2.50 per thousand. Then be reminded that approximately a thousand trees will set out an acre if they are spaced 6x7. If the 6x6 planting distance is used it takes 1200 trees to the acre.

Already there are many farms in the county who have set out trees for windbreaks and reforestation, with excellent results. Let's not forget that this is a practice that should be followed by many more farmers. If we had thought more about reforestation years ago our county would be a better place to live in today. You may secure your order blank from your county agent's office by request, also any other particulars.

Charlevoix County Organizing "Victory" Gardens Campaign

Every family in Charlevoix county can make a definite contribution toward our war effort by producing a well planned home garden this summer. When we realize a large proportion of our canned goods is now being reserved for the boys in the service and greater demands anticipated in the future an adequate home garden is really necessary.

A program covering all points in the county is being actively developed under the direction of the extension department cooperating with the County Defense Council and War Board.

Already the city of East Jordan is being organized. A house to house canvass is to be made in the very near future. This will afford the leaders a knowledge of families that will pledge a well kept home garden, those who need additional land for a garden and those that need other types of assistance.

Bulletins published by the Michigan State college will be made available insofar as possible to help in this program.

By Anne Campbell

* * * * * * * * * * *

The Girl Scouts of Troop 1 are following the excellent example set by the Girl Scouts in the Far East. From Hawaii it was reported that a few hours after an air attack the Girl Scouts had the people quieted, were preparing food, and had started the children singing.

Our Troop 1 scouts are nearing the end of their first aid classes after which they will begin learning a group of songs. At camp this summer they are going to cook their own meals out of doors, so in case of emergency they will be prepared.

Don't forget the Girl Scout cookie sale which begins on Monday, April 6. Send some cookies to the boys in the service. They are boxed and easy to mail. The proceeds will be used for camp and scout equipment.

ers see justification in higher prices for farm commodities. The cycle of effects is long.

While Michigan workers may be better off than those elsewhere, as the cold statistics prove, yet political capital continues to be made that labor is not getting its just dues.

Governor Van Wagoner spoke at a labor conference arranged by the state department of labor and industry. Listen to these criticisms of Michigan labor laws:

"Michigan ranks 26th among all states in liberality of workmen's compensation payments. For an industrial state, that is a disgrace."

"We have a 90-day limit on medical care (for workmen's compensation). That is extremely unjust."

"Indefensible discrimination" is seen by the governor in the state's occupational diseases law which "now denies compensation for certain types of occupational disease." Legislative changes are needed, Van Wagoner said.

"Michigan is one of the few states in which, according to a recent opinion of our state attorney general, women can legally be worked 10 hours a day . . . We are the only industrial state in which women can be worked 54 hours a week . . . We failed in the last legislative session to get a wage-hour law for the state, so the women of Michigan still lack the protection that most other states give women."

Child Labor ("exploitation of minors") received this charge from the governor: "Our child-labor law is 33 years old. It is almost impossible to enforce today."

By coincidence, the governor's address was given on the identical day Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, delivered at Washington his amazing indictment of unions.

Never had a New Deal official of high rank accused organized labor of the following:

Exploitation of farmers, undemocratic procedure to control union elections, impeding transportation, making it "impossible" to get mass production of housing, forcing businessmen to employ useless labor, restricting "efficient use of men and machine."

The Jackson Citizen-Patriot observes editorially:

"The charges which Thurman Arnold makes against organized labor are basically true as every union man knows. They do not by any means apply to all unions or all union men; but the abuses which he names are not uncommon."

While congress can require corporations to reimburse the government any excess profits paid to them, congress cannot reclaim lost hours or war material—airplanes, tanks, etc.—that were never made.

If labor limits production of war material, General MacArthur and thousands of Michigan soldiers and sailors will have less fighting arms with which to protect their own lives, let alone our lives.

Because a majority of Michigan workers (in industries and farms) are not members of unions, Arnold's indictments added only more fuel to an already hotly-burning fire.

The governor's charges did not lessen labor's unrest.

Nor did the revelation of war profits make the Michigan worker, blessed with higher wages and higher benefit payments than any other workers in this U.S.A., inclined to work harder and to produce more tanks, cannons and airplanes.

Furthermore, 1942 is a campaign year, and that means inevitable bidding by politicians at Washington, and at Lansing for pressure group votes.

Interpretation:

It must be obvious to the man on the street, the ordinary guy who makes democracy tick, that unless congress acts to curb abuses by both industry and labor (excess profits whether in annual salaries and bonuses or in hourly wages and restrictions on production) that today's labor unrest is going to keep fomenting.

It must also be obvious that the war should take priority over politics.

A truce on the home front is urgently needed.

Weakened by internal strife, we can lose the war. And if we lose the war, we lose the highest living standards any nation in the world has ever enjoyed.

From where I sit . . .

by Joe Marsh

BEST storekeeper I ever knew was a fellow named Sam Abernethy. Sam's specialty was to take over some run-down store that somebody else had given up as a failure. Then Sam would turn it into a gold mine.

"But the most important thing of all," he used to say, "is to remember who's Boss!"

"You may think you are Boss of your business . . . but you're not. The Public, your customers, are the real bosses . . . and you've got to run your business the way they want it."

* * *

That little statement of Sam's made a big impression on me . . . particularly since it certainly seemed to work so well in Sam's case.

And Sam isn't the only one. I see the beer industry feels the same way . . . certainly, the brewers believe in running their business the way you and I would like to see it run.

* * *

Folks like us like to see beer sold in clean, quiet, decent places.

Well . . . the brewers feel the same way about it. They don't want their beer sold in wrong surroundings. They know it doesn't pay. And they know it hurts the good name of beer.

I was reading the other day how the brewers and the beer distributors work together and cooperate with law enforcement authorities. The idea is to make careless beer retailers clean up their places and practices . . . or close up.

* * *

It's a good plan . . . and it seems to me it ought to work. I understand it is already in operation in a number of states and is being extended.

It's a mighty fine thing when a great industry has the gumption to do a job like that on its own initiative. And if Sam Abernethy was right, the brewers should be mighty successful . . . because they're running their business the way the public wants to see it run.

everything received. In fact, in two cases I remember paying the full price and when the package was opened, found a card saying, "Donated by Mrs. So and So." One was from a lady in New York City, the other from a lady in Boston, Mass. Another time we were lined up at a canteen where they were serving little cookies and a cup of coffee for a nickle. A big fellow just ahead of me had just four cents and he was actually turned down because he did not have the fifth penny. It happened I had an extra cent, so he had his cookies and coffee just the same, but you can imagine how he feels about that organization today. There is one organization from which we received things and we did not have to pay, either. No matter where we were — under shell fire, in the S. O. S. or stationed in some town—we always found them (usually women) handing out good cheer and usually a cup of good coffee and a couple of holes with some good, crisp dough around them. So in the future when it comes to donations, let's not forget that good, old Salvation Army."

Eleanor Roosevelt sure stuck her neck out when in a recent address she said that the nation is fighting its second war "because the boys in the last war . . . came back without the actual feeling of obligation to carry on their thinking." Lynn U. Stambaugh, national American Legion commander, promptly retorted: "If the national defense, Americanism and foreign relations programs of the American Legion had been followed by the nation, we would not be threatened as we are today—our enemies of today would not even have started this war." That "bubble dancing" episode wasn't enough to stop her, I guess.

RECRUITS ARE SOUGHT FOR TWO-OCEAN NAVY

Unlimited Opportunity Offered to Men Who Enlist Now

The U. S. navy's goal of a ship a day means unlimited opportunities for men who enlist now, according to Lieutenant Commander Carsnn R. Miller, in chorge of recruiting for this area. With the nnvy's plan for a two-ocean fleet fust becoming a reolity, ambitious young men can expect rapid advancement in either the navy or the naval reserve.

More than 50 trades and 100 specialties, including all phases of radio and aviation, are open to men from 17 to 50, says Lieutenant Commander Miller. He points out that one feature of naval training often overlooked is the fact thnt the navy pays while you learn. Enlisted men can choose the trade or specialty they wish, get thorough training in the navy's great technical schools, and at the same time receive the regular pay of men in active service. Navy-trained men will be fitted for high-paying positions in private industry after the war, or can go ahead with a naval career. In addition to trade training, navy men receive free clothing, lodging, dental and medical care, and other worthwhile advantages.

Men who already have training in any specific field may obtain petty officer ratings immediately upon enlistment, with the excellent salsries such positions commnnd.

The navy recruiting station for this district is located at Traverse City. A visit to the recruiting stntion and taking of the inltial examinations puts a man under no obligation to enlist, says Lieutenant Commander Miller.

4-H CLUBS ORGANIZE FOOD DRIVE

COUNTY COUNCIL FORMED TO BRING UNITED EFFORT

Council Officers and Membership Named at Meeting Held Thursday at Boyne City

(By B. C. Mellencamp)

The greatly enlarged County 4-H Club Council held its first meeting last Thursday night in the Boyne City post office building and developed plans for a county-wide food production program.

Main purpose of the gathering was to organize all communities as a means of affording opportunity for all young folks to actively cooperate in home gardens and other "Food for Freedom" production. In order to meet present emergency needs 4-H club projects are being made available to all young folks throughout the county.

This newly selected 4-H council cooperating with the extension department will actively develop the policies and activities of our 4-H club program throughout the county this year. Certainly such 4-H club projects as home gardens, food preparation, home canning, and livestock enterprizes will receive even greater considerntion than in the past. Each person has a deep desire to do his or her task to win this war. The 4-H club members will do all in their power to meet theso new demands.

Membership of the 4-H club council consists of: Willinm Parsons, Charlevoix; Mrs. Anna Warner, Charlevoix; Wyatt S. Wilson, Charlevoix; Mrs. Mamie Straw, Charlevoix; Mrs. Ruth Hnir, Charlevoix; Glenn Snider, Charlevoix; Mrs. Ruby Stueck, Petoskey; Mrs. Leslie Howe, Charlevoix; Carl Prohaska, Boyne City; Melvin Somerville, Boyne City; Carl Goodwin, Boyne City; Mrs. Countis Mascho, Charlevoix; Walter H. Henley, Charlevoix; Mrs. Jake Smith, Boyne Falls; Mrs. Constance Gallop, Boyne Falls; Mrs. Lizzie DeNise, Boyne Falls; W. G. Rickard, Boyne Falls; Mrs. Bernice Knop, Boyne City; Bud Staley, East Jordan; Mrs. Ernie Brown, Ironton; Lester Walcutt, East Jordan; Mrs. Lentha Larsen, East Jordan; Mrs. Genevieve McGeorge, Boyne City; Howard Lytle, Boyne City; L. B. Karr, East Jordan; George Hemingway, Boyne City.

From this group Lester Walcutt, East Jordan, was elected chairman; Mrs. Countis Mascho, Charlevoix, vice-chairman, and Melvin Somerville, secretary. A committee was selected to develop a set of by-laws to govern the activity. Lester Walcutt, Melvin Somerville, Mrs. Bernice Knop, W. G. Rickard and Mrs. Leatha Larsen were on this committee.

Tentatively, the membership of this council will actively lead the 4-H club program in their respective townships and communities. In every township it is expected that a township organiznion will be set up so that all young folks will have the opportunity of joining the program. The leadership and direction will come largely from this membership. A second meeting will be held early in May to make further plans.

AAA PROGRAM IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

The effect of volunteer wheat on AAA compliance will not affect the farmers of Charlevoix county to any great extent. However, there are a few fields and the regulationa concerning any volunteer wheat acreage may be of interest.

A great furor has been raised about destroying a million acres or more of wheat in the western states. The truth of the matter is that much of that acreage would oaly produce from 2 to 4 bushels to the acre and would not repay the expense of harvesting. It would make good early pasture for stock feeding purposes and as we need meat and milk, this practice is encouraged.

Farmers who partieipate in the AAA program may harvest their wheat and earn both agricultural conservation payments and parity payments, providing that they observe the following three regulations: 1. Seed within the 1942 wheat acreage allotment. 2. Store any valunteer wheat on the farm as long as it is aubject to a marketing quota pensalty. 3. Seed within the 1943 wheat acreage allotment.

Under these provisions, no farmer will need to destroy any volunteer wheat acreage, but may use it to best advantage in carrying out 1942 farming operations.

Three Michigan high school papers won the national certificate of honor in the press project sponsored by the National Tuberculosis Association and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. These papers include, "The Superior" of Brimley, "Classy Chronicle" of Rudyard, and "Siren" of Sand Creek.

SCOUT WASTE PAPER DRIVE BIG PROJECT

Nation-Wide Effort Under Way; Call Phone 13 in Charlevoix

A great contribution to the success of the national waste paper campaign is the enthusiastic assistance of many charitable and youth organizatinns.

Boy Scout troops numbering 48,000 from coast to coast, 324 boys' clubs with a membership of over 400,000, together with many other nation-wide organizationa, are working zealously to accumulate waste paper. Their efforts have done much to keep the public waste paper conscious.

"Is it as high as a broomstick?" has become a familinr question to the citizens of this country who call the telephone exchanges of their local waste paper conservation committees to dispose of waste paper, needed so vitally in the nation's war effort.

Saving waste paper, scrap metals, rubber, and waste materials, is vital to victory. These materials will be quickly converted into guns, tanks and paper containers for shipping supplies to army camps and to our allies.

The Boy Scouts of the Scenic Trails Council are working hard to assist their government in gathering waste paper. You will be helping collectors, if you accumulate at least one hundred pounds of waste papers before notifying collection headquarters. This means a stack of papers about as high as a broom stick. Newspapers and magazines can be tied in bundles about a foot high, and waste basket paper packed in boxes.

Remember, in Charlevoix the number is 13. Please call that number as soon as you have a sizable pile of waste paper.

PYTHIANS 7TH ANNUAL BASKETBALL BANQUET

Lloyd Otis, Harbor Springs Coach, Was Principal Speaker

Knights of Pythias gave their 7th annual basketball banquet Monday evening at the lodge hall, and it proved to be a first class treat for a first class basketball team.

Coach Ray Kipke gave an interesting outline of school athletic activities the past year, to which members of the basketball squad responded, Bud Rowe for the seniors, John Swanson for juniors, Bill Rowe for sophomores and Jack Lamphear for freshmen.

The boys' glee club, directed by Max Smith, sang.

E. J. Edwards, toastmaster, introduced speakers, who included O. P. North, superintendent of schools.

Lloyd Otis, coach of Harbor Springs high school and of the team which took the district and regional basketball tournaments, was speaker of the evening. His address on good athletes and their connection with the present war situation proved very timely and interesting.

Roast chicken and all the trimmings were prepared by Ron Fairbanks and his kitchen police. Earl J. Shapton was general chnirman of the program.

Don't forget the big event for high school honor awards, April 17, details to be announced later.

FROM THE GARDEN CLUB

The Small Vegetable Garden

The type of soil and preparation of it is all-important in growing vegetables successfully. Both a light sandy soil and a very heavy clay soil should be avoided if possible. A fnirly heavy loam, that will dry out quite rapidly after heavy rains without "baking," is ideal.

To improve either sandy or heavy soil the same treatment is used: the addition of gencrous amounts of humas; of ashes (wood ashes if possible, but coal nshes will help), and of raw, ground limestone, 10 to 15 pounds per 100 square feet. Your county agent will be glad to help you test your soil for acidity.

Plowing or digging the soil at least six, or better eight or ten inches, is the first step. Then spread a complete plant food over the surface and work it in with a rake. Follow the manufacturer's recommendations for the amount.

Timing in seed sowing is of utmost importance. Peas, beets, carrots, onions, turnips, lettuce and spinach should be planted as soon as the soil can be worked so they will have cool weather not only to germinate but for most of their growing perind. Corn, beans, tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, squash, and other vine crops are warm-weather crops and will not grow satisfactorily until the nights are not only free from frost but fairly warm.

Another all-important point in gardening is keeping the weeds out. Never let them get a start. In hoeing and weeding the ground is kept in good condition, moisture is preserved, a crust is prevented from forming over the top and young weeds are eliminated before they get the best of you and your vegetables.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS MAY JOIN NAVY, THEN COMPLETE EDUCATION

Senior high school men, 17 to 19 inclusive, may enlist in the United States navy now, and complete their high school education before being called to active service, according to Lieutenant Commander Carson R. Miller, in charge of navy recruiting for this district.

This is made possible through enlistment in class V-1 of the naval reserve, which was created to allow patriotic young men to do their part for their country without disrupting their educatinn.

Upon graduation, these men will begin training at the navy's expense in their choice of over 50 trades and 100 specialties, including all phases of radio and aviation. During this training period, they will be on active servico, and will receive the same pay and benefits as other navy men.

The navy recruiting station for this area is located at Traverse City.
